W. R. HEARST in his newspapers throughout the country advocates a union of English-speaking nations to maintain peace. He would have them agree to keep the naval and air forces down to a certain point, but also "up to definite strength and efficiency, able to compel peace, if necessary, by fighting for it.

No offensive alliance, no condoning by one nation of aggressive acts by another, but an agreement by English speaking peoples not to fight among themselves and to protect each other from outside aggression.

THIS, according to Hearst, would not mean helping England to hold down subject races in Egypt, India, etc., but an agreement between free English-speaking white men in the United States, Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, to insure themselves against war by preparation and mutual agreement.

WITH such an agreement Australia and New Zealand could peacefully develop their civilization within the shadow of Asia.

WHY not include in the arrangement free immigration among the contracting parties? Intermarrying would help peace.

After the Romans stole their Sabine women all was serene, although nothing as drastic as that would be suggested in these silk stocking days.

IF anybody objects to a combination based on language it may be pointed out that such a combination is easy, and a real movement for peace must begin somewhere.

THE month of January, 1927, in which good resolutions are now oozing away, is to be "national laugh month." Moving picture potentates and others have decided and arranged it. Americans are to laugh, and thus keep up their "morale."

IT WOULD be better to locate laugh month in December. For looking back over 11 months of much promise, much resolving and little performance, laughing would be easy.

There is such a thing as over-doing laughing, for laughing is like smoking. When you do either, you don't think. And what the American people need is more thinking.

A LEARNED professor of Eton, who teaches geology, is worried about the world's food supply in case population should increase and says, "to allow wholesale immigration would be to distinctly lower the Nordic type by amalagamation.'

CRITICAL SITUATION ADMITTED AS WARSHIPS SPEED TO NICARAGUA

Borah Stands Pat Against U. S. Role In Civil Warfare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—A conference today between President Coolidge and Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, failed to shake the Idahoan's opposition to intervention in Nicaragua.

"We have no business in Nicaragua," said Borah, as he left the White House.

He further expressed the opinion that the state department is "backing the wrong horse" in the troubled little republic.

"In my opinion," continued Borah, "Dr. Sacasa is the constitutional president of the country and should have been recognized under the five-power Central American treaty."

Two U. S. Gunboats are Anchored Off Chinese City.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Precautions are being made for the evacuation of American women and children from Hankow, according to reports received here in responsible quarters today This may indicate that the animosity of the Chinese in Hankow, which has been directed chiefly against the British, has now turned towards all foreigners.

Reports that the Cantonese had withdrawn from Hankow were denied in reliable quarters, it being stated that the Nationalist military are still in control there.

Two steamers bearing British women and children refugees from Hankow were due to arrive at Shanghai today.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7.—The situation at Hankow was reported today to be one of watchful tension.

Women and children have been evacuated from the British concession, and all business has been suspended. A general strike still impends.

FORD TOURING CAR ABANDONED

Police have been asked to locate the owner of a Ford touring car bearing Ohio license No. 387-638 which, it is claimed, has been parked along the Chester-Pughtown road since last Sunday. Harry Pittenger, who suspected the machine had been stolen and abandoned, made the report to police.

Feeling is More Tense Than Any Time Since Pershing Led Punitive Expedition Across Border.

"HANDS OFF" HINT TO CALLES REGIME

Fifteen First Class Fighting Ships and Nearly 5,000 Bluejackets and Marines in Civil War Zone.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—The relations between the United States and Mexico are in a more critical state than at any time since Gen. John J. Pershing led his famous punitive expedition across the international boundary 10 years ago.

This was generally recognized in Washington as the largest show of naval strength ever assembled in Nicaraguan waters proceeded to stations off Nicaraguan ports.

Quell Revolt is Ostensible Purpose.

The ostensible purpose of this concentration is to quell the revolution in Nicaragua and maintain Adolfo Diaz in the presidential palace, but the real reason for this show of strength is understood to be to impress upon the Mexican government that it had better keep "hands off" in Central America, and tread lightly in the application of its new land and petroleum laws to American holdings.

Ordinarily, a couple of American gunboats and a handful of marines are sufficient to control any Central American revolution and afford the necessary protection to American legations and property in the Caribbean. It is work with which the navy is entirely familiar and through long practice very efficient.

Yet for this Nicaraguan revolution, in which the combination on both sides number scarcely more than 5,000, the American government has concentrated in Nicaraguan waters, and adjacent to Mexico, a total of 15 first class fighting ships, and nearly 5,000 bluejeckts and marines, all under control of an admiral who has been given carte blanche in their disposition. It comprises the largest naval show the American government has ever staged in Caribbean waters.

Serious Situation.

That a very serious situation may result is universally recognized in Washington.

The American state department put Diaz in the presidential palace and plans to keep him there. The state department has accorded him official recognition, and the American navy has bottled up the Sacasa revolutionists who were fast gaining the upper hand over him.

The Mexican government considers that Juan Sacasa is the constitutional president of Nicaragua. It accorded Sacasa official recognition, and conveniently has looked the other way while his forces secured arms and ammunition from Mexican sources.

If Mexico now chooses to stand stiffly on her prerogatives as a sovereign nation and chooses to supply arms to this Sacasa government which she officially recognizes, an open clash with the United States may be one of the first results, for Admiral Latimer has instructions to stop Mexican gun running.

Most international authorities here concede that in such a situation, Mexico would have international law

RUDNER SEEKS VENUE CHANGE FOR TRIAL IN MELLETT DEATH

Indicted Man Charges Prejudice Too Great in Canton.

COURT TO RULE

Pat McDermott Will be Quizzed in Cleveland.

CANTON, O., Jan. 7.—Ben Rudner, indicted for first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, filed a motion this morning in common pleas court for a change of venue. The motion was filed by his attorney, E. L. Mills who cited as reasons for a change that prejudice was so great that it would be impossible for the defendant to have a fair and impartial trial. Mills said that feeling was even greater now since the conviction of Pat McDermott than when he made the motion for a venue change in the McDermott case.

It is expected the motion will be ruled on by Judge Charles Krichbaum either today or tomorrow.

McDermott, convicted "keyman" in the slaying, was to be taken to Cleveland today by Cleveland police officials, who are now on their way there at the instance of Prosecutor Stanton of Cleveland. Pat is wanted in Cleveland as a witness before the Cuyahoga county grand jury which has returned an indictment against Norrris Ben Nadel, for harboring a felon. McDermott will also be used as a witness against Nadel in his trial which has been set for next Monday.

Pat May Leave Workhouse.

While in Cleveland McDermott will be subject to a severe grilling by Cuyahoga county authorities which he escaped when he was turned over to Stark county autharities by his brothers, Bernard and Thomas after he had succeeded in hiding out in a Cleveland apartment house for more than a month after the Mellett murder.

One of the deputy sheriffs of Stark county will accompany Pat to Cleveland and remain there with him until he is returned to Stark county. When he comes back here, Pat will be placed in the county jail and remain there until he is taken to the Ohio penitentiary to serve a life sentence.

Pat is now at the workhouse but

SOLONS VOTE FOR LICENSING OF TAXICABS

BAGGAGE FREE

Street Obstruction Issue Prompts Lengthy Discussion.

Council last night enacted by unanimous vote, under a suspension of rules, a taxicab licensing and fare-fixing ordinance.

Under provisions of the measure, the annual license fee will be $10, with a reduction of $5 in the event the permit is issued after June 30. Drivers must be 21 years old and American citizens and not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor or drugs. The rate of fare for the first third of a mile was fixed at 35 cents with a charge of 10 cents for each additional mile. Rate for the first hour was fixed at three dollars.

The mayor is given the right to order an inspection of vehicles, the cost to be charged to the owner, and rules are prescribed in regard to solicitation business at hotels and railroad stations.

Solon Goodballet declared that if the director planned to move the shed he should also take action against obstructions in front of several potteries which he named. "FIXED" GAME QUIZ DELAYED BY ONE-TIME SOX INFIELDER

Judge Landis Forced to Postpone Hearing Until 4 p. m.

HITS NEWSPAPER

Like Risberg, Witness Fails to Appear at Appointed Hour.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Hearing of additonal testimony in the charges that Detroit and Chicago conspired in September, 1917, to "slough" a series to the White Sox was postponed this morning until 4 p. m., because of the failure of Chick Gandil, one of the complainants, to apear at the appointed hour of 11.

Signs Affidavit

Judge Landis, in making known the postponement, took occasion to score a local morning paper for it's activities on behalf of Gandil and "Swede" Risberg, his brother-witness of the debarred Black Sox.

Risberg failed to appear on time at the first hearing on Wednesday also forcing a postponement.

An affidavit bearing the signature of Gandil by Risberg that the White Sox "bought" a four-game series from Detroit in 1917, was made public today.

Gandil arrived in Chicago last night. He announced he will attend the hearing in the commissioner's office today and repeat the substance of his affidavit which corroborates in almost every detail the story told by Risberg.

"I met Bill James under the grand stand at Comiskey park before the first game," Gandil's statement reads. "Bill said to me 'these are going to be pretty soft games,' and I said, 'Well, Bill, if it goes all right, I will see that you are fixed up for it.'"

Gandil says he is perfectly willing to go before Commissioner Landis and tell his story, but he serves notice that he will take no bullying.

Gandil is Belligerent.

"If they try any of that, I'll just pick up my hat and go home," he said. "That was the trouble with Risberg. The 'Swede' was too easy with those fellows. He was telling the truth, but he let them bluff him out of it. No one better call me a liar within hearing."

Gandil presented a belligerent front as he prepared to go before Landis to tell his sensational story.

"I've been accused of a lot of things," said Gandil, "I'm kept out of organized baseball despite my acquittal of wrongdoing by a jury. I'm not going to talk just to get even with the fellows who once threw me down. I'm going to talk because Landis ask-

VOICE OF OLD WORLD SOUNDS ACROSS ATLANTIC AND NEW WORLD ANSWERS OVER RADIO-TELEPHONE

BY DAVID P. SENTNER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The voice of the old world sounded across the Atlantic today and the voice of the new world echoed back.

At 8:44 o'clock this morning commercial radio-telephone service was inaugurated for the first time in history between New York and London.

The telephone conversation lasted five minutes and parties at both ends heard each other distinctly, although there was some static.

The buzz of a telephone bell marked a new stage in communication between the two worlds, a step that is a far cry from the days when letters sent by clipper ships, spanking acroes the seas in three or four weeks, were the only means of communication, a step that is even far in advance of the instantaneous cable flashes, the radio wave, sand the six-day ocean greyhounds that have afforded communication up to today.

The price of the new trans-ocean telephone service is $25 a minute.

The New York and London stations were tuned in at 8:43½. At 8:44 o'clock London and New York were ready to talk.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, sitting in the telephone company's office in New York, talked with Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, secretary of the general post office of Great Britain, for two minutes.

Then Sir Evelyn Murray, in London, talked to Gifford for three minutes.

"We could hear each other clearly," said Gifford, "although there was more static than during previous tests."

No Blare of Trumpets.

There was no blare of trumpets to the epoch-making ceremony. It was a simply staged affair—60 members of the official "family" of the American Telegraph and Telephone company with a dozen newspapermen clustered quietly around a green-baize table in the directors' room.

Twenty headpieces before an equal number of chairs around the table permitted the more fortunate occupants to share in this scientific achievement.

After an introductory address by Gifford to those present, giving a history of the research work over a period of 22 years which attained its successful climax today, he picked up the receiver of an ordinary telephone before him at the head of the table.

His guests, including the International News Service correspondent, adjusted their ear-pieces.

"Good Morning" Message.

"Hello," said Gifford quietly. "Will you give me Sir Evelyn Murray, secretary of the British post office in London, please."

There was a pause of a split second.

CANTON, O., Jan. 7.—Ben Rudner, indicted for first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, filed a motion this morning in common pleas court for a change of venue. The motion was filed by his attorney, E. L. Mills who cited as reasons for a change that prejudice was so great that it would be impossible for the defendant to have a fair and impartial trial. Mills said that feeling was even greater now since the conviction of Pat McDermott than when he made the motion for a venue change in the McDermott case.

It is expected the motion will be ruled on by Judge Charles Krichbaum either today or tomorrow.

McDermott, convicted "keyman" in the slaying, was to be taken to Cleveland today by Cleveland police officials, who are now on their way there at the instance of Prosecutor Stanton of Cleveland. Pat is wanted in Cleveland as a witness before the Cuyahoga county grand jury which has returned an indictment against Norrris Ben Nadel, for harboring a felon. McDermott will also be used as a witness against Nadel in his trial which has been set for next Monday.

Pat May Leave Workhouse.

While in Cleveland McDermott will be subject to a severe grilling by Cuyahoga county authorities which he escaped when he was turned over to Stark county authorities by his brothers, Bernard and Thomas after he had succeeded in hiding out in a Cleveland apartment house for more than a month after the Mellett murder.

One of the deputy sheriffs of Stark county will accompany Pat to Cleveland and remain there with him until he is returned to Stark county. When he comes back here, Pat will be placed in the county jail and remain there until he is taken to the Ohio penitentiary to serve a life sentence.

Pat is now at the workhouse but

SOLONS VOTE FOR LICENSING OF TAXICABS

Fair-fixing Ordinance Calls for Car Tax of $10.

BAGGAGE FREE

Street Obstruction Issue Prompts Lengthy Discussion.

Council last night enacted by unanimous vote, under a suspension of rules, a taxicab licensing and fare-fixing ordinance.

Under provisions of the measure, the annual license fee will be $10, with a reduction of $5 in the event the permit is issued after June 30. Drivers must be 21 years old and American citizens and not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor or drugs. The rate of fare for the first third of a mile was fixed at 35 cents with a charge of 10 cents for each additional mile. No charge shall be made for baggage and when more than two children under the age of 10 years are accompanied by parents or guardians fares shall be collected for the additional passengers. Rate for the first hour was fixed at three dollars.

The mayor is given the right to order an inspection of vehicles, the cost to be charged to the owner, and rules are prescribed in regard to solicitation business at hotels and railroad stations.

Lengthy discussion took place relative to the removal of a shed in Crook alley adjoining the American theatre Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore explained his action, and said the theatre management had been granted a court injunction. Solon Goodballet declared that if the director planned to move the shed he should also take action against obstructions in front of several potteries which he named. The issue was referred to the board of control.

"FIXED" GAME QUIZ DELAYED BY ONE-TIME SOX INFIELDER

Judge Landis Forced to Postpone Hearing Until 4 p. m.

HITS NEWSPAPER

Like Risberg, Witness Fails to Appear at Appointed Hour.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Hearing of additonal testimony in the charges that Detroit and Chicago conspired in September, 1917, to "slough" a series to the White Sox was postponed this morning until 4 p. m., because of the failure of Chick Gandil, one of the complainants, to apear at the appointed hour of 11.

Signs Affidavit

Judge Landis, in making known the postponement, took occasion to score a local morning paper for it's activities on behalf of Gandil and "Swede" Risberg, his brother-witness of the debarred Black Sox.

Risberg failed to appear on time at the first hearing on Wednesday also forcing a postponement.

An affidavit bearing the signature of Gandil by Risberg that the White Sox "bought" a four-game series from Detroit in 1917, was made public today.

Gandil arrived in Chicago last night. He announced he will attend the hearing in the commissioner's office today and repeat the substance of his affidavit which corroborates in almost every detail the story told by Risberg.

"I met Bill James under the grand stand at Comiskey park before the first game," Gandil's statement reads. "Bill said to me 'these are going to be pretty soft games,' and I said, 'Well, Bill, if it goes all right, I will see that you are fixed up for it.'"

Gandil says he is perfectly willing to go before Commissioner Landis and tell his story, but he serves notice that he will take no bullying.

Gandil is Belligerent.

"If they try any of that, I'll just pick up my hat and go home," he said. "That was the trouble with Risberg. The 'Swede' was too easy with those fellows. He was telling the truth, but he let them bluff him out of it. No one better call me a liar within hearing."

Gandil presented a belligerent front as he prepared to go before Landis to tell his sensational story.

"I've been accused of a lot of things," said Gandil, "I'm kept out of organized baseball despite my acquittal of wrongdoing by a jury. I'm not going to talk just to get even with the fellows who once threw me down. I'm going to talk because Landis ask-

VOICE OF OLD WORLD SOUNDS ACROSS ATLANTIC AND NEW WORLD ANSWERS OVER RADIO-TELEPHONE

BY DAVID P. SENTNER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The voice of the old world sounded across the Atlantic today and the voice of the new world echoed back.

At 8:44 o'clock this morning commercial radio-telephone service was inaugurated for the first time in history between New York and London.

The telephone conversation lasted five minutes and parties at both ends heard each other distinctly, although there was some static.

The buzz of a telephone bell marked a new stage in communication between the two worlds, a step that is a far cry from the days when letters sent by clipper ships, spanking across the seas in three or four weeks, were the only means of communication, a step that is even far in advance of the instantaneous cable flashes, the radio wave, sand the six-day ocean greyhounds that have afforded communication up to today.

The price of the new trans-ocean telephone service is $25 a minute.

The New York and London stations were tuned in at 8:42½. At 8:44 o'clock London and New York were ready to talk.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, sitting in the telephone company's office in New York, talked with Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, secretary of the general post office of Great Britain, for two minutes.

Then Sir Evelyn Murray, in London, talked to Gifford for three minutes.

"We could hear each other clearly," said Gifford, "although there was more static than during previous tests."

No Blare of Trumpets.

There was no blare of trumpets to the epoch-making ceremony. It was a simply staged affair—60 members of the official "family" of the American Telegraph and Telephone company with a dozen newspapermen clustered quietly around a green-baize table in the directors' room.

Twenty headpieces before an equal number of chairs around the table permitted the more fortunate occupants to share in this scientific achievement.

After an introductory address by Gifford to those present, giving a history of the research work over a period of 22 years which attained its successful climax today, he picked up the receiver of an ordinary telephone before him at the head of the table.

His guests, including the International News Service correspondent, adjusted their ear-pieces.

"Good Morning" Message.

"Hello," said Gifford quietly. "Will you give me Sir Evelyn Murray, secretary of the British post office in London, please."

There was a pause of a split second.

SPECIAL SALE OF BINNER CORSETS.

This is the most unusual corset opportunity it has been our privilege to present for some time. There are scores of pairs of Binner Corsets at this price.

Binner Corsets, as every woman who has worn them knows, are quality corsets. A woman cannot feel her best unless she knows she looks her best. Without the proper support, the most beautiful gown or suit will appear dowdy and commonplace.

The Binner Corset gives you the supreme confidence of knowing that your figure is perfectly corseted. Be sure to select the Binner that exactly suits your figure. Often the position of the boning, the shape of the gore or an elastic insert will make all the difference between a comfortable corset and one which is a trial to wear.

Binner Corsets are beautifully made from the highest quality plain coutil and fancy brocades—in flesh only.

They have low bust with slightly raised waistline.

We are closing out our stock of highly desirable Binner Corsets at the following reductions.

Minnesota Students Earn Money to Pay Way Through College

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Approximately 40 per cent of the men students at the University of Minnesota earn all of their way through school, E. E. Nicholson, dean of student affairs says in an article in the current issue of "The Minnesota Parent-Teacher," official organ of the Minnesota Congress of Parents and Teachers.

About 66 per cent of the men students earn at least part of their way he said, while of the women students approximately 40 per cent earn part of their way and 18 per cent all their way.

There are some people who boast that their ancestors came across in the Mayflower, while some others are equally happy because theirs came across with a couple of hundred thousand dollars.—Zanesville Signal.

The uplift's big job is to elevate our thoughts without depressing our spirits.—Greenville Advocate.

Don't Risk Pneumonia By Neglecting a Cold

If you have a cough or cold, don't neglect it during this pneumonia weather. A cough or cold weakens your resistance. If you let it "go down" into your chest it always causes congestion in your bronchial tubes—and these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

If you get pneumonia, call a doctor immediately. But if you have a threatening cold or cough—even bronchitis—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once! End it before inflammation goes down into the "danger zone."

Quickly and unfailingly Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. Real Medicine, reaching deep with its healing power, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the very first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth. The soothing, healing powers of this hospital-tested medicine are absorbed by the linings of throat, chest and bronchial tubes, just as ink is absorbed by a blotter. This is why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral so quickly stops the cough, drives out the cold and brings sure, lasting relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is used by doctors and hospital clinics—for children and grown people. Even sick children love its flavor. At all druggists. 60c; trial or regular size. $1.00

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1927.

Starving Public Servants

That Uncle Sam is starving most of his employes is the charge of Congressman Richard Welch of San Francisco. His figures show that 75 per cent of the federal employes working under the classified civil service receive $1,320 or less. Could you bring up a family of five on $1,320 a year? Or of two?

The National Bureau of Economic Research says that it takes $1,800 a year to rear a family of five under decent conditions. The Postoffice Laborers' union has figured $1,945 as the minimum. Of the two, the union ought to be the closer to the actual facts.

If this is the situation, congress' duty is plain. Look at that half-billion treasury surplus. This is too rich a country to starve its servants. The machinery of the government could not be carried on without the thousands of clerks and minor officials who are being so stingily treated. Congress should guarantee them a living wage, or confess the rest of us to be either parasites or misers.

The Mexican Game

The Mexican government's bark is usually worse than its bite, since the days of Huerta and Carranza. President Calles is harder to get along with than was his immediate predecessor, Gen. Obregon, whose honesty and fairness won the general confidence of Americans. Nevertheless Calles and the truculent foreign minister who speaks for him may not act so boldly as they talk.

It does not seem likely that the Mexican government is much more eager to confiscate American property than the American government is to have it do so. The Mexican statesmen must realize what a heap of trouble that would get them into. If they have had any serious thoughts of confiscation, the chances are that they will hedge, after a decent interval. There have been no concrete offenses yet.

This isn't the first poker game played between governments. And the Mexican authorities must know that, whatever their theoretical "national rights" may be in the matter—and of that there is serious question—in practice, they hold a rather poor hand.

They know that Americans do not wish any trouble with Mexico, and will not resort to armed intervention to rescue oil properties belonging to American owners who refuse to trade titles for long-term leases. They also know that Americans like to see property rights safeguarded and business obligations kept, and that the American business arm is as powerful in the long run, to reward or punish, as is the governmental arm.

For Mexico's own future prosperity, she must be fair about American investments. So it is likely that the Mexican authorities, not being fools, are now figuring out a way to be fair, while maintaining the principle they contend for, as nearly as possible.

Sea Exploration

Where will explorers next go? The world is now pretty well combed over. Spots around each pole remain, and there are said to be parts of Arabia of which the western world knows nothing. But none of these possesses one tenth the possibilities of new discovery that are presented by the sea.

Such is the opinion of Prof. W. E. Allen of the Scripps Institution for Oceanography, who has just been addressing a convention of scientists in Philadelphia. No man has even seen the miles of depth that lie below the surface of the ocean. Grappling irons have brought up strange plants and stranger creatures, but all oceanic exploration up to date is just the merest beginning.

Much valuable information could be obtained from a deeper study of the ocean. The changes that go on under the salt water are reflected on land by earthquakes. If we knew more about the ocean, we might foresee and avoid disaster on land. We could also get many valuable products that would help all the way from the fish market to the jeweler's shop.

Here, then, is a hint for the public-spirited rich man. If he wants to do good and perhaps get some fame for himself, he can endow an expedition to explore the depths of the sea.

Gold Coins And Nickels

The week immediately following Christmas revealed the interesting fact that five-dollar gold-pieces make a satisfactory substitute for nickels in pay-telephones.

This deserves notice because it has demonstrated human honesty once more. In New York City 69 gold coins were found when telephone company employes went around emptying the pay 'phone boxes. The coins were turned in to headquarters and in a number of cases were promptly restored to patrons who discovered their mistake and applied for a refund.

It deserves note, too, because it shows show costly carelessness may be. Four dollars and ninety-five cents is a big sum to pay for one telephone call, especially when it doesn't have any more effect on speed and accuracy than a nickel would have. Perhaps two coins of such different values should not be so nearly of a size. Persons who receive the gold ones for presents should either keep them entirely away from other small change or turn them into recognizable bills and silver immediately.

All's quiet on the Rio Grande—no sound but the bubbling of oil wells.

THE PLAN OF THE SHUT-IN.

A gentleman who resided in the heart of the Corn Belt paid his first visit to Chicago. With him came two friends. The three of them occupied one large room in a Loop hotel.

On the second day of sight-seeing the Corn Belter's feet gave out on him, as the saying is. After the soothing contact of ploughed ground and dirt road his soles ached terribly from so much pounding on cement and asphalt.

Leaving his companions to finish out the evening at a theatre, he returned to the hotel and went to bed. When the other two arrived shortly before midnight, they found the door of their room locked. They pounded on the panels until the sleeper awakened.

"Let us in, Zach!" said one of them impatiently.

"Let yourself in," he answered. "The key is outside there in the hall."

"How does it come to be outside when you're inside?" demanded one of them.

"Oh, after I got undressed I throwed it over the transom so's you fellers could git in without no trouble. It must be layin' on the floor"

They found the key and admitted themselves. As they entered one of them asked:

"Say, Zach, what would you have done, locked in here this way if they'd been a fire?"

"Why, I wouldn't have went."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 7.—Los Angeles expects to be larger than London and is moving confidently ahead on that basis. It has the expansion situation by the throat and there will be no narrow, crooked streets to widen and straighten out later on.

On the theory there is plenty of room it will never be a skyscraper city. Buildings are restricted to 150 feet in height. An idea of its size may be gained by this: California covers 158,000 square miles. The area of Great Britain is less than 90,000 square miles.

Britain has more than 42,000,000. California's population is 5,000,000. So much for figures. They may mean much, or nothing. The big results depend on California people. San Francisco has not been overshadowed by Los Angeles save in sudden growth. There is room for each.

The Golden Gate city remains secure, unruffled and a little aloof. It is rich in historical romance and is one of the three cities to which fictionists turn for color. The other two are New York and New Orleans. To see San Francisco is to love it. It has dignity and rare charm.

No other city in America for instance offers a haven for arts and letters that spells the rare fellowship of the Bohemian Club. Then there are the dinky cable cars over Nob Hill, the docks and wharves, the squealing sea gulls, the hills of Sausalito and the ancient and modern craft in the harbor.

And the proud, majestic city itself which rose in splendor Phoenix like from the ashes of disaster. I know of no city standing so splendidly as an entablature to American pluck as this. One feels like approaching it hat in hand.

There is good natured bantering between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The same exists between Amon Carter's Ft. Worth and Dallas in Texas but each has the good sense to realize the brotherhood under the skin. They remind me of the Price boys back home. They were always having boyhood fisticuffs among themselves but let an outsider step in and all would fly to the rescue with the agility of a steel trap.

Los Angeles has much of the garrulity of leisure. There are innumerable tourists and the retired here who have time to talk. It was a pleasant experience today in a restaurant to be seated among six strangers. In no time we were chatting amiably like old friends. One peep from a stranger in a cafe in New York and unconsciously one hand goes to the wallet and the other to the watch. And to stifle the cry of "treason!" I might add I love no city so whole heartedly as that gay, reckless Bagdad on the Hudson.

There are—unless my statistical department is mixed—more automobiles here per capita than in any other city. Traffic is handled with neatness and dispatch. The cars of Hollywood are the grandest in interior equipment and flamboyant exterior. I am told of one movie queen's car that is equipped with a palm sized classic library, a radio, a hidden uke, an electric button that makes the seat a chaise longue and some other things I cannot recall.

Correct Posture—I.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—The importance of correct posture is being stressed by health authorities and it is particularly urged that children be taught how to stand, walk, and sit properly. The United States Children's Bureau has taken an active interest in this matter and has just released two pamphlets on the subject. One of them contains exercises designed for children suffering from the effects of poor posture, and for use in clinics, while the other contains those which are preventive and are intended for the normal child and for use in schools.

There has been a growing recognition of the value of a posture program in the school curriculum. It is said that at present posture is not taught correctly in the family, at school, or by the medical profession as a whole. This is evidenced by the results of physicial examinations at schools and colleges and of the army examinations during the World war. Poor posture is much more prevalent than good posture. Defects of posture noted in small children in the graded schools are duplicated in college students. It is often said by the average observer that defects of posture are particularly emphasized in the college student. Of recent years this has been especially commented upon in regard to the craze for the so-called collegiate shuffling gait with bent knees and general loose body carriage. It would seem from the appearance of the average student seen about the streets that it is decidedly bad form to walk briskly with upright carriage.

What is indicated as perfect or even good posture has also been impossible for the young girl of fashion of recent years. The style of dress has made any sembance of figure a decided embarrassment and any woman thus handicapped has been hard put to it to reduce herself to the proportions of a slab. Dresses are not only made on straight lines but they are so scant that it is particularly impossible to get into them unless a woman is built along equally straight lines. When it is impossibe to do away entirely with the curves it is necessary for the woman to adjust her posture to the dress so that a slab effect may be achieved.

Posture Clinics Necessary.

It is now pointed out that incorrect posture may result in obscure but distressing ailments of later life. It is just as important that chronic ailments due to continued habits of wrong living and maladjustments of the body to its environment should be combated, as it is to fight those which are the result of infections, deficiency, diseases, or toxins. Posture clinics are therefor definitely necessary to relieve children suffering from ailments due to poor posture.

The new pamphlet of the Children's Bureau says that the program of the future is so to train the individual from early life as to prevent many of the present ailments which are due to poor posture. The interest of the individual in his own maximum physical efficiency should be aroused by education. He should be taught that the freer and more economical use of the body will not only prevent the chronic ailments that may be due directly to poor posture but will conserve energy and thus increase the body's power to resist disease.

A number of ailments may be the result of incorrect posture, although it is emphasized that good posture is not a panacea. Only when no organic cause can be found to explain the symptoms should poor posture be considered the important cause. However, there are times when poor posture may be associated with other factors, and the general condition of the patient may be improved by correcting the posture so as to increase the reserve energy with which to combat the other factors.

Backache may be due specifically to poor posture, as a result of the strain of the supporting muscles and ligaments of the spine in maintaining the body in an erect attitude in a position of mechanical disadvantage. Backache between the shoulder blades or at the small of the back, as well as many headaches at the base of the skull may be relieved, it is said, by balancing the entire spine in its position of normal curvature.

Constipation also may be due specifically to poor posture, and similarly abdominal pain, chest pain, and pain in the legs. Insomnia, poor or capricious appetite, and general disability, or neurasthenia, may be due indirectly to poor posture with its waste of available energy and the subsequent bodily fatigue. Malnutrition and cyclic vomiting are conditions often improved by correcting body posture. When the patient has learned to use his body economically he will suffer less from gastro-intestinal stasis and fatigue which are possible causes of these complaints. As said before, however, it is necessary to be sure that the complaints of the patient are not caused by organic disorders before any hope is held out that his condition will be relieved by improving his body carriage.

Where To Establish Clinics.

Malnutrition and cyclic vomiting are conditions often improved by correcting body posture. When the patient has learned to use his body economically he will suffer less from gastro-intestinal stasis and fatigue which are possible causes of these complaints. As said before, however, it is necessary to be sure that the complaints of the patient are not caused by organic disorders before any hope is held out that his condition will be relieved by improving his body carriage.

Where To Establish Clinics.

Dr. Armin Klein director of the posture clinic of the Massachusetts General Hospital, says that the logical

30-YEAR MINE FIRE QUENCHED

Millions of Dollars Saved When Ohio Blaze is Checked.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—Fire, which burned during the past 30 years in mine No. 3, belonging to the Sunday Creek Coal company, has been extinguished, H Hickman, superintendent, announced today.

Mining officials estimated that millions of dollars have been saved to the coal industry near Corning and Congo as a result of putting out the flames in the mine.

The fire, which started during a coal strike, destroyed millions of tons of coal. It was similar to that which originated in a mine at New Straitsville and spread to adjoining territory.

Miners who had refused to work near the burning No. 3 mine, will now be employed on a 200-acre tract of 12-foot coal, worth $500,000, which will be mined immediately, it was announced.

STATE REVENUE FALLING OFF

Decrease in Income During Past Three Years Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7. — Figures showing that the state's revenues fell off during the past three years are contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy.

Revenues for 1923, according to the report, aggregated $51 138,284; for 1924, $50.225,248; for 1925, $44,241,912, and for 1926, $47,610,637.

"This decline," the report reads, "has been due to the abatement of the four special tax levies for highway construction, educational building purposes, institutional building purposes and for educational equalization.

"The revenues of the general revenue fund remained practically constant, but, with the repeal of the highway construction and the educational equalization levies, the demands upon the general revenue fund have been greatly increased during the last two fiscal years.

"The weakness of a system of special funds becomes apparent from an examination of the receipts of these state funds during the last few years," declared the report. "When larger amounts of revenue are designated for special purposes, the inevitable result is over-financing in some funds and under-financing in others."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

Starving Public Servants

That Uncle Sam is starving most of his employes is the charge of Congressman Richard Welch of San Francisco. His figures show that 75 per cent of the federal employes working under the classified civil service receive $1,320 or less. Could you bring up a family of five on $1,320 a year? Or of two?

The National Bureau of Economic Research says that it takes $1,800 a year to rear a family of five under decent conditions. The Postoffice Laborers' union has figured $1,945 as the minimum. Of the two, the union ought to be the closer to the actual facts.

If this is the situation, congress' duty is plain. Look at that half-billion treasury surplus. This is too rich a country to starve its servants. The machinery of the government could not be carried on without the thousands of clerks and minor officials who are being so stingily treated. Congress should guarantee them a living wage, or confess the rest of us to be either parasites or misers.

The Mexican Game

The Mexican government's bark is usually worse than its bite, since the days of Huerta and Carranza. President Calles is harder to get along with than was his immediate predecessor, Gen. Obregon, whose honesty and fairness won the general confidence of Americans. Nevertheless Calles and the truculent foreign minister who speaks for him may not act so boldly as they talk.

It does not seem likely that the Mexican government is much more eager to confiscate American property than the American government is to have it do so. The Mexican statesmen must realize what a heap of trouble that would get them into. If they have had any serious thoughts of confiscation, the chances are that they will hedge, after a decent interval. There have been no concrete offenses yet.

This isn't the first poker game played between governments. And the Mexican authorities must know that, whatever their theoretical "national rights" may be in the matter—and of that there is serious question—in practice, they hold a rather poor hand.

They know that Americans do not wish any trouble with Mexico, and will not resort to armed intervention to rescue oil properties belonging to American owners who refuse to trade titles for long-term leases. They also know that Americans like to see property rights safeguarded and business obligations kept, and that the American business arm is as powerful in the long run, to reward or punish, as is the governmental arm.

For Mexico's own future prosperity, she must be fair about American investments. So it is likely that the Mexican authorities, not being fools, are now figuring out a way to be fair, while maintaining the principle they contend for, as nearly as possible.

Sea Exploration

Where will explorers next go? The world is now pretty well combed over. Spots around each pole remain, and there are said to be parts of Arabia of which the western world knows nothing. But none of these possesses one tenth the possibilities of new discovery that are presented by the sea.

Such is the opinion of Prof. W. E. Allen of the Scripps Institution for Oceanography, who has just been addressing a convention of scientists in Philadelphia. No man has even seen the miles of depth that lie below the surface of the ocean. Grappling irons have brought up strange plants and stranger creatures, but all oceanic exploration up to date is just the merest beginning.

Much valuable information could be obtained from a deeper study of the ocean. The changes that go on under the salt water are reflected on land by earthquakes. If we knew more about the ocean, we might foresee and avoid disaster on land. We could also get many valuable products that would help all the way from the fish market to the jeweler's shop.

Here, then, is a hint for the public-spirited rich man. If he wants to do good and perhaps get some fame for himself, he can endow an expedition to explore the depths of the sea.

Gold Coins And Nickels

The week immediately following Christmas revealed the interesting fact that five-dollar gold-pieces make a satisfactory substitute for nickels in pay-telephones.

This deserves notice because it has demonstrated human honesty once more. In New York City 69 gold coins were found when telephone company employes went around emptying the pay 'phone boxes. The coins were turned in to headquarters and in a number of cases were promptly restored to patrons who discovered their mistake and applied for a refund.

It deserves note, too, because it shows show costly carelessness may be. Four dollars and ninety-five cents is a big sum to pay for one telephone call, especially when it doesn't have any more effect on speed and accuracy than a nickel would have. Perhaps two coins of such different values should not be so nearly of a size. Persons who receive the gold ones for presents should either keep them entirely away from other small change or turn them into recognizable bills and silver immediately.

All's quiet on the Rio Grande—no sound but the bubbling of oil wells.

THE PLAN OF THE SHUT-IN.

A gentleman who resided in the heart of the Corn Belt paid his first visit to Chicago. With him came two friends. The three of them occupied one large room in a Loop hotel.

On the second day of sight-seeing the Corn Belter's feet gave out on him, as the saying is. After the soothing contact of ploughed ground and dirt road his soles ached terribly from so much pounding on cement and asphalt.

Leaving his companions to finish out the evening at a theatre, he returned to the hotel and went to bed. When the other two arrived shortly before midnight, they found the door of their room locked. They pounded on the panels until the sleeper awakened.

"Let us in, Zach!" said one of them impatiently.

"Let yourself in," he answered. "The key is outside there in the hall."

"How does it come to be outside when you're inside?" demanded one of them.

"Oh, after I got undressed I throwed it over the transom so's you fellers could git in without no trouble. It must be layin' on the floor"

They found the key and admitted themselves. As they entered one of them asked:

"Say, Zach, what would you have done, locked in here this way if they'd been a fire?"

"Why, I wouldn't have went."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 7.—Los Angeles expects to be larger than London and is moving confidently ahead on that basis. It has the expansion situation by the throat and there will be no narrow, crooked streets to widen and straighten out later on.

On the theory there is plenty of room it will never be a skyscraper city. Buildings are restricted to 150 feet in height. An idea of its size may be gained by this: California covers 158,000 square miles. The area of Great Britain is less than 90,000 square miles.

Britain has more than 42,000,000. California's population is 5,000,000. So much for figures. They may mean much, or nothing. The big results depend on California people. San Francisco has not been overshadowed by Los Angeles save in sudden growth. There is room for each.

The Golden Gate city remains secure, unruffled and a little aloof. It is rich in historical romance and is one of the three cities to which fictionists turn for color. The other two are New York and New Orleans. To see San Francisco is to love it. It has dignity and rare charm.

No other city in America for instance offers a haven for arts and letters that spells the rare fellowship of the Bohemian Club. Then there are the dinky cable cars over Nob Hill, the docks and wharves, the squealing sea gulls, the hills of Sausalito and the ancient and modern craft in the harbor.

And the proud, majestic city itself which rose in splendor Phoenix like from the ashes of disaster. I know of no city standing so splendidly as an entablature to American pluck as this. One feels like approaching it hat in hand.

There is good natured bantering between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The same exists between Amon Carter's Ft. Worth and Dallas in Texas but each has the good sense to realize the brotherhood under the skin. They remind me of the Price boys back home. They were always having boyhood fisticuffs among themselves but let an outsider step in and all would fly to the rescue with the agility of a steel trap.

Los Angeles has much of the garrulity of leisure. There are innumerable tourists and the retired here who have time to talk. It was a pleasant experience today in a restaurant to be seated among six strangers. In no time we were chatting amiably like old friends. One peep from a stranger in a cafe in New York and unconsciously one hand goes to the wallet and the other to the watch. And to stifle the cry of "treason!" I might add I love no city so wholeheartedly as that gay, reckless Bagdad on the Hudson.

There are—unless my statistical department is mixed—more automobiles here per capita than in any other city. Traffic is handled with neatness and dispatch. The cars of Hollywood are the grandest in interior equipment and flamboyant exterior. Correct Posture—I.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—The importance of correct posture is being stressed by health authorities and it is particularly urged that children be taught how to stand, walk, and sit properly. The United States Children's Bureau has taken an active interest in this matter and has just released two pamphlets on the subject. One of them contains exercises designed for children suffering from the effects of poor posture, and for use in clinics, while the other contains those which are preventive and are intended for the normal child and for use in schools.

There has been a growing recognition of the value of a posture program in the school curriculum. It is said that at present posture is not taught correctly in the family, at school, or by the medical profession as a whole. This is evidenced by the results of physicial examinations at schools and colleges and of the army examinations during the World war. Poor posture is much more prevalent than good posture. Defects of posture noted in small children in the graded schools are duplicated in college students. It is often said by the average observer that defects of posture are particularly emphasized in the college student. Of recent years this has been especially commented upon in regard to the craze for the so-called collegiate shuffling gait with bent knees and general loose body carriage. It would seem from the appearance of the average student seen about the streets that it is decidedly bad form to walk briskly with upright carriage.

What is indicated as perfect or even good posture has also been impossible for the young girl of fashion of recent years. The style of dress has made any sembance of figure a decided embarrassment and any woman thus handicapped has been hard put to it to reduce herself to the proportions of a slab. Dresses are not only made on straight lines but they are so scant that it is particularly impossible to get into them unless a woman is built along equally straight lines. When it is impossibe to do away entirely with the curves it is necessary for the woman to adjust her posture to the dress so that a slab effect may be achieved.

Posture Clinics Necessary.

It is now pointed out that incorrect posture may result in obscure but distressing ailments of later life. It is just as important that chronic ailments due to continued habits of wrong living and maladjustments of the body to its environment should be combated, as it is to fight those which are the result of infections, deficiency, diseases, or toxins. Posture clinics are therefor definitely necessary to relieve children suffering from ailments due to poor posture.

Backache may be due specifically to poor posture, as a result of the strain of the supporting muscles and ligaments of the spine in maintaining the body in an erect attitude in a position of mechanical disadvantage. Backache between the shoulder blades or at the small of the back, as well as many headaches at the base of the skull may be relieved, it is said, by balancing the entire spine in its position of normal curvature.

Constipation also may be due specifically to poor posture, and similarly abdominal pain, chest pain, and pain in the legs. Insomnia, poor or capricious appetite, and general disability, or neurasthenia, may be due indirectly to poor posture with its waste of available energy and the subsequent bodily fatigue. Malnutrition and cyclic vomiting are conditions often improved by correcting body posture. Starving Public Servants

That Uncle Sam is starving most of his employes is the charge of Congressman Richard Welch of San Francisco. His figures show that 75 per cent of the federal employes working under the classified civil service receive $1,320 or less. Could you bring up a family of five on $1,320 a year? Or of two?

The National Bureau of Economic Research says that it takes $1,800 a year to rear a family of five under decent conditions. The Postoffice Laborers' union has figured $1,945 as the minimum. Of the two, the union ought to be the closer to the actual facts.

If this is the situation, congress' duty is plain. Look at that half-billion treasury surplus. This is too rich a country to starve its servants. The machinery of the government could not be carried on without the thousands of clerks and minor officials who are being so stingily treated. Congress should guarantee them a living wage, or confess the rest of us to be either parasites or misers.

The Mexican Game

The Mexican government's bark is usually worse than its bite, since the days of Huerta and Carranza. President Calles is harder to get along with than was his immediate predecessor, Gen. Obregon, whose honesty and fairness won the general confidence of Americans. Nevertheless Calles and the truculent foreign minister who speaks for him may not act so boldly as they talk.

It does not seem likely that the Mexican government is much more eager to confiscate American property than the American government is to have it do so. The Mexican statesmen must realize what a heap of trouble that would get them into. If they have had any serious thoughts of confiscation, the chances are that they will hedge, after a decent interval. There have been no concrete offenses yet.

This isn't the first poker game played between governments. And the Mexican authorities must know that, whatever their theoretical "national rights" may be in the matter—and of that there is serious question—in practice, they hold a rather poor hand.

They know that Americans do not wish any trouble with Mexico, and will not resort to armed intervention to rescue oil properties belonging to American owners who refuse to trade titles for long-term leases. They also know that Americans like to see property rights safeguarded and business obligations kept, and that the American business arm is as powerful in the long run, to reward or punish, as is the governmental arm.

For Mexico's own future prosperity, she must be fair about American investments. So it is likely that the Mexican authorities, not being fools, are now figuring out a way to be fair, while maintaining the principle they contend for, as nearly as possible.

Sea Exploration

Where will explorers next go? The world is now pretty well combed over. Spots around each pole remain, and there are said to be parts of Arabia of which the western world knows nothing. But none of these possesses one tenth the possibilities of new discovery that are presented by the sea.

Such is the opinion of Prof. W. E. Allen of the Scripps Institution for Oceanography, who has just been addressing a convention of scientists in Philadelphia. No man has even seen the miles of depth that lie below the surface of the ocean. Grappling irons have brought up strange plants and stranger creatures, but all oceanic exploration up to date is just the merest beginning.

Much valuable information could be obtained from a deeper study of the ocean. The changes that go on under the salt water are reflected on land by earthquakes. If we knew more about the ocean, we might foresee and avoid disaster on land. We could also get many valuable products that would help all the way from the fish market to the jeweler's shop.

Here, then, is a hint for the public-spirited rich man. If he wants to do good and perhaps get some fame for himself, he can endow an expedition to explore the depths of the sea.

Gold Coins And Nickels

The week immediately following Christmas revealed the interesting fact that five-dollar gold-pieces make a satisfactory substitute for nickels in pay-telephones.

This deserves notice because it has demonstrated human honesty once more. In New York City 69 gold coins were found when telephone company employes went around emptying the pay 'phone boxes. The coins were turned in to headquarters and in a number of cases were promptly restored to patrons who discovered their mistake and applied for a refund.

It deserves note, too, because it shows show costly carelessness may be. Four dollars and ninety-five cents is a big sum to pay for one telephone call, especially when it doesn't have any more effect on speed and accuracy than a nickel would have. Perhaps two coins of such different values should not be so nearly of a size. Persons who receive the gold ones for presents should either keep them entirely away from other small change or turn them into recognizable bills and silver immediately.

THE PLAN OF THE SHUT-IN.

A gentleman who resided in the heart of the Corn Belt paid his first visit to Chicago. With him came two friends. The three of them occupied one large room in a Loop hotel.

On the second day of sight-seeing the Corn Belter's feet gave out on him, as the saying is. After the soothing contact of ploughed ground and dirt road his soles ached terribly from so much pounding on cement and asphalt.

Leaving his companions to finish out the evening at a theatre, he returned to the hotel and went to bed. When the other two arrived shortly before midnight, they found the door of their room locked. They pounded on the panels until the sleeper awakened.

"Let us in, Zach!" said one of them impatiently.

"Let yourself in," he answered. "The key is outside there in the hall."

"How does it come to be outside when you're inside?" demanded one of them.

"Oh, after I got undressed I throwed it over the transom so's you fellers could git in without no trouble. It must be layin' on the floor"

They found the key and admitted themselves. As they entered one of them asked:

"Say, Zach, what would you have done, locked in here this way if they'd been a fire?"

"Why, I wouldn't have went."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 7.—Los Angeles expects to be larger than London and is moving confidently ahead on that basis. It has the expansion situation by the throat and there will be no narrow, crooked streets to widen and straighten out later on.

On the theory there is plenty of room it will never be a skyscraper city. Buildings are restricted to 150 feet in height. An idea of its size may be gained by this: California covers 158,000 square miles. The area of Great Britain is less than 90,000 square miles.

Britain has more than 42,000,000. California's population is 5,000,000. So much for figures. They may mean much, or nothing. The big results depend on California people. San Francisco has not been overshadowed by Los Angeles save in sudden growth. There is room for each.

The Golden Gate city remains secure, unruffled and a little aloof. It is rich in historical romance and is one of the three cities to which fictionists turn for color. The other two are New York and New Orleans. To see San Francisco is to love it. It has dignity and rare charm.

No other city in America for instance offers a haven for arts and letters that spells the rare fellowship of the Bohemian Club. Then there are the dinky cable cars over Nob Hill, the docks and wharves, the squealing sea gulls, the hills of Sausalito and the anciert and modern craft in the harbor.

And the proud, majestic city itself which rose in splendor Phoenix like from the ashes of disaster. I know of no city standin so splendidly as an entablature to American pluck as this. One feels like approaching it hat in hand.

There is good natured bantering between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The same exists between Amon Carter's Ft. Worth and Dallas in Texas but each has the good sense to realize the brotherhood under the skin They remind me of the Price boys back home. They were always having boyhood fisticuffs among themselves but let an outsider step in and all would fly to the rescue with the agility of a steel trap.

Los Angeles has much of the garrulity of leisure. There are innumerable tourists and the retired here who have time to talk. It was a pleasant experience today in a restaurant to be seated among six strangers. In no time we were chatting amiably like old friends. One peep from a stranger in a cafe in New York and unconsciously one hand goes to the wallet and the other to the watch. And to stifle the cry of "treason!" I might add I love no city so whole heartedly as that gay, reckless Bagdad on the Hudson.

There are—unless my statistical department is mixed—more automobiles here per capita than in any other city. Traffic is handled with neatness and dispatch. The cars of Hollywood are the grandest in interior equipment and flamboyant exterior. I am told of one movie queen's car that is equipped with a palm sized classic library, a radio, a hidden uke, an electric button that makes the seat a chaise longue and some other things I cannot recall.

One misses much here not playing bridge or golf. For instance Bebe Daniels invited me to a bridge party tonight and Adolph Menjou to play golf in the morning.

Venice is the Coney Island of Los Angeles. A short drive brings you to coasters and dips spun high in the clouds. It is unusual to see young girls in summer frocks with their coatless men milling about in December.

30-YEAR MINE FIRE QUENCHED

Millions of Dollars Saved When Ohio Blaze is Checked.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—Fire, which burned during the past 30 years in mine No. 3, belonging to the Sunday Creek Coal company, has been extinguished, H Hickman, superintendent, announced today.

Mining officials estimated that millions of dollars have been saved to the coal industry near Corning and Congo as a result of putting out the flames in the mine.

The fire, which started during a coal strike, destroyed millions of tons of coal. It was similar to that which originated in a mine at New Straitsville and spread to adjoining territory.

Miners who had refused to work near the burning No. 3 mine, will now be employed on a 200-acre tract of 12-foot coal, worth $500,000, which will be mined immediately, it was announced.

STATE REVENUE FALLING OFF

Decrease in Income During Past Three Years Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7. — Figures showing that the state's revenues fell off during the past three years are contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy.

Revenues for 1923, according to the report, aggregated $51 138.284; for 1924, $50.225,248; for 1925, $44,241.912, and for 1926, $47,610,637.

"This decline," the report reads, "has been due to the abatement of the four special tax levies for highway construction, educational building purposes, institutional building purposes and for educational equalization.

"The revenues of the general revenue fund remained practically constant, but, with the repeal of the highway construction and the educational equalization levies, the demands upon the general revenue fund have been greatly increased during the last two fiscal years.

"The weakness of a system of special funds becomes apparent from an examination of the receipts of these state funds during the last few years," declared the report. "When larger amounts of revenue are designated for special purposes, the inevitable result is over-financing in some funds and under-financing in others."

30-YEAR MINE FIRE QUENCHED

Millions of Dollars Saved When Ohio Blaze is Checked.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—Fire, which burned during the past 30 years in mine No. 3, belonging to the Sunday Creek Coal company, has been extinguished, H Hickman, superintendent, announced today.

Mining officials estimated that millions of dollars have been saved to the coal industry near Corning and Congo as a result of putting out the flames in the mine.

The fire, which started during a coal strike, destroyed millions of tons of coal. It was similar to that which originated in a mine at New Straitsville and spread to adjoining territory.

Miners who had refused to work near the burning No. 3 mine, will now be employed on a 200-acre tract of 12-foot coal, worth $500,000, which will be mined immediately, it was announced.

STATE REVENUE FALLING OFF

Decrease in Income During Past Three Years Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7. — Figures showing that the state's revenues fell off during the past three years are contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy.

Revenues for 1923, according to the report, aggregated $51 138,284; for 1924, $50,225,248; for 1925, $44,241,912, and for 1926, $47,610,637.

"This decline," the report reads, "has been due to the abatement of the four special tax levies for highway construction, educational building purposes, institutional building purposes and for educational equalization.

"The revenues of the general revenue fund remained practically constant, but, with the repeal of the highway construction and the educational equalization levies, the demands upon the general revenue fund have been greatly increased during the last two fiscal years.

"The weakness of a system of special funds becomes apparent from an examination of the receipts of these state funds during the last few years," declared the report. "When larger amounts of revenue are designated for special purposes, the inevitable result is over-financing in some funds and under-financing in others."

The Little White Hag

SYNOPSIS.

Quexter, the narrator of the tale, is an American employed by the American and Overseas bank in Paris. He starts for Geneva to see the workings of the League of Nations, stopping at Dijon between trains. He is accosted by a small, undistinguished looking American who asks to share his room, stating that he is a schoolmaster. As the two lunch at the inn their attention is attracted by two people a stout, flashily dressed man and a young and attractive woman.

The "schoolmaster" seems nervous, fussing about the locks on the door and windows of their room and insisting on leaving the lights burning all night. Quexter discovers that the story he had told about being imperfectly acquainted with French is false. Quexter sleeps heavily and next morning the schoolmaster is gone—through the window evidently, as the door is still locked on the inside.

Arrived in Geneva, Quexter visits the League of Nations headquarters, learning of the League's investigations into the opium traffic. He goes to the municipal casino or kursaal and at the next table sits the fat man he had seen at Dijon with another man, a Jew, and a woman of the underworld. He overhears their conversation in which the fat man complains about a woman called "Stella," whom he does not trust, and a mysterious "Center" under whose orders the two men and "Stella" seem to be. A dancing girl carrying a basket of flowers steps to the center of the floor and Baldassare, the fat man, exclaims, "Stella at last!" She throws two bouquets, Quexter picking up one and the fat man the other. In his bunch Quexter finds a handkerchief which he uses to wrap of his finger when his taxi meets with an accident and it is cut. He sends the handkerchief to the laundry next morning. The fat man, Baldassare Marce, makes him a call.

Marce asks for the handkerchief, alleging that he is the girl's lover. Quexter refuses.

What further persuasions he uses and with what result are told in the next chapter.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

He looked at me helplessly for a moment, with a queer air of desperation. I saw that he had no intention of leaving me. On the contrary, he apparently came to the conclusion that, having exhausted one line of attack he must necessarily try another. He suddenly became quiet and businesslike. He dived a fat hand into a breast pocket and pulled out a pocketbook.

"I quite agree with you," he said. "We have done enough talking. But I want the handkerchief, and I am prepared to pay for it. I'll offer you a fancy price. What would you say to a thousand francs? That's as near as possible to two hundred dollars.

This was a new development and it went beyond anything I had anticipated. There was clearly more in this than the gratification of a mere whim, and it began to dawn on me that the waters were deeper than I had as yet imagined.

I made no sign of accepting his offer, but looked at him warily, and, I hope, almostly wholly inscrutably.

He leaned forward and continued in a low confidential tone.

"See here," he said. "What do you want? I have no time to argue. I'm late as it is. If a thousand francs is not enough, take two thousand."

And rapidly detaching two thousand-franc notes from his pocketbook, he thrust them across the table at the same time winking his damaged eye.

"You are a man of the world," he continued; "you know what ladies are, so terribly exacting."

He leaned across the table and grimaced at me, with a clumsy attempt at good fellowship which completed my disgust.

"I am not accustomed to being bribed," I said coldly. "And I'm afraid that the handkerchief is not for sale.

He looked at me stupidly for a moment, as though he were trying to master the fact that I had actualy refused him. Then he brought his fat fist crashing down upon the table so that the cups and plates jumped into the air.

"Not for sale," he blustered. "I give you fair warning, Sir, I came here to get that handkerchief, and I mean to have it."

"I'm sorry, Sir I am not, as I said, to be bribed. Still less am I to be bullied."

He looked at me for a moment, and seeing that I was not now to be moved, he got heavily to his feet. Turning my back on him, I pressed a bell which stood by the wall.

It was answered by one of the hotel servants.

"Show this gentleman out," I said. "And I am not in the hotel if he calls again."

Signor Marce glared at me, and for a moment I thought he would assault me. But, controlling himself with an obvious effort, he turned to go. At the door he paused.

"You will be sorry for this," he said. "You haven't by any means heard the last of it." And he lumbered off in the wake of the gray page.

It took me some time to recover my composure. I had been grossly insulted by a stranger in a public hotel, and the pretext was so extraordinary that the incident left me strangely uneasy.

I looked at my watch and found it lacked but a quarter to eleven, the hour at which the League Committee on dangerous drugs was due to assemble, and I was still anxious to attend it.

I went upstairs and fetched my hat. Arrived in my room, I felt sufficiently curious about the handkerchief to look into the linen basket, but it had already been dispatched to the laundry. On my way out of the hotel, I stopped to ask the concierge whether he knew the man who had just called on me, but he replied that he had never seen him before.

I walked along the quai towards the headquarters of the League, turning the incident of the interview over in my mind. Signor Marce had clearly been lying throughout our conversation. Everything that he had said about being the lover of the dancer was nonsense. His anxiety to get the handkerchief was, however, entirely genuine. What was the motive? What possible reason could there be for attaching such manifest importance to a token which in itself appeared to be wholly insignificant?

Walking along the quai to the offices of the League of Natiots, I did my best to subdue the curiosity which these apparently trivial occurrences had aroused. I had come to Geneva to see the League, and I had been lucky enough to strike a moment when a question of some importance to my own country was under discussion. I knew something of the difficulties involved—the immemorial habits of the Far East, which complicated the problem of the production of opium; the important financial interests of the great European drug factories; the inexhaustible ingenuity of the smugglers and middlemen. The influence of the American delegation would, I understood, be wholly on the side of suppression. Our government was doing its utmost to deal with the evils of morphine and cocaine, and, realizing that the vital centers of the traffic were on the European continent, had accepted an invitation to attend the League Committee.

I arrived in the committee room just as the members were taking their seats and settled myself in a window among the journalists and diplomats who constituted the audience.

It was a sufficiently novel experience to drive from my mind the incidents of the morning. It was a pleasant room, and through the open windows the song of a blackbird and the spraying of water on the lawns of the garden broke the monotony of the voices inside. The chestnuts and tulip trees were in bloom, and beyond the quai, white under the morning sun, the lake was fantastically blue under a clear sky, fretted at the rim with the serried pines of the Voirons, the distant shoulders of Alps, and that shapeliest of mountains, the Mole so often mistaken by enthusiastic travelers for Mont Blanc himself.

Around the table of the Committee were men of all accent and complexions. China, Japan and Siam stood for the native East, brought into uneasy contact with the white world. Lean officials who had done the work of Europe in the distant countries of the Orient—French, Dutch, and British—presented the Eastern imperial view, while European commerce was represented by delegates of an aspect less ascetic but of an authority by no means less pronounced.

The chief paradox of the moment was the fact that the country within whose limits we were assembled and from which the good fight was being so energetically directed, had been cited that morning as a principal backslider. It appeared that huge quantities of smuggled cocaine and heroin were dispatched from Basle in Switzerland, and that official action in this country for the suppression of the traffic on the lines that were being internationally organized by the League had, for some unaccountable reason, been delayed. One of the delegates referred to a single shipment of 30,000 ounces of heroin which had gone from Switzerland to the Far East, enough to meet the needs of a country like Britain for ten years.

One rather dramatic event was pleaded in extenuation. It seemed that quite recently the Swiss authorities had confiscated and destroyed with much pomp and pride a large consignment of cocaine and heroin mostly left over from war stocks. The consignment had been taken as contraband in consequence of information supplied by one of the great Powers. It was a striking gesture, but seemed to be somewhat profitless, as no steps were being taken to tighten up the existing system of control.

BAN DAN CUPID FROM CAMPUS

Muskingum College Hits Against Student Marriages.

NEW CONCORD, O., Jan. 7.—Cupid must keep off the campus of Muskingum college. A resolution of the board of trustees, adopted six months ago and just made public reads: "In order to maintain the high moral and social standards of Muskingum college, welfare of the students directs that the clandestine marriage of students during their college course will necessitate expulsion from this institution."

In line with this ruling, the faculty has made the following explanatory statement: "Any student of Muskingum college marrying during the regular college year or during the summer term shall be required to immediately withdraw from the institution without receiving credit for the courses in which he has enrolled at the time of his withdrawal and may not return to college until at least one year has passed. Furthermore, students who marry during the summer vacation may return to college only by special permission of the faculty."

I have often smoked Lucky Strike cigarettes and, frankly, I like them. Their flavor is good and they don't irritate the throat or vocal cords.

J. Wadsworth Jr.

Wadsworth's Powerful, Inspiring Voice

—clear, expressive, it has the quality which creates confidence

NEW YORK'S Senior Senator, noted for a speaking voice of rare impressiveness, safeguards his throat constantly, so as to be ever ready for a debate or a speech. His favorite cigarettes are Lucky Strikes, both for greater pleasure and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

It was a pleasant room, and through the open windows the song of a blackbird and the spraying of water on the lawns of the garden broke the monotony of the voices inside. The chestnuts and tulip trees were in bloom, and beyond the quai, white under the morning sun, the lake was fantastically blue under a clear sky, fretted at the rim with the serried pines of the Voirons, the distant shoulders of Alps, and that shapeliest of mountains, the Mole so often mistaken by enthusiastic travelers for Mont Blanc himself.

Around the table of the Committee were men of all accent and complexions China, Japan and Siam stood for the native East, brought into uneasy contact with the white world. Lean officials who had done the work of Europe in the distant countries of the Orient—French, Dutch, and British—presented the Eastern imperial view, while European commerce was represented by delegates of an aspect less ascetic but of an authority by no means less pronounced.

The chief paradox of the moment was the fact that the country within whose limits we were assembled and from which the good fight was being so energetically directed, had been cited that morning as a principal backslider. It appeared that huge quantities of smuggled cocaine and heroin were dispatched from Basle in Switzerland, and that officia action in this country for the suppression of the traffic on the lines that were being internationally organized by the League had, for some unaccountable reason, been delayed. One of the delegates referred to a single shipment of 30,000 ounces of heroin which had gone from Switzerland to the Far East, enough to meet the needs of a country like Britain for ten years

One rather dramatic event was pleaded in extenuation. It seemed that quite recently the Swiss authorities had confiscated and destroyed with much pomp and pride a large consignment of cocaine and heroin mostly left over from war stocks. The consignment had been taken as contraband in consequence of information supplied by one of the great Powers It was a striking gesture, but seemed to be somewhat profitless, as no steps were being taken to tighten up the existing system of control.

BAN DAN CUPID FROM CAMPUS

Muskingum College Hits Against Student Marriages.

NEW CONCORD, O., Jan. 7.—Cupid must keep off the campus of Muskingum college. A resolution of the board of trustees, adopted six months ago and just made public reads: "In order to maintain the high moral and social standards of Muskingum college, welfare of the students directs that the clandestine marriage of students during their college course will necessitate expulsion from this institution."

In line with this ruling, the faculty has made the following explanatory statement: "Any student of Muskingum college marrying during the regular college year or during the summer term shall be required to immediately withdraw from the institution without receiving credit for the courses in which he has enrolled at the time of his withdrawal and may not return to college until at least one year has passed. Furthermore, students who marry during the summer vacation may return to college only by special permission of the faculty."

I have often smoked Lucky Strike cigarettes and, frankly, I like them. Their flavor is good and they don't irritate the throat or vocal cords.

J. Wadsworth Jr.

Wadsworth's Powerful, Inspiring Voice

—clear, expressive, it has the quality which creates confidence

NEW YORK'S Senior Senator, noted for a speaking voice of rare impressiveness, safeguards his throat constantly, so as to be ever ready for a debate or a speech. His favorite cigarettes are Lucky Strikes, both for greater pleasure and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

Toledoan Charged With Possessing Burglar Outfit

DAYTON, O., Jan. 7.—The charge of possessing explosives and burglar tools against James Wilson, of Toledo, will probably go to the jury late today. It has been strongly intimated that Wilson will not go on the stand in his own defense. Detectives Quinn, O'Reilly and Hass, of Toledo, appearing as witnesses for the defense, testified that Wilson was a man of good character except for having been arrested on some liquor charges. The prosecution, on the other hand, attempted to prove that Wilson had been in several penitentiaries.

James Roselle, also of Toledo, testified that he accompanied Wilson to Dayton, but he failed to state the object of the visit.

CAMPAIGN TO MAKE NAVY'S SKY FIGHTERS SUPREME

AIR PROGRAM OVERSHADOWS SHIP DEMANDS

Fourth Day of House Debate on Naval Bill.

VINSON UPSET

Setback for Proposal to Raise Air Corps Budget.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—An aggressive campaign to make the navy's sky fighters supreme temporarily overshadowed today the ship-expansion program of the "big navy" clan as the house entered upon its fourth day of debate on the naval bill.

President Coolidge's national defense policy faced another broadside, with attacks and counter-attacks flying thick and fast.

After suffering a setback in his first proposal to raise the navy's air corps budget, Representative Vinson (D) of Georgia, announced that he would renew the battle.

Charging that the administration is not carrying out the five-year air program of congress Vinson demanded funds to add 75 airplanes to the complement of the new aircraft carriers soon to be commissioned.

Funds for Dirigible.

The Georgia congressman's charge is heatedly denied by Representative French (R) of Idaho, in charge of the bill French declared that navy experts are satisfied that the air budget recommended to congress will put the five-year program into operation.

After suffering defeat when the house adopted the Begg amendment providing $200,000 with which to start building a $4,500,000 dirigible, administration forces were hopeful they would defeat the new demands for air corps funds.

"Big navy" forces were looking forward to an easy victory on the Tilson amendment making an initial appropriation for three cruisers, which will cost $48,000,000 when completed.

There was no indication that President Coolidge had relented from his blunt statement that he opposed the three-cruiser appropriation.

While Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader characterized the proposal as a compromise, Representative French declared that it was directly contrary to the expressed desire of Mr. Coolidge.

clearly on her side. They say Mexico is as much a sovereign power as is the United States and as such is entitled to sell and deliver arms to whomsoever she pleases.

The state department, however, takes the position that in this instance American rights to the projected Nicaraguan canal and the naval base concession at Fonseca bay are of more importance than technicalities over international law. Hence the 15 warships and the 5,000 men to put a stop to the revolution and the gun running.

Letter to the city auditor from officials of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company was read, requesting a reduction in the assessment for improvements on West Fourth and West Eighth street from $588.43 to $266.66.

The ordinance committee was instructed to prepare a resolution prohibiting the pouring of salt water from ice cream cabinets and other sources on streets and pavements.

Claims committee and the city solicitor were directed to settle the $500 damage claim of Mrs. Thomas Carraher of St. Clair avenue against the city for injuries sustained in a fall in front of the Central fire station. The woman, it is alleged, slipped on grease and oil which had been used in oiling one of the fire trucks.

Residents of Gardendale submitted a petition for arc lights.

Clerk Shone was instructed to notify Peter Milliron that steps would be taken at an early date to pay the balance of the money due him for sewer work in East End.

Solon George Hughes suggested that the service-safety director take steps to prohibit the parking of automobiles in Crook alley.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Industrial stocks settled down to a slightly lower range of prices in early trading today. The stock exchange's December exhibit of brokers' loans, showing an increase of about $163,000,000 in that month, was nothing more than the presentation of figures issued weekly by the federal reserve board, but that did not prevent new speculative selling by the bearish traders, with the object of forcing a decline in representative stocks.

Dullness rather than weakness characterized the market as a whole, while the bond market against enjoyed the spot light. Investment buying was again directed chiefly to the bond list, with prime home and foreign government issues, low-coupon industrials and railroad issues "close to the rails" continued their forward movement. The call loan rate advanced fractionally to 4 1-2 per cent for loans extending over the week end.

"I beg pardon, sir."

"I said good morning. Can you hear all right, sir."

Over a period of five minutes, the two talked across the 3,000 odd miles of ocean, Gifford using two minutes, Sir Evelyn three minutes.

Gandil Defers Story

ed for what I know and I've decided to tell it whether it hourts the hypocrites or not.

"What 'Swede' has told is true. He couldn't tell all the story because he don't know it. I can tell it and no man can scare me."

Charges Doubleheaders Were Thrown.

Gandil's affidavit flatly charges the doubleheaders with Detroit on Sept. 2 and 3 were thrown.

"The four games were thrown," read Gandil's affidavit, "by Detroit to Chicago and subsequently a fund of money was raised to which all save one or two of the White Sox contributed $45 apiece. Subsequently the money was delivered by me to Bill James in the presence of Risberg.

"At the time the series began Chicago was two and a half games in the lead with Boston pressing them. The winning of the four games would make Chicago White Sox pennant chances almost sure, whereas the loss of even half of those games would cut the margin that the White Sox had over Boston to almost nothing.

"The first intimation I had that it was generally known among the Chicago players that these games were being thrown was the night after the first ball game in the clubhouse when Rowland, Schalk, Eddie Collins and Gleason were discussing how easily we had won them.

"They mentioned different things that happened during the day and Eddie Collins made the remark how terrible the games looked.

Names Men Who Talked.

"The next day the same talk took place about how bad the Detroit players had looked. After these games I remember that the Chicago players repeated the remarks of the previous day about how easily we had won.

"I can't remember exactly what the players said but I have a recollection that Schalk, Collins, Felsch, Risberg, John Collins and others took part in the conversation. At that time I do not remember that any mention was made of repaying the Detroit club for throwing of four games. Our club left Chicago after the games and did not return for another game for several days.

"It was upon the return of the club to Chicago that I first heard mention of what we ought to do for the Detroit players. I remember someone suggested giving them—the pitchers, I mean—a suit of clothes.

"I said we ought to make it money and we finally decided that before the season ended we would give the Detroit pitchers about $200 apiece. That meant every one of us would kick in with $45."

All Star Cast.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—An all star cast is billed for the second act of "Swede" Risberg's new play, "What Price Ball Games," scheduled to go on before an exclusive audience in the chambers of Commissioner Landis today.

The skit is arranged in the order of a minstrel, with K. M. Landis, the grey-thatched commissioner of baseball, acting as interlocutor and stage director.

The cast of characters, scheduled to appear in today's act, include:

Bill James—Fresh from California and once a pitcher with Detroit, who was named by the author of the play as the man who handled the $1,100 alleged to have been paid the Detroit team by the White Sox for "throwing" four games in the latters' direction toward the close of the season of 1917. What James replies to Interlocutor Landis is expected to furnish the climax of this tense drama.

Arnold "Chick' Gandil—Fresh from Texas, and once a famous first baseman with the White Sox, who left the pastime for other pursuits following an unfortunate episode back in 1919. Gandil was quoted as being ready to substantiate the charges brought by Playwright Risberg. Speculation as to whether he will or not, only adds to the tenseness of the drama.

Curtain for Risberg.

In case these two famous end men fail to furnish thrills enough, Director Landis may rush Risberg back for a curtain call or two. Risberg appeared in the first act Wednesday, but was something of a flop. His audience over-awed him, it was said.

There is a wealth of available talent, to put the show over, in the event today's headliners, James and Gandil fall down. The supporting cast includes such men as Oscar Vitt, Byrd Lynn, Happy Flesch, Buck Weaver, Roy Wilkerson and others, not to mention any number of stage hands and hangers-on, such as telegraph operators, sport writers and public-spirited fans.

Expect Disclosures.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—Investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was expected to disclose additional important developments here this afternoon, when Pat McDermott, convicted as one of Mellett's slayers, faces five persons who knew him while he was hiding in Cleveland.

Prosecutor Edward Stanton will endeavor in the face of this evidence, to draw from McDermott the secret of who plotted the assassination.

Police here today were holding two young women, one said to be McDermott's "red-haired girl," with whom he had planned to go to Boston. The other, according to the detectives, is the sweetheart of Ben Nadel, Cleveland bootlegger who is charged with maintaining McDermott in the latter's Cleveland hide-out more than two months.

These two girls, together with Dan Pfaff, Nadel's partner, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Slagle, who rented an apartment for the fugitive's concealment, will face McDermott in the prosecutor's office.

Nadel is scheduled to be tried Monday on a charge of harboring a felon. McDermott has been subpoenaed as a state witness, and was reported en route here from Canton this morning. Nadel furnished $25,000 bond last night, and was liberated, pending his trial.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—A coroner's inquest into the murder of Mrs. Cherly Glardon, 42, while she was automobile riding with Peter Brown, 48, Hillsboro, Ohio, contractor and father of six children, was to be conducted today, county officials announced.

Held in the county jail, pending the outcome of the inquest, Brown, in explanation of the murder, which occurred in a Cincinnati suburb Wednesday night, today adhered to his original story.

He declared that the woman was murdered by bandits who fired through the rear of Brown's automobile as he attempted to escape from them.

Coroner F. C. Swing late yesterday announced, following a postmortem examination of the victim's body, that the wound in the woman's head indicated that the fatal shot had been fired from close range, and possibly not through the rear of the car.

Voice of Old World

"Is that Mr. Gifford?" came a voice with an unmistakable British accent over the wire. It was 8:44 a. m.

They said it came from London but it sounded no further away than telephoning one's grocer.

"Good morning, Sir Evelyn," said Gifford.

"I beg pardon, sir."

"I said good morning. Can you hear all right, sir."

"Yes, yes," answered Sir Evelyn.

Over a period of five minutes, the two talked across the 3,000 odd miles of ocean, Gifford using two minutes, Sir Evelyn three minutes.

The newspapermen scribbled with one hand and pressed their earpieces with the other The others, with the quiet faces of scientists, listened critically. It was part of the day's work to them. To the newspapermen this invisible linking of two continents was a vivid spectacle of the imagination.

Gandil Defers Story

ed for what I know and I've decided to tell it whether it hourts the hypocrites or not.

"What 'Swede' has told is true. He couldn't tell all the story because he don't know it. I can tell it and no man can scare me."

Charges Doubleheaders Were Thrown.

Gandil's affidavit flatly charges the doubleheaders with Detroit on Sept. 2 and 3 were thrown.

"The four games were thrown," read Gandil's affidavit, "by Detroit to Chicago and subsequently a fund of money was raised to which all save one or two of the White Sox contributed $45 apiece. Subsequently the money was delivered by me to Bill James in the presence of Risberg.

"At the time the series began Chicago was two and a half games in the lead with Boston pressing them. The winning of the four games would make Chicago White Sox pennant chances almost sure, whereas the loss of even half of those games would cut the margin that the White Sox had over Boston to almost nothing.

"The first intimation I had that it was generally known among the Chicago players that these games were being thrown was the night after the first ball game in the clubhouse when Rowland, Schalk, Eddie Collins and Gleason were discussing how easily we had won them.

"They mentioned different things that happened during the day and Eddie Collins made the remark how terrible the games looked.

Names Men Who Talked.

"The next day the same talk took place about how bad the Detroit players had looked. After these games I remember that the Chicago players repeated the remarks of the previous day about how easily we had won.

"I can't remember exactly what the players said but I have a recollection that Schalk, Collins, Felsch, Risberg, John Collins and others took part in the conversation. At that time I do not remember that any mention was made of repaying the Detroit club for throwing of four games. Our club left Chicago after the games and did not return for another game for several days.

"It was upon the return of the club to Chicago that I first heard mention of what we ought to do for the Detroit players. I remember someone suggested giving them—the pitchers, I mean—a suit of clothes.

"I said we ought to make it money and we finally decided that before the season ended we would give the Detroit pitchers about $200 apiece. That meant every one of us would kick in with $45."

All Star Cast.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—An all star cast is billed for the second act of "Swede" Risberg's new play, "What Price Ball Games," scheduled to go on before an exclusive audience in the chambers of Commissioner Landis today.

The skit is arranged in the order of a minstrel, with K. M. Landis, the grey-thatched commissioner of baseball, acting as interlocutor and stage director.

The cast of characters, scheduled to appear in today's act, include:

Bill James—Fresh from California and once a pitcher with Detroit, who was named by the author of the play as the man who handled the $1,100 alleged to have been paid the Detroit team by the White Sox for "throwing" four games in the latters' direction toward the close of the season of 1917. What James replies to Interlocutor Landis is expected to furnish the climax of this tense drama.

Arnold "Chick" Gandil—Fresh from Texas, and once a famous first baseman with the White Sox, who left the pastime for other pursuits following an unfortunate episode back in 1919. Gandil was quoted as being ready to substantiate the charges brought by Playwright Risberg. Speculation as to whether he will or not, only adds to the tenseness of the drama.

Curtain for Risberg.

In case these two famous end men fail to furnish thrills enough, Director Landis may rush Risberg back for a curtain call or two. Risberg apeared in the first act Wednesday, but was something of a flop. His audience over-awed him, it was said.

There is a wealth of available talent, to put the show over, in the event today's headliners, James and Gandil fall down. The supporting cast includes such men as Oscar Vitt, Byrd Lynn, Happy Flesch, Buck Weaver, Roy Wilkerson and others, not to mention any number of stage hands and hangers-on, such as telegraph operators, sport writers and public-spirited fans.

Expect Disclosures.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—Investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was expected to disclose additional important developments here this afternoon, when Pat McDermott, convicted as one of Mellett's slayers, faces five persons who knew him while he was hiding in Cleveland.

Prosecutor Edward Stanton will endeavor in the face of this evidence, to draw from McDermott the secret of who plotted the assassination.

Police here today were holding two young women, one said to be McDermott's "red-haired girl," with whom he had planned to go to Boston. The other, according to the detectives, is the sweetheart of Ben Nadel, Cleveland bootlegger who is charged with maintaining McDermott in the latter's Cleveland hide-out more than two months.

These two girls, together with Dan Pfaff, Nadel's partner, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Slagle, who rented an apartment for the fugitive's concealment, will face McDermott in the prosecutor's office.

Nadel is scheduled to be tried Monday on a charge of harboring a felon. McDermott has been subpoenaed as a state witness, and was reported en route here from Canton this morning. Nadel furnished $25,000 bond last night, and was liberated, pending his trial.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—A coroner's inquest into the murder of Mrs. Cheriy Glardon, 42, while she was automobile riding with Peter Brown, 48, Hillsboro, Ohio, contractor and father of six children, was to be conducted today, county officials announced.

Held in the county jail, pending the outcome of the inquest, Brown, in explanation of the murder, which occurred in a Cincinnati suburb Wednesday night, today adhered to his original story.

He declared that the woman was murdered by bandits who fired through the rear of Brown's automobile as he attempted to escape from them.

Coroner F. C. Swing late yesterday announced, following a postmortem examination of the victim's body, that the wound in the woman's head indicated that the fatal shot had been fired from close range, and possibly not through the rear of the car.

SIX WITNESSES

Mayor Testifies to Purported Conduct of Police Head.

Before a crowd of 75 or more "trial fans" who were packed into the Wellsville city council room, former chief of Police John Fultz denied charges of insubordination last night before the civil service commission in the second hearing of its kind during the year. The commission reserved its decision until Wednesday, January 12.

Four witnesses were called by the prosecution to substantiate Mayor W. L. Fogo's charges of disrespect, disobedience and conduct unbecoming an officer. They were City Hall Policeman John Duncan, George Davis, William Taylor and the mayor, while Fultz and James Pugia testified as defense witnesses.

The case went to the commission without argument.

Solicitor S. C. Luccock was assisted by Attorney S. W. Crawford, of East Liverpool. Defense counsel included Attorneys W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans of East Liverpool.

Marked by frequent verbal clashes between opposing counsel, the hearing did not lack in the elements that kept council chamber filled on the occasion of the first Fultz trial.

Defense attorneys sprang something of a surprise at the opening of the trial when they filed a motion to the effect that the commission was without jurisdiction to hear the case.

The case, Attorney Grosshans announced, falls within the provisions of section 486-19 of the general code which maintains that the hearing shall be held within five days of the certification of facts to the commission.

"The hearing, therefore," asserted Grosshans, "did not occur in the time prescribed by statute and we move that this hearing be dismissed and the chief be reinstated."

The motion sent lawyers scurrying for general code copies and sections were scanned closely.

Solicitor Luccock and Attorney Crawford retaliated with section 486-17. "Section 486-18" said the solicitor provides for a hearing within five days, but the section under which this case is filled provides for a hearing within 30 days. This motion of the defense is improper for the reason that it doesn't come under this statute."

"This section we quote is a special section for police and fire chiefs," contended Attorney Bennett, "whereas your's applies only to patrolmen."

Attorney Crawford then read the prosecution section and Attorney Bennett followed by reading the defense section.

The commission took the motion under advisement and the case went on.

John Duncan on Stand.

John Duncan, the city hall policeman, was the first witness called to the stand by the prosecution.

After answering the preliminary introductory questions, he announced, in reply to Attorney Crawford, that he was in the city hall on December 9 (the day Fultz was fired).

"Were you, between 10 and 11 o'clock that morning, asked to bring a prisoner from the jail?" asked Attorney Crawford.

The defense objected.

"Show us the records," was the defense counsel's demand, "if there were prisoners in the jail at that time."

Continuing, Crawford asked, "What was your relationship with the prisoners in the jail?"

Duncan asserted that he fed them and generally looked after them.

"On the ninth day of December did you bring any into the police room?"

Defense objected again, demanding to be shown the records that there was some one in jail.

Mayor Fogo produced a police slip. "That's the record that put them in jail," he declared.

"Did you have under your care one James Pugia in jail on December 9?" asked Attorney Crawford.

Defense objections became insistent, attorneys for Fultz demanding again that the municipal criminal docket be exhibited as proof that there was a prisoner in the jail that day. The mayor went to the office of the city auditor and produced the docket.

"Did you have James Pugia in your care?" asked Crawford.

"Yes," answered Duncan.

"Was he brought into court?"

"Yes, the mayor told me to."

"And who was present at the time?"

"Well, the chief, Mr. Davis, William Taylor, the mayor and myself."

"What did the mayor say?"

"He looked at the slip and said, 'I see you have Pugia.'"

"Who to?"

"Fultz. And then he asked 'where is the evidence?' Fultz opened a drawer in the desk and pulled out a bottle."

"Did any conversation take place between the mayor and the chief?"

"Well in regard to the bottle, the mayor said, 'Is that your's, Pugia?'"

"What did the chief do?"

"Well, Mr. Fultz sat there a minute. The mayor asked if the chief knew of Pugia selling and he said no and if he had known of Pugia selling anything last year, and he said no. The mayor asked the chief if Pugia was drunk and he said no and the mayor asked if Pugia was intoxicated and the chief said he wasn't."

"Then what was said or done?"

"Fultz handed it to the mayor. The mayor asked Pugia if it was his and Pugia said 'yes, more in it than last night.' The mayor says, 'you're dismissed.' The mayor put the bottle down and the chief picked it up and put it in his pocket."

"Did the chief attempt to take hold of Pugia?"

"When Pugia said 'that's my bottle and there was more in it than when the chief got it,' the chief started across the floor."

"And what did the chief say?"

"He said, 'Jim, you've told too many G—— D—— lies on me now.'"

"And what did the mayor do then?"

"The mayor put up his arm and said 'you go back where you belong.'"

"What talk took place between the chief and the mayor?"

"Well, it was just about the bottle business."

"Tell us what it was."

"Well, the chief started like he was going to neck him (Pugia) and then he went back and quieted down."

At this point in the testimony it occurred to defense counsel that the witness had not been sworn in, but the defense attorneys announced their willingness to admit his veracity and continue the case. However, Duncan was sworn in by the mayor and previous questions were repeated.

"What further conversation was there?"

"Well, as I say, Fultz reached over and put the bottle in his coat. The mayor told him to put it back and Fultz said 'No, I won't.' The mayor asked him again and Fultz said 'that's my bottle' and then the mayor said, 'You're suspended for disobeying my orders.' Fultz asked for it in writing and the mayor said he'd give it to him when he had time."

Attorney Grosshans examined the witness for the defense.

"Have you reported all the conversation between the mayor and the chief?"

"All that I have been asked."

"When the mayor came in he asked you to bring in Pugia and you went down and brought him up. Then did he reach over on the desk and pick up an arrest slip?"

"Yes."

"Did he read that slip out loud?"

"Yes."

The police slip was produced, and Duncan identified it.

"What did the mayor say?"

"Bring the prisoner up."

"After that what did he say?"

"What evidence have you against Pugia?"

"That's the first thing he said?"

"Yes."

"Did he read all of the slip?"

"Well, I believe there was some more added to it after that."

Duncan then told of the details again in connection with the exhibition of the bottle and Pugia's dismissal.

"Did the mayor read the charge to Pugia?"

"I didn't hear him."

"Did he say to Pugia, 'Are you guilty or not guilty?'"

"I didn't hear him say that."

"Was Fultz sworn in; was any witness sworn in?"

"Well, I don't know."

"Did you have a trial?"

"I would have called it a trial."

"What other conversation took place?"

"Well, there was some other talk about the mayor being elected and the chief appointed, and I don't just know exactly what all there was."

"Tell us, didn't one point out that one was as well liked as the other, that one was appointed and one elected."

Solicitor Luccock interposed an objection, terming the testimony irrelevant and the witness was excused.

William Taylor Called.

William Taylor, garage owner, followed Duncan on the witness stand. He admitted being present on the day in question.

Taylor testified that Pugia was brought in, Fultz produced the bottle; Pugia admitted it was his but said there was more in it and Fultz warned Pugia not to tell any more lies about him; and then the chief picking up the bottle and putting it in his pocket.

"Would you have any idea," questioned Solicitor Luccock, "as to the amount of liquor in it?"

"I'd say a pretty good drink—about two inches."

"Was anything said about the quality or what kind of liquid it was?"

"Not as I know of."

"Did Fultz say why he put it in his pocket?"

"It was his evidence."

"Did he return it to the mayor while you were there?"

"Not while I was there."

Questioned by Attorney Bennett, Taylor asserted that he did not remember of the mayor reading an affidavit charging Pugia with possession when Pugia was brought into court.

"Did he ask if Pugia was guilty or not guilty?"

"Don't remember of it."

"Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"No, neither did the mayor, they both treated each other all right."

Mayor on Witness Stand.

Mayor Fogo was called to the stand. Questioned by Attorney Crawford he identified the criminal docket containing a description of the Pugia case.

"What did you say when Pugia came in?"

The mayor testified that he got the police clip, in which Pugia was charged with possession, signed by Cole, on October 9. He then said he asked for the evidence and the chief reached into a drawer and took out the bottle, handing it to the mayor. The mayor said he asked Fultz if there had been complaint against Pugia on the ground of selling, or intoxication and the chief, he said, explained there had been none. The mayor related that he asked Pugia if that was his bottle and the latter replied that it was only there was more in it.

Details of the ensuing events were related substantially as prior witnesses had testified.

He was examined by Attorney O'Grady, of the dfense.

"Was there an affidavit in the Pugia case?"

"It wasn't complete at the time. We tried that case practically the same as all cases. It was filled in later."

"Did you swear Pugia?"

"No."

"Fultz?"

"No. We never do in ordinary cases of the kind."

"Did you analyze the liquor?"

"Not enough of it."

"Don't you know it's good evidence of taste or smell?"

"There wasn't enough of it."

"Where was the bottle found?"

"In the back of the store."

"Is any particular volume required in evidence?"

"No."

"How did you expect to determine the truth as between the two men?"

"There wasn't any dispute. Pugia admitted there was liquor in it, but some of it wasn't his. Fultz took the bottle home with him over night."

"Was there a notation on the bottle?"

"Yes."

"What was the wording?"

"I don't remember, exactly. They generally 'tab' them."

"Do you remember the Checklee case?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you fine him on the smell?"

"No, sir, he was selling at the time."

"Do you know of a still being taken from Pugia's?"

"No."

"A 50 gallon still?"

"You probably mean a still taken from a garage."

"How did you arrive at the judgment that Pugia was not guilty when there were no witnesses sworn?"

"That's a prerogative of the court, and the court can act as it sees fit, to fine or release."

"When were the entries made in docket?"

"I don't just remember, but not that day, anyway."

"Did Pugia make any plea?"

"No."

"Why did you make an entry in the docket that Pugia was guilty and then dismiss him?"

"In order to keep the docket right."

"You said to Fultz, 'you're through'?"

"Yes. He said he knew I was boss, but he was going to keep the bottle."

"And you dismissed Pugia without a trial?"

"No, sir."

"Why didn't you call Cole?"

"Never do. The chief of police generally holds court. We never call the patrolmen out of bed."

"Did you ask Fultz if he had put any liquor in the bottle?"

"No."

"Why didn't you ask him that?"

"It wasn't necessary. I didn't think it was necessary to fine Pugia on that amount of liquor.

"You style yourself, 'superior officer,' don't you?"

Attorney Crawford objected and Attorney O'Grady explained his question by asserting that "He's not the superior officer of the chief of police."

"You have a safety director, don't you?"

"Yes."

"He has charge of the police, doesn't he?"

"Yes."

"And the chief of police?"

"I don't know about that."

"But the superior officer of the police and the chief of police is the safety director?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what's your understanding?"

"The mayor and the safety director both."

"When was Fultz's conduct unbecoming an officer?"

"When he swore at the prisoner."

The mayor repeated what Fultz is purported to have said in charging Pugia had lied about him.

George Davis on Witness Stand.

George Davis, Wellsville newspaper publisher, was called to the chair.

After preliminary questions, Attorney Grosshans asked:

"Was there any affidavit read in which Pugia was charged with possession?"

"There was not."

"Did the mayor ask Pugia if he was guilty or not guilty?"

"No."

"Then there were no witnesses sworn, examined nor pleas entered?"

"No."

Additional testimony by Davis was substantially the same as that of the previous witnesses.

When the defense attorney attempted to interrogate Davis in respect to conversation between the mayor and the chief, relative to claims that one had said he was elected by a large majority of the people and the other had asserted he had been appointed by a good man, Solicitor Luccock objected.

The solicitor contended that testimony of conversations or transactions after the chief had been dismissed should not be admitted while the defense pointed out that such testimony was part and parcel of the entire proceedings.

"The evidence in connection with the charges should end with the dismissal," asserted the solicitor.

Grosshans continued. "Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"There was none at any time," said Davis.

Fultz Explains Court Scene.

The former chief took the witness stand.

He related that he had been removed twice and reinstated on the first occasion, testifying that he had reported regularly for duty from September 11 to December 9.

"What happened then?"

"I was fired."

He then told of the Pugia arrest in connection with which police found the bottle at Pugia's place and, in addition, empty cans, yeast, kegs and "other equipment."

He testified that no one had been sworn, and that Pugia had not been asked to make a plea to the charge.

"Is it customary to swear police in court cases of this kind?"

"Sometimes, sometimes not."

"What did you do with this bottle?"

"Put it in my pocket."

"Did you take the charge against Pugia anywhere else?"

"To Lisbon."

"What happened?"

"He pleaded guilty to possession."

"Did you say G—— D——you to Pugia?"

"I never swore at Pugia at all."

Attorney Crawford questioned Fultz.

"You took it for granted that you were dismissed by the mayor at the time?"

"I heard what he said."

"But a lot of conversation you testified to took place after you realized you were not serving as chief?"

"No, I didn't recognize it until he gave it to me in writing."

"What did you do with the cans and kegs?"

"Isn't it the duty of the chief of police to bring them in?"

"Not until the next day, usually."

After discussing methods used in various other police courts, the chief was excused and James Pugia was summoned.

He testified to the bottle episode.

"Whose bottle was it, Jimmy?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"Mine."

"Had it been full at one time?"

"Yes, I drank it."

"Have you got any other liquor, Jim?"

Pugia grinned and made no reply.

"Were you taken to Lisbon, Jim?"

"Yes."

"What did you do over there?"

"Pleaded guilty."

"Pay your fine?"

"Yes, all but $45."

"How much do you still owe?"

"$45—pay it Monday."

"Have you sold any since he's been mayor?"

"Little bit."

He was examined by Attorney Crawford.

"Did you tell the mayor there was more stuff in the bottle than when you had it?"

"Yes."

"Was there?"

"Yes."

"What did the chief say to you?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"You lie too much to me."

"You had told lies about Fultz, hadn't you."

Pugia nodded his head affirmatively as Solicitor Luccock objected to the question.

"How often did Fultz search your place."

"Nearly every week."

"Where was this bottle?"

"In a bushel basket back in the store."

"Whose still was that the police got?"

"Mine."

"Were you fined?"

"No."

RESERVE JOHN H. FULTZ CASE DECISION UNTIL JAN. 12

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD HEARS FOGO CHARGES

Wellsville's Suspended Chief Denies All Allegations.

Mayor Testifies to Purported Conduct of Police Head.

Before a crowd of 75 or more "trial fans" who were packed into the Wellsville city council room, former chief of Police John Fultz denied charges of insubordination last night before the civil service commission in the second hearing of its kind during the year. The commission reserved its decision until Wednesday, January 12.

Four witnesses were called by the prosecution to substantiate Mayor W. L. Fogo's charges of disrespect, disobedience and conduct unbecoming an officer. They were City Hall Policeman John Duncan, George Davis, William Taylor and the mayor, while Fultz and James Pugia testified as defense witnesses.

The case went to the commission without argument.

Solicitor S. C. Luccock was assisted by Attorney S. W. Crawford, of East Liverpool. Defense counsel included Attorneys W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans of East Liverpool.

Marked by frequent verbal clashes between opposing counsel, the hearing did not lack in the elements that kept council chamber filled on the occasion of the first Fultz trial.

Defense attorneys sprang something of a surprise at the opening of the trial when they filed a motion to the effect that the commission was without jurisdiction to hear the case.

The case, Attorney Grosshans announced, falls within the provisions of section 486-19 of the general code which maintains that the hearing shall be held within five days of the certification of facts to the commission.

"The hearing, therefore," asserted Grosshans, "did not occur in the time prescribed by statute and we move that this hearing be dismissed and the chief be reinstated."

The motion sent lawyers scurrying for general code copies and sections were scanned closely.

Solicitor Luccock and Attorney Crawford retaliated with section 486-17. "Section 486-18" said the solicitor provides for a hearing within five days, but the section under which this case is filled provides for a hearing within 30 days. This motion of the defense is improper for the reason that it doesn't come under this statute."

"This section we quote is a special section for police and fire chiefs," contended Attorney Bennett, "whereas your's applies only to patrolmen."

Attorney Crawford then read the prosecution section and Attorney Bennett followed by reading the defense section.

The commission took the motion under advisement and the case went on.

John Duncan on Stand.

John Duncan, the city hall policeman, was the first witness called to the stand by the prosecution.

After answering the preliminary introductory questions, he announced, in reply to Attorney Crawford, that he was in the city hall on December 9 (the day Fultz was fired).

"Were you, between 10 and 11 o'clock that morning, asked to bring a prisoner from the jail?" asked Attorney Crawford.

The defense objected.

"Show us the records," was the defense counsel's demand, "if there were prisoners in the jail at that time."

Continuing, Crawford asked, "What was your relationship with the prisoners in the jail?"

Duncan asserted that he fed them and generally looked after them.

"On the ninth day of December did you bring any into the police room?"

Defense objected again, demanding to be shown the records that there was some one in jail.

Mayor Fogo produced a police slip. "That's the record that put them in jail," he declared.

"Did you have under your care one James Pugia in jail on December 9?" asked Attorney Crawford.

Defense objections became insistent, attorneys for Fultz demanding again that the municipal criminal docket be exhibited as proof that there was a prisoner in the jail that day. The mayor went to the office of the city auditor and produced the docket.

"Did you have James Pugia in your care?" asked Crawford.

"Yes," answered Duncan.

"Was he brought into court?"

"Yes, the mayor told me to."

"And who was present at the time?"

"Well, the chief, Mr. Davis, William Taylor, the mayor and myself."

"What did the mayor say?"

"He looked at the slip and said, 'I see you have Pugia.'"

"Who to?"

"Fultz. And then he asked 'where is the evidence?' Fultz opened a drawer in the desk and pulled out a bottle."

"Did any conversation take place between the mayor and the chief?"

"Well in regard to the bottle, the mayor said, 'Is that your's, Pugia?'"

"What did the chief do?"

"Well, Mr. Fultz sat there a minute. The mayor asked if the chief knew of Pugia selling and he said no and if he had known of Pugia selling anything last year, and he said no. The mayor asked the chief if Pugia was drunk and he said no and the mayor asked if Pugia was intoxicated and the chief said he wasn't."

"Then what was said or done?"

"Fultz handed it to the mayor. The mayor asked Pugia if it was his and Pugia said 'yes, more in it than last night.' The mayor says, 'you're dismissed.' The mayor put the bottle down and the chief picked it up and put it in his pocket."

"Did the chief attempt to take hold of Pugia?"

"When Pugia said 'that's my bottle and there was more in it than when the chief got it,' the chief started across the floor."

"And what did the chief say?"

"He said, 'Jim, you've told too many G—— D—— lies on me now.'"

"And what did the mayor do then?"

"The mayor put up his arm and said 'you go back where you belong.'"

"What talk took place between the chief and the mayor?"

"Well, it was just about the bottle business."

"Tell us what it was."

"Well, the chief started like he was going to neck him (Pugia) and then he went back and quieted down."

At this point in the testimony it occurred to defense counsel that the witness had not been sworn in, but the defense attorneys announced their willingness to admit his veracity and continue the case. However, Duncan was sworn in by the mayor and previous questions were repeated.

"What further conversation was there?"

"Well, as I say, Fultz reached over and put the bottle in his coat. The mayor told him to put it back and Fultz said 'No, I won't.' The mayor asked him again and Fultz said 'that's my bottle' and then the mayor said, 'You're suspended for disobeying my orders.' Fultz asked for it in writing and the mayor said he'd give it to him when he had time."

Attorney Grosshans examined the witness for the defense.

"Have you reported all the conversation between the mayor and the chief?"

"All that I have been asked."

"When the mayor came in he asked you to bring in Pugia and you went down and brought him up. Then did he reach over on the desk and pick up an arrest slip?"

"Yes."

"Did he read that slip out loud?"

"Yes."

The police slip was produced, and Duncan identified it.

"What did the mayor say?"

"Bring the prisoner up."

"After that what did he say?"

"What evidence have you against Pugia?"

"That's the first thing he said?"

"Yes."

"Did he read all of the slip?"

"Well, I believe there was some more added to it after that."

Duncan then told of the details again in connection with the exhibition of the bottle and Pugia's dismissal.

"Did the mayor read the charge to Pugia?"

"I didn't hear him."

"Did he say to Pugia, 'Are you guilty or not guilty?'"

"I didn't hear him say that."

"Was Fultz sworn in; was any witness sworn in?"

"Well, I don't know."

"Did you have a trial?"

"I would have called it a trial."

"What other conversation took place?"

"Well, there was some other talk about the mayor being elected and the chief appointed, and I don't just know exactly what all there was."

"Tell us, didn't one point out that one was as well liked as the other, that one was appointed and one elected."

William Taylor Called.

William Taylor, garage owner, followed Duncan on the witness stand. He admitted being present on the day in question.

Taylor testified that Pugia was brought in, Fultz produced the bottle; Pugia admitted it was his but said there was more in it and Fultz warned Pugia not to tell any more lies about him; and then the chief picking up the bottle and putting it in his pocket.

"Would you have any idea," questioned Solicitor Luccock, "as to the amount of liquor in it?"

"I'd say a pretty good drink—about two inches."

"Was anything said about the quality or what kind of liquid it was?"

"Not as I know of."

"Did Fultz say why he put it in his pocket?"

"It was his evidence."

"Did he return it to the mayor while you were there?"

"Not while I was there."

Questioned by Attorney Bennett, Taylor asserted that he did not remember of the mayor reading an affidavit charging Pugia with possession when Pugia was brought into court.

"Did he ask if Pugia was guilty or not guilty?"

"Don't remember of it."

"Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"No, neither did the mayor, they both treated each other all right."

Mayor on Witness Stand.

Mayor Fogo was called to the stand. Questioned by Attorney Crawford he identified the criminal docket containing a description of the Pugia case.

"What did you say when Pugia came in?"

The mayor testified that he got the police clip, in which Pugia was charged with possession, signed by Cole, on October 9. He then said he asked for the evidence and the chief reached into a drawer and took out the bottle, handing it to the mayor. The mayor said he asked Fultz if there had been complaint against Pugia on the ground of selling, or intoxication and the chief, he said, explained there had been none. The mayor related that he asked Pugia if that was his bottle and the latter replied that it was only there was more in it.

Details of the ensuing events were related substantially as prior witnesses had testified.

He was examined by Attorney O'Grady, of the dfense.

"Was there an affidavit in the Pugia case?"

"It wasn't complete at the time. We tried that case practically the same as all cases. It was filled in later."

"Did you swear Pugia?"

"No."

"Fultz?"

"No. We never do in ordinary cases of the kind."

"Did you analyze the liquor?"

"Not enough of it."

"Don't you know it's good evidence of taste or smell?"

"There wasn't enough of it."

"Where was the bottle found?"

"In the back of the store."

"No."

"How did you expect to determine the truth as between the two men?"

"There wasn't any dispute. Pugia admitted there was liquor in it, but some of it wasn't his. Fultz took the bottle home with him over night."

"Was there a notation on the bottle?"

"Yes."

"What was the wording?"

"I don't remember, exactly. They generally 'tab' them."

"Do you remember the Checkley case?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you fine him on the smell?"

"No, sir, he was selling at the time."

"No."

"A 50 gallon still?"

"You probably mean a still taken from a garage."

"How did you arrive at the judgment that Pugia was not guilty when there were no witnesses sworn?"

"That's a prerogative of the court, and the court can act as it sees fit, to fine or release."

"When were the entries made in docket?"

"I don't just remember, but not that day, anyway."

"Did Pugia make any plea?"

"No."

"Why did you make an entry in the docket that Pugia was guilty and then dismiss him?"

"In order to keep the docket right."

"You said to Fultz, 'you're through'?"

"Yes. He said he knew I was boss, but he was going to keep the bottle."

"And you dismissed Pugia without a trial?"

"No, sir."

"Why didn't you call Cole?"

"Never do. The chief of police generally holds court. We never call the patrolmen out of bed."

"Did you ask Fultz if he had put any liquor in the bottle?"

"No."

"Why didn't you ask him that?"

"It wasn't necessary. I didn't think it was necessary to fine Pugia on that amount of liquor.

"You style yourself, 'superior officer,' don't you?"

Attorney Crawford objected and Attorney O'Grady explained his question by asserting that "He's not the superior officer of the chief of police."

"You have a safety director, don't you?"

"Yes."

"He has charge of the police, doesn't he?"

"Yes."

"And the chief of police?"

"I don't know about that."

"But the superior officer of the police and the chief of police is the safety director?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what's your understanding?"

"The mayor and the safety director both."

"When was Fultz's conduct unbecoming an officer?"

"When he swore at the prisoner."

The mayor repeated what Fultz is purported to have said in charging Pugia had lied about him.

George Davis on Witness Stand.

George Davis, Wellsville newspaper publisher, was called to the chair.

After preliminary questions, Attorney Grosshans asked:

"Was there any affidavit read in which Pugia was charged with possession?"

"There was not."

"Did the mayor ask Pugia if he was guilty or not guilty?"

"No."

"Then there were no witnesses sworn, examined nor pleas entered?"

"No."

Additional testimony by Davis was substantially the same as that of the previous witnesses.

When the defense attorney attempted to interrogate Davis in respect to conversation between the mayor and the chief, relative to claims that one had said he was elected by a large majority of the people and the other had asserted he had been appointed by a good man, Solicitor Luccock objected.

The solicitor contended that testimony of conversations or transactions after the chief had been dismissed should not be admitted while the defense pointed out that such testimony was part and parcel of the entire proceedings.

"The evidence in connection with the charges should end with the dismissal," asserted the solicitor.

Grosshans continued. "Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"There was none at any time," said Davis.

Fultz Explains Court Scene.

The former chief took the witness stand.

He related that he had been removed twice and reinstated on the first occasion, testifying that he had reported regularly for duty from September 11 to December 9.

"What happened then?"

"I was fired."

He then told of the Pugia arrest in connection with which police found the bottle at Pugia's place and, in addition, empty cans, yeast, kegs and "other equipment."

He testified that no one had been sworn, and that Pugia had not been asked to make a plea to the charge.

"Is it customary to swear police in court cases of this kind?"

"Sometimes, sometimes not."

"What did you do with this bottle?"

"Put it in my pocket."

"Did you take the charge against Pugia anywhere else?"

"To Lisbon."

"What happened?"

"He pleaded guilty to possession."

"Did you say G—— D——you to Pugia?"

"I never swore at Pugia at all."

Attorney Crawford questioned Fultz.

"You took it for granted that you were dismissed by the mayor at the time?"

"I heard what he said."

"But a lot of conversation you testified to took place after you realized you were not serving as chief?"

"No, I didn't recognize it until he gave it to me in writing."

"What did you do with the cans and kegs?"

"Isn't it the duty of the chief of police to bring them in?"

"Not until the next day, usually."

After discussing methods used in various other police courts, the chief was excused and James Pugia was summoned.

He testified to the bottle episode.

"Whose bottle was it, Jimmy?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"Mine."

"Had it been full at one time?"

"Yes, I drank it."

"Have you got any other liquor, Jim?"

Pugia grinned and made no reply.

"Were you taken to Lisbon, Jim?"

"Yes."

"What did you do over there?"

"Pleaded guilty."

"Pay your fine?"

"Yes, all but $45."

"How much do you still owe?"

"$45—pay it Monday."

"Have you sold any since he's been mayor?"

"Little bit."

He was examined by Attorney Crawford.

"Did you tell the mayor there was more stuff in the bottle than when you had it?"

"Yes."

"Was there?"

"Yes."

"What did the chief say to you?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"You lie too much to me."

"You had told lies about Fultz, hadn't you."

Pugia nodded his head affirmatively as Solicitor Luccock objected to the question.

"How often did Fultz search your place."

"Nearly every week."

"Where was this bottle?"

"In a bushel basket back in the store."

"Whose still was that the police got?"

"Mine."

"Were you fined?"

"No."

Help Is Needed to Restore Your Wasted Strength and Energy.

"Flu" leaves the body weakened and rundown. In such cases, a tonic is clearly indicated. Restore the appetite and rid yourself of that let-down feeling.

"Flu" is a very enervating disease. It leaves its victims so weak and debilitated that there is as much danger from the after-effects as from the disease itself. SUSPECTS HELD AT WELLSBURG

Brooke County Officials Silent on Round-up at Follansbee.

Prosecuting Attorney James R. Wilkin and Sheriff Robert M. Love of Brooke county, are maintaining silence on the arrest of nine men who were rounded up Wednesday in a raid at Follansbee and who are said to have been members of a gang engaged in criminal operations in the county. Further arrests will probably be made, it was said.

Five of the men arrested early yesterday morning were found in what is believed "headquarters" in the Grossman building where, it is said, they had taken five rooms. None of the men are members of Follansbee families, it was said, and all appeared to have drifted into the district recently.

They are registered at the jail as Frank Berine, Vito Galloti, Dominic Dieto, Antonio Vizzora and Preto Dringtio. The last named was released today when officials failed to connect him with any of the cases under investigation, it was said.

Of the men arrested previously, only one has been released and he is at liberty under $5,000 bond He is Joseph Presty. Others held in connection with the criminal investigation are Frances Tripeti, arrested recently at Wheeling for robbery and Tony Marino. Jimmy DeMarco believed to be another member of the band, is serving a sentence of six months in the Ohio county jail at Wheeling on a pistol toting charge.

Last member of the band and the youngest, Tony Paratto, 19, was brought to Wheeling from the Ohio county jail at Wheeling where he had been taken for "sake-keeping." Although official confirmation is lacking, it is believed generally that Paratto is the man who revealed to Brooke county officials the location of the "headquarters" at Follansbee. Paratto was closeted with Prosecutor Wilkin at the Ohio county jail for a number of hours last Tuesday night, although the subject of their discourse was not made public.

There is no direct evidence connecting any of the prisoners with any specified crime, it is understood. Efforts are being made, however, to connect some of the men with the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, which occurred recently and with "blackhand" letters and robberies in the district, all of more or less recent occurance.

DECIDES ALIEN CAN OWN DOG

Marshall County Jurist Holds Section of Game Law is Invalid.

Judge P. D. Morris, of the Marshall county circuit court, yesterday handed down a far reaching decision when he ruled that the provision of the state fish and game code which makes it unlawful for a resident alien to own a dog is unconstitutional.

The ruling came in a case carried up from a justice court on appeal. Mike Retqzog was fined $20 and costs by Justice W. E. Clayton, for possessing a dog. Through his counsel, Attorney Martin Brown, he gave notice of an appeal.

In this ruling Judge Morris said that no distinction shall be made between resident aliens and citizens as to acquisition, tenure or disposition of property. This has been established, the court said, by a decision of the supreme court, which makes it possible for a resident alien to own and hold real estate. The same should apply in the case of dog ownership, according to Judge Morris.

SUSPECTS HELD AT WELLSBURG

Brooke County Officials Silent on Round-up at Follansbee.

Prosecuting Attorney James R. Wilkin and Sheriff Robert M. Love of Brooke county, are maintaining silence on the arrest of nine men who were rounded up Wednesday in a raid at Follansbee and who are said to have been members of a gang engaged in criminal operations in the county. Further arrests will probably be made, it was said.

Five of the men arrested early yesterday morning were found in what is believed "headquarters" in the Grossman building where, it is said, they had taken five rooms. None of the men are members of Follansbee families, it was said, and all appeared to have drifted into the district recently.

They are registered at the jail as Frank Berine, Vito Galloti, Dominic Dieto, Antonio Vizzora and Preto Dringtio. The last named was released today when officials failed to connect him with any of the cases under investigation, it was said.

Of the men arrested previously, only one has been released and he is at liberty under $5,000 bond He is Joseph Presty. Others held in connection with the criminal investigation are Frances Tripeti, arrested recently at Wheeling for robbery and Tony Marino. Jimmy DeMarco believed to be another member of the band, is serving a sentence of six months in the Ohio county jail at Wheeling on a pistol toting charge.

Last member of the band and the youngest, Tony Paratto, 19, was brought to Wheeling from the Ohio county jail at Wheeling where he had been taken for "sake-keeping." Although official confirmation is lacking, it is believed generally that Paratto is the man who revealed to Brooke county officials the location of the "headquarters" at Follansbee. Paratto was closeted with Prosecutor Wilkin at the Ohio county jail for a number of hours last Tuesday night, although the subject of their discourse was not made public.

There is no direct evidence connecting any of the prisoners with any specified crime, it is understood. Efforts are being made, however, to connect some of the men with the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, which occurred recently and with "blackhand" letters and robberies in the district, all of more or less recent occurance.

DECIDES ALIEN CAN OWN DOG

Marshall County Jurist Holds Section of Game Law is Invalid.

Judge P. D. Morris, of the Marshall county circuit court, yesterday handed down a far reaching decision when he ruled that the provision of the state fish and game code which makes it unlawful for a resident alien to own a dog is unconstitutional.

The ruling came in a case carried up from a justice court on appeal. Mike Retqzog was fined $20 and costs by Justice W. E. Clayton, for possessing a dog. Through his counsel, Attorney Martin Brown, he gave notice of an appeal.

In this ruling Judge Morris said that no distinction shall be made between resident aliens and citizens as to acquisition, tenure or disposition of property. This has been established, the court said, by a decision of the supreme court, which makes it possible for a resident alien to own and hold real estate. The same should apply in the case of dog ownership, according to Judge Morris.

Result Of Baseball Trial May Rest With James' Testimony

Expect Him To Tell Whether Sox Money Was Bribe Or Gift

1917 Detroit Hurler Scheduled to Take Stand Today at Hearing Before Landis; "Chick" Gandil to Testify; Probe of Browns-Tigers Charges of 1923 May Follow.

By Davis J. Walsh.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Bill James, the one credible witness in America who can be expected to know with definite finality whether the $1,100 fund raised by the Chicago White Sox in 1917 for sole distribution in the Detroit locker room constituted a gift or a bribe, was scheduled to take the stand this morning in baseball's latest self-inquisition. His testimony probably will furnish the finale of Judge Landis' hearing of the charge that the Detroit-Chicago series of September, 1917, was a "'slough," a term of great culture meaning to cast off, as of a used razor blade.

Other witnesses may include Chick Gandil, brother conspirator in the Black Sox scandal with "Swede" Risberg, instigator of the present investigation; Oscar Vitt, Roy Wilkinson, Byrd Lynn and a gent named Hasbrouck, ex-major leaguers who took part in the disputed series, who were scheduled to be heard today but the tip was that the judge would concentrate every effort in trying to break down the stories told on Wednesday by Detroit players or in seeking corroboration of Risberg's testimony from James.

The latter was due to arrive in Chicago at 10:30 this morning, only an hour before the scheduled start of the hearing. It was James who has been named by everyone concerned as the middleman from the Detroit end, and agent who officiated at the pay off.

He, therefore, might be suspected of knowing whether the money he received for distribution was for Detroit's alleged "slough" of the series in question, as charged by Risberg, or was a semi-legitimate reward paid to Detroit pitchers for beating Boston earlier in the same month, as maintained by Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, Donie Bush and the remainder of the accused.

Landis' pre-hearing attitude today was said to be that he would not convict any of the twenty-nine witnesses heard to date on the allegations of self-incriminated conspirators such as Risberg and Gandil. But he did hope to get somewhere by a thorough grilling of those mentioned from the Detroit end, particularly James.

An especially hot tip was that George Dauss and Bernie Boland, Detroit pitchers, would be recalled to the stand to elaborate upon the testimony they furnished on Wednesday. It was said that Landis, in the meantime, had thought of "additional questions to ask them." Dauss testified that he did not pitch in the disputed Detroit-Chicago series but the judge neglected to ask him why he wasn't one of the participants.

Furthermore, Detroit will get another rally on the question of scandal just as soon as the present inquest is finished. The judge, I understand, means to probe the charge that the St. Louis Browns gratuitously engaged in a "slough" to the Tigers in 1923. These charges originally were credited to Ty Cobb, and the judge, it is said, will look into them thoroughly in spite of Cobb's reluctant disclaimer of authorship at Wednesday's hearing.

However, the judge apparently didn't even dare to hope that he would get any further with this investigation than it seems probable he will progress with the present probe. The latter, barring corroborative testimony by Bill James of Risberg's allegations or failure on the part of some of the previous witnesses to stay with their story, seems destined to degenerate into a question of veracity between Risberg and Gandil on one side—and—on the other, all the remaining witnesses involved.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The natural easiness of the golf swing must always be carefully watched, too, when you are making short pitch or run-up shots. An easy rhythm of movement is perhaps more to be desired here than in longer shots because now you are playing for an exact result whereas in the long shot a general result will do. Haste of action with the club for these short shots will invariably make them go bad. If you have a mashie pitch and you take the mashie back quickly you will invariably start forward with it before you have attained the top of the back swing. Your hands then will come even with the ball before the blade gets there and a topped ball will result. Even in the shortest of approach shots, as well as for the longer ones, be sure to take the clubhead back easily and smoothly. Give it time to turn, then drop it into and through the ball.

BULGERS LEAD IN 'Y' LEAGUE

Defeat Seniors for Second Straight Victory.

Bulger Drugs took the lead in the "Y" basketball league race last night with a victory over the Seniors, 41 to 23. The game was fast, and rough in spots, the Drugs outplaying their opponents through most of the contest.

The Seniors went into the lead at the start, Hancock sinking the first basket. Cannon tied it up but Kidd's foul put the Seniors ahead and they stayed in front until the end of the period when the count stood 10 to 6.

The Drugs overhauled the Seniors in the second quarter, leading 18 to 16, at the half way mark. In the two final periods, the Drugs assaulted the baskets with reckless abandon and walked away with the match. Green, Wain and Cannon did most of the scoring for the winners. Kidd, Canne and McGraw played well for the Seniors.

CHESTER SET FOR IRONDALE

Boys' and Girls' Teams in Double Bill at Park.

With a victory in their inaugural engagement to speed them on their way toward further accomplishments during the 1927 season, Coach Ray Wilde's Chester high school team is confident of adding another conquest to its list tonight with Irondale high as the prospective victim.

The high school lads played a flashy brand of basketball in triumphing over the Alumni last Friday, 18 to 13, and are confident the Jefferson countians will be unable to provide opposition of a more dangerous nature than the graduates did.

The bill for tonight calls for a double header, with the girls' and boys' teams both in action. The girls will clash in the preliminary beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Fight Results

AT PHILADELPHIA—Babe Ruth, of Philadelphia, won on foul from George Balduc, of Canada, in eighth round.

AT FORT THOMAS, Ky.—Jimmy Clump, Cincinnati, got decision over Terry McMullen, Sidney, 10., ten rounds.

Sets New Swim Record.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Johnny Weissmuller was today owner of a brand new world's swimming record. Johnny negotiated the 100 yards free style in 49 4-5 seconds, clipping 2-3 seconds from the old mark, during an exhibition swim at the Illinois Athletic club last night. Weissmuller's new mark is considered as the equivalent of running 100 yards in nine seconds.

Denison Defeats Florida U.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 7.—The Denison University basketball team won a slow and uninteresting game from University of Florida's quintet here last night, 30 to 17. Denison lead, 15 to 9 at the end of the half. Both teams showed poor form, missing baskets frequently.

Locals Confident Of First Victory

Tom Pusey, Guard, Only Absentee on Blue and White Five for Initial All-School Clash of Season; at Lisbon Tomorrow.

ANOTHER sample of Akron scholastic basketball will be dished up for Ceramic City cage followers tonight when Akron East tangles with Coach N. F. Lorah's high school squad at the high school gym, the engagement marking the initial all-scholastic clash of the campaign here.

Akron Central a year ago gave a capable demonstration of the court game as played in the Rubber City and tonight the East quint will try to repeat.

Guard Tom Pusey will be the only absentee when the Blue and White forces trot out onto the floor tonight. Captain Hamilton, Wilblood, McKeever and Bloor will furnish a quartet for the selection of forwards with Hamilton certain of one. English and Todd are on deck for center duties. Bromby, McConville and Deidrick will furnish a running mate for Dick Larkins in guard territory.

The team is set to keep an eye on Keeney, East's start forward, who has proven thus far the most consistent scorer on the Akron squad. As a whole, the local squad is confident of turning in their first win of the season tonight.

The preliminary also is certain to develop a great game, with the high school reserves clashing with the Salem reserves. The probable selections for the East Liverpool lineup in the prelim tilt include Small and Bill Pusey at forwards, Dykes at center and Crawford and Menge at the guards. This game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Both the boys' and the girls' teams are scheduled to play tomorrow night at Lisbon, in the first contests of the season.

HOPPE RALLIES TO PASS CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Having won the second block of his titular match with Eric Hagenlacher, the champion, Willie Hoppe today was leading by a score of 1,000 to 840 and was in a fair way of regaining the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship. The third and final block will be played tonight.

The score of the second block was 564 to 340. Hoppe averaged 29 13-19 and Hagenlacher 17 17-19.

McDOWELL BOWS TO N. JOHNSON

MOSTIL'S MOTHER HAD RHEUMATISM HE TELLS HOW SHE GOT RID OF IT

Big League Star Gave Her Liniment They Use at the Ball Park

JOHNNY MOSTIL

WORKED LIKE MAGIC RHEUMATISM ALL GONE

"My mother had rheumatism in her knees and ankles something terrible and naturally tried different remedies and treatments but with no lasting results, so one day I took her home a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment, the kind we ball players use for aches, pains and stiffness. Mike Martin, you know, is the famous Big League Trainer, now with the Washington Ball Club. Mother applied Mike Martin's Liniment according to directions on the bottle, and you should hear her praise that stuff now. It knocked out those rheumatic troubles almost overnight," declares Johnny Mostil, Chicago's whirlwind Center Fielder.

Thousands of men and women have used this remarkable liniment with the same results. One thing is sure, Big League Stars like Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Sisler, Mostil, Aldrich and others wouldn't waste time using any liniment but the best for aches, pains, stiffness, tameness and swollen joints, and Mostil wouldn't take it home to his mother unless he knew it would do the work.

Mike Martin's Liniment is made of the finest ingredients money can buy. It works quicker, surer, better, than old-time, nasty, blistering liniment. It is pleasant to use; you can rub it for hours without blistering even the tender skin of a baby, and it works almost like magic on rheumatic, sciatic, neuralgic and neuritis, pains and aches.

If your dad, grandmother or anybody you know suffers, get them a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment—they'll be mighty glad you thought of it. 65c and $1 per bottle at

The judge, I understand, means to probe the charge that the St. Louis Browns gratituously engaged in a "slough" to the Tigers in 1923. These charges originally were credited to Ty Cobb, and the judge, it is said, will look into them thoroughly in spite of Cobb's reluctant disclaimer of authorship at Wednesday's hearing.

However, the judge apparently didn't even dare to hope that he would get any further with this investigation than it seems probable he will progress with the present probe. The latter, barring corroborative testimony by Bill James of Risberg's allegations or failure on the part of some of the previous witnesses to stay with their story, seems destined to degenerate into a question of veracity between Risberg and Gandil on one side—and—on the other, all the remaining witnesses involved.

TECH PASSERS AT WELLSVILLE

Orange Five to Meet Pittsburgh Outfit Tonight.

Pittsburgh Technical high school will provide opposition for Coach Earl Klinck's Wellsville team at Wellsville tonight in the first 1927 contest on the Orange and Black schedule.

The Tech quint has played three games thus far but has lost two of them, dropping decisions to Evans City, Pa., and Salem. They downed Zelionople by a decisive count in the opener.

The Orange and Black passers have been working regularly over the holiday season, and, as a result, are in top condition for the engagment.

The Wellsville M. E. church five and the East Liverpool Scholastics will mix in the preliminary, beginning at 6:45 o'clock.

Tomorrow night, the Wellsville teams, boys' and girls,' will play at East Palestine.

Movin' On

FRED HEIMACH must virtually start all over again to prove to the baseball world that he is a big league pitcher. This after laboring five years to win a place in the sun. Heimach was sent to the St. Paul club this winter in the deal that sent Hofmann to the Red Sox.

FRED HEIMACH

Heimach went to the Athletics from Moline in the fall of 1921 with hopes high. He had won 24 and lost but 8 games for the Three Eye team. His southpaw slants completely mystified the boys there. But he failed to become a consistent winner for Connie over a period of four years. His best season was in 1924 when he won 14 games and lost 12.

TWO CONTESTS IN CHURCH LOOP

Two contests are scheduled for Saturday night in the Sunday school basketball league at the Y. M. C. A.

The Christians and Park Boulevards will open it up at 7 o'clock, followed by the Baptists and the Presbyterians.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The natural easiness of the golf swing must always be carefully watched, too, when you are making short pitch or run-up shots. An easy rhythm of movement is perhaps more to be desired here than in longer shots because now you are playing for an exact result whereas in the long shot a general result will do. Haste of action with the club for these short shots will invariably make them go bad. If you have a mashie pitch and you take the mashie back quickly you will invariably start forward with it before you have attained the top of the back swing. Your hands then will come even with the ball before the blade gets there and a topped ball will result. Even in the shortest of approach shots, as well as for the longer ones, be sure to take the clubhead back easily and smoothly. Give it time to turn, then drop it into and through the ball.

BULGERS LEAD IN 'Y' LEAGUE

Defeat Seniors for Second Straight Victory.

Bulger Drugs took the lead in the "Y" basketball league race last night with a victory over the Seniors, 41 to 23. The game was fast, and rough in spots, the Drugs outplaying their opponents through most of the contest.

The Seniors went into the lead at the start, Hancock sinking the first basket. Cannon tied it up but Kidd's foul put the Seniors ahead and they stayed in front until the end of the period when the count stood 10 to 6.

The Drugs overhauled the Seniors in the second quarter, leading 18 to 16, at the half way mark. In the two final periods, the Drugs assaulted the baskets with reckless abandon and walked away with the match. Green, Wain and Cannon did most of the scoring for the winners. Kidd, Canne and McGraw played well for the Seniors.

CHESTER SET FOR IRONDALE

Boys' and Girls' Teams in Double Bill at Park.

With a victory in their inaugural engagement to speed them on their way toward further accomplishments during the 1927 season, Coach Ray Wilde's Chester high school team is confident of adding another conquest to its list tonight with Irondale high as the prospective victim.

The high school lads played a flashy brand of basketball in triumphing over the Alumni last Friday, 18 to 13, and are confident the Jefferson countians will be unable to provide opposition of a more dangerous nature than the graduates did.

The bill for tonight calls for a double header, with the girls' and boys' teams both in action. The girls will clash in the preliminary beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Fight Results

AT PHILADELPHIA—Babe Ruth, of Philadelphia, won on foul from George Balduc, of Canada, in eighth round.

AT FORT THOMAS, Ky.—Jimmy Clump, Cincinnati, got decision over Terry McMullen, Sidney, 10., ten rounds.

Sets New Swim Record.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Johnny Weissmuller was today owner of a brand new world's swimming record. Johnny negotiated the 100 yards free style in 49 4-5 seconds, clipping 2-3 seconds from the old mark, during an exhibition swim at the Illinois Athletic club last night. Weissmuller's new mark is considered as the equivalent of running 100 yards in nine seconds.

Denison Defeats Florida U.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 7.—The Denison University basketball team won a slow and uninteresting game from University of Florida's quintet here last night, 30 to 17. Denison lead, 15 to 9 at the end of the half. Both teams showed poor form, missing baskets frequently.

Locals Confident Of First Victory

Tom Pusey, Guard, Only Absentee on Blue and White Five for Initial All-School Clash of Season; at Lisbon Tomorrow.

ANOTHER sample of Akron scholastic basketball will be dished up for Ceramic City cage followers tonight when Akron East tangles with Coach N. F. Lorah's high school squad at the high school gym, the engagement marking the initial all-scholastic clash of the campaign here.

Akron Central a year ago gave a capable demonstration of the court game as played in the Rubber City and tonight the East quint will try to repeat.

Guard Tom Pusey will be the only absentee when the Blue and White forces trot out onto the floor tonight. Captain Hamilton, Wilblood, McKeever and Bloor will furnish a quartet for the selection of forwards with Hamilton certain of one. English and Todd are on deck for center duties. Bromby, McConville and Deidrick will furnish a running mate for Dick Larkins in guard territory.

The team is set to keep an eye on Keeney, East's start forward, who has proven thus far the most consistent scorer on the Akron squad. As a whole, the local squad is confident of turning in their first win of the season tonight.

The preliminary also is certain to develop a great game, with the high school reserves clashing with the Salem reserves. The probable selections for the East Liverpool lineup in the prelim tilt include Small and Bill Pusey at forwards, Dykes at center and Craword and Menge at the guards. This game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Both the boys' and the girls' teams are scheduled to play tomorrow night at Lisbon, in the first contests of the season.

HOPPE RALLIES TO PASS CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Having won the second block of his titular match with Eric Hagenlacher, the champion, Willie Hoppe today was leading by a score of 1,000 to 840 and was in a fair way of regaining the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship. The third and final block will be played tonight.

The score of the second block was 564 to 340. Hoppe averaged 29 13-19 and Hagenlacher 17 17-19.

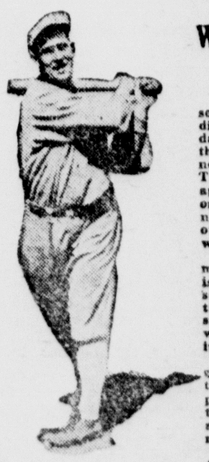
MOSTIL'S MOTHER HAD RHEUMATISM HE TELLS HOW SHE GOT RID OF IT

Big League Star Gave Her Liniment They Use at the Ball Park



JOHNNY MOSTIL

"My mother had rheumatism in her knees and ankles something terrible and naturally tried different remedies and treatments but with no lasting results, so one day I took her home a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment, the kind we ball players use for aches, pains and stiffness. Mike Martin, you know, is the famous Big League Trainer, now with the Washington Ball Club. Mother applied Mike Martin's Liniment according to directions on the bottle, and you should hear her praise that stuff now. It knocked out those rheumatic troubles almost overnight," declares Johnny Mostil, Chicago's whirlwind Center Fielder.

Thousands of men and women have used this remarkable liniment with the same results. One thing is sure, Big League Stars like Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Sisler, Mostel, Aldrich and others wouldn't waste time using any liniment but the best for aches, pains, stiffness, lameness and swollen joints, and Mostel wouldn't take it home to his mother unless he knew it would do the work.

Mike Martin's Liniment is made of the finest ingredients money can buy. It works quicker, surer, better, than old-time, nasty, blistering liniment. It is pleasant to use; you can rub it for hours without blistering even the tender skin of a baby, and it works almost like magic on rheumatic, sciatic, neuralgic and neuritis, pains and aches.

If your dad, grandmother or anybody you know suffers, get them a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment—they'll be mighty glad you thought of it. 65c and $1 per bottle at or parcels post by writing Mike Martin, Trainer, Washington Ball Club, Brentwood, Md.

DAYTON WOMAN IS AUTO VICTIM

DAYTON, O., Jan. 7.—Thelma Jenkins is in a hospital today and is expected to die from injuries received when run down last night by an automobile driven by Ellis Holsapple. The young woman was carried a distance of 75 feet, it was said, before the car was stopped.

Holsapple is to appear in court today.

VETS INSTALL POST OFFICERS

Decorations Presented to Leaders of Auxiliary.

Officers were installed at a joint meeting of Private Eddy Post No. 66, Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliary, held in the Brookes building, Fifth and Market streets, last evening.

Decorations were presented to Mrs. Rosengerg, past president; Miss Mitchell, quartermaster for three years; Miss Jennie Rodell, who secured the most new members during the year, and Miss Alice Kinsey, for faithful service in the department.

Short talks were made by Miss Alice Kinsey, Mrs. William Kinsey, Mrs. Nettie McDonald and Mrs. Rosenberg, of the auxiliary, and William Kinsey L. McPherson, Harry Green, Vaughn Weaver and H. E. Campbell, members of the post.

During the year the auxiliary lost four members by death. They were: Mrs. Ida Emmerling, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Sowers and Miss Mary Logan.

DAYTON WOMAN IS AUTO VICTIM

DAYTON, O., Jan. 7.—Thelma Jenkins is in a hospital today and is expected to die from injuries received when run down last night by an automobile driven by Ellis Holsapple. The young woman was carried a distance of 75 feet, it was said, before the car was stopped.

Holsapple is to appear in court today.

VETS INSTALL POST OFFICERS

Decorations Presented to Leaders of Auxiliary.

Officers were installed at a joint meeting of Private Eddy Post No. 66, Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliary, held in the Brookes building, Fifth and Market streets, last evening.

Decorations were presented to Mrs. Rosengerg, past president; Miss Mitchell, quartermaster for three years; Miss Jennie Rodell, who secured the most new members during the year, and Miss Alice Kinsey, for faithful service in the department.

Short talks were made by Miss Alice Kinsey, Mrs. William Kinsey, Mrs. Nettie McDonald and Mrs. Rosenberg, of the auxiliary, and William Kinsey L. McPherson, Harry Green, Vaughn Weaver and H. E. Campbell, members of the post.

During the year the auxiliary lost four members by death. They were: Mrs. Ida Emmerling, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Sowers and Miss Mary Logan.

While flying between London and Paris at a height of 6,000 feet, Captain A. S. Wilcockson was startled by a bang on the glass of his windshield, and later found that it had been caused by a wasp which was still clinging to the glass.

It is almost as difficult for a medium to predict what is going to happen as it is for a historian to record what has happened—Cincinnati Times-Star.

COL. TIM M'COY AT AMERICAN

"War Paint," Western Picture, Opens Three-day Run.

The person, or persons, who picked Col. Tim McCoy for a western film star should have a medal.

At last the screen has a new face and figure which radiates personal magnetism and doubtless will attract thousands of film fans who are tired of looking at some of the old types of western heroes who depend largely on six-shooters and horses to put them across.

McCoy, young and good looking, has the appearance of one from "the great open spaces." He looks western and acts western. He has a natural grace which ought to take the place of any lack of screen technique.

McCoy goes through his scenes as though no camera were present to record them. It is not acting with him in any sense of the word. Rather, with him, it is business of dealing with Indians and soldiers just as he has dealt with both on the plains and on the field of battle.

This new western hero is the son of a former army and is now a brigadier general of Wyoming State Militia.

The next job was to persuade him to give up ranching and take up acting. His first screen appearance, in "War Paint," which opened yesterday at the American theatre, proves that the American made no mistake. He is ably supported by Pauline Starke, Karl Dane and a number of other well-known players.

FINAL EDITION

VOL. XLVII. NO. 52. EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1927. PAGE FIFTEEN

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Senator David Aiken Reed of Pennsylvania is reliably reported to be scheduled to succeed Judge E. H. Gary as head of the United States Steel Corporation.

DAVID REED

"Reliably reported" is a much abused expression, but this really is an inside tip.

It's poltical rather than industrial. The first hint was to the effect that Reed will resign e senate before the end of his term, March 3, 1929.

Resign? Why? To step into Judge Gary's shoes. That's the dope, from a source mighty near the fountain head.

Judge Gary and the United States Steel Corporation have come to be almost synonymous terms, but the judge is very old. Unless he means to die in harness, he must retire soon.

It isn't good business to have the director of a billion dollar concern die on the job. It's financially disorganizing.

Such changes need to be made in good order—not hurriedly, to meet an emergency. It may be taken for granted that Judge Gary himself, looking back from the "other side' would not want to see a market shake-up, due to the fact that he had hung on too long.

Senator "Dave" Reed is just over 46 years old—old enough to be ripe, if he's ever going to be, for about the most important industrial post in the world, and yet young enough to give promise of filling it for a long time to come if he wears as well as Judge Gary has worn.

He's a Pittsburgher, born and bred—a native of the capital of the realm of steel.

He never was a puddler, like Charlie Schwab. He cut his teeth in a silver spoon But he's one of the country's foremost authorities on corporation law, and corporation law, in Pittsburgh, means steel.

For that matter, Judge Gary never worked, physically, in a steel mill He's a lawyer, too, and an executive, and a financier.

Reed can qualify in all these respects, and he has a steel back-ground, besides. The gla s furnaces was in his eyes against the sky as he lay in his cradle a baby. He knows the business, through a lifelong process of absorption. if he doesn't know it, literally, as a trade.

"Dave" Reed has been a good senator.

He's highly intelligent. His ideals also are high. And he has nerve.

He's a conservative. With the sohouse of congress he has little in common. In some respects he'd like, called progressive group in the upper quite frankly, to see governmental methods back up.

But he's honest. If he's for what others consider reaction, he says so straight out. When, now and then, his own party stands for what he thinks a wrong policy, "regularity" doesn't prevent him from fighting it.

Reed belongs to what is generally known as the "silk stocking" element in the senate.

It isn't altogether popular. Whether rightly or not, the hard boiled solons fancy that the "silk stockings' look down on them. They resent it, and this resentment frequently crops out in debate.

All the same, Reed's respected by his fellow lawmakers as a man who, if he does deem himself an aristocrat, aims to live up to his notion of all that an A No. 1 aristocrat ought to be.

Wide-awake Children Brought up on Father John's Medicine

BECAUSE her mother used it when she was a little girl, Mrs. J. J. Whitney, Melrose, Mass., knows the value of Father John's Medicine and has always used it for her own children. Mrs. Whitney, like thousands of mothers has learned to depend on Father John's Medicine when any of the family has a cold or a cough, or has become weak or run down. Its pure food elements build new strength to throw off disease. Its healing properties soothe the throat irritation and it helps to drive out impurities. And it is free from alcohol and drugs.

OHIOAN HELD AS WIFE DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Suspicion Charge is Filed Against Man at Troy.

JURY INQUIRY

Badly Fractured Skull Killed Mrs. Ruth Kadel.

TROY, O., Jan. 7.—Ralph H. Kadel, 28, arrested Thursday night and held on a suspicion charge, had been unable to obtain his freedom up to this morning. He was placed in custody by county officers accompanied by Joe Wilcox, Dayton detective, at the home of his parents, 12 miles from Troy.

A half hour before the arrest, the grand jury had been inquiring into the circumstances surrounding the death of his wife, Ruth Kadel, who died shortly after an automobile accident some weeks ago.

Mrs. Kadel died from what was described as a badly fractured skull. Following her death, a coroner's inquest was held but no verdict rendered and the case was referred to the grand jury.

The inquest was predicated upon statements alleged to have been made by the husband which were in conflict with the first stories told.

Various members of the dead woman's family were witnesses before the grand jury.

The record of the coroner's inquest is said to show a discrepancy in Kadel's story implying that there had been a quarrel during the fatal ride was also presented before the grand jury which is scheduled to file its report in court at 1 o'clock today.

ANGRY, SPREADING RASH ON BABY'S BODY

Checked and healed by soothing ointment

Los Angeles, Cal., July 28:—"When my baby was four months old, little red pimples which resembled heat or teething rash appeared on her body. I used various baby powders, but the trouble kept spreading until nearly all the lower part of her body was covered. Then it began to look white and scaly and I knew it was more than an ordinary rash. I decided to try Resinol Ointment, and after the first two or three applications I noticed an improvement. I kept on using this ointment, however, and bought some Resinol Soap to bathe her with. The result was that the trouble completely disappeared. I have always used Resinol Soap for her bath since. She is two years old now, and her skin is absolutely free from any blemish. When my boy began to have ringworms, I was so persistent in the use of Resinol Ointment that they were soon cleared away. I wouldn't be without Resinol in the house, and at the least sign of any eruption on the children, I use it." (Signed) Mrs. L. E. Crenshaw, 7806 Lou Dillon Ave.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

NEURITIS, PAIN, RHEUMATISM

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in arms, elbows, shoulders, feet, knees, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to used in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

Men! Regain Vigor, Energy Thru Gland Treatment

WHEN the glands function normally, they supply vitalizing hormones (or secretions) which are essential to vigorous health, energy and vitality. And when the glands fail to function, health fails.

Now, glandular treatment, which is indorsed by eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe, is being used by thousands of men and women to help overcome a weakened, worn-out, run-down, exhausted condition and to regain the strength, vigor and vitality that are the natural benefits resulting from a normal glandular system.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen is prepared in convenient tablet form for both men and women. Accept no substitutes, insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic. Mathews Cut Rate Store will supply you.

Haskin's Letter

site for such a clinic is in the out patient department or dispensary of a general hospital. Patients should not be accepted in the posture clinic until they have been thoroughly examined and found free from organic troubles which may be causing their symptoms. The clinic should act as a correlating agency, and consultations should be held with the other departments regarding the patient to be enrolled.

Posture clinics may also be established by visiting nurse associations in conjunction with child health centers. There the patients may be sent from neighboring schools by the nurses employed there, and from the district by local physicians. The visiting nurses themselves may refer a number of patients. Naturally there will follow cases direct from the home because the parent of a child who has been cured will instruct the parent of a child who is suffering from some unexplained cause.

But there, as well as in the hospital, the child must be examined by a pediatrician and an orthopedist. Before corrective posture training is begun the etiology of the trouble must be diagnosed as poor body mechanics. Consultations should therefore be held with the medical men on the staff of the nursing association or of some nearby hospital. After a child has been enrolled in a posture clinic and is started on its routine procedure he is best cared for if an orthopedist and a pediatrist assume joint responsibility for his medical care.

While a child will spend only about 35 minutes two or three times a week in the posture clinic he should practice at home and repeat at least three times a day all that he has done in the clinic. To be sure that this practice is continued follow-up visits should be made to the home. Mothers are also urged to attend the clinics with their children in order that they may get for themselves just what their children should do at home. They may at the same time received advice as to diet and other controlling causes of their children's complaints.

Posture exercises, however, may be not only curative but also preventive and for this reason it is urged that they be introduced into the school curriculum.

site for such a clinic is in the out patient department or dispensary of a general hospital. Patients should not be accepted in the posture clinic until they have been thoroughly examined and found free from organic troubles which may be causing their symptoms. The clinic should act as a correlating agency, and consultations should be held with the other departments regarding the patient to be enrolled.

Posture clinics may also be established by visiting nurse associations in conjunction with child health centers. There the patients may be sent from neighboring schools by the nurses employed there, and from the district by local physicians. The visiting nurses themselves may refer a number of patients. Naturally there will follow cases direct from the home because the parent of a child who has been cured will instruct the parent of a child who is suffering from some unexplained cause.

But there, as well as in the hospital, the child must be examined by a pediatrician and an orthopedist. Before corrective posture training is begun the etiology of the trouble must be diagnosed as poor body mechanics. Consultations should therefore be held with the medical men on the staff of the nursing association or of some nearby hospital. After a child has been enrolled in a posture clinic and is started on its routine procedure he is best cared for if an orthopedist and a pediatrist assume joint responsibility for his medical care.

While a child will spend only about 35 minutes two or three times a week in the posture clinic he should practice at home and repeat at least three times a day all that he has done in the clinic. To be sure that this practice is continued follow-up visits should be made to the home. Mothers are also urged to attend the clinics with their children in order that they may see for themselves just what their children should do at home. They may at the same time received advice as to diet and other controlling causes of their children's complaints.

Posture exercises, however, may be not only curative but also preventive and for this reason it is urged that they be introduced into the school curriculum.

GANDIL DEFERS 'EXPOSE' STORY

CRISIS NEAR IN U. S.-MEXICAN RELATIONS

Today

A Language Union.

Laugh Month.

The Proud Nordic.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

W. R. HEARST in his newspapers throughout the country advocates a union of English-speaking nations to maintain peace. He would have them agree to keep the naval and air forces down to a certain point, but also "up to definite strength and efficiency, able to compel peace, if necessary, by fighting for it.

No offensive alliance, no condoning by one nation of aggressive acts by another, but an agreement by English speaking peoples not to fight among themselves and to protect each other from outside aggression.

THIS, according to Hearst, would not mean helping England to hold down subject races in Egypt, India, etc., but an agreement between free English-speaking white men in the United States, Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, to insure themselves against war by preparation and mutual agreement.

WITH such an agreement Australia and New Zealand could peacefully develop their civilization within the shadow of Asia.

WHY not include in the arrangement free immigration among the contracting parties? Intermarrying would help peace.

After the Romans stole their Sabine women all was serene, although nothing as drastic as that would be suggested in these silk stocking days.

IF anybody objects to a combination based on language it may be pointed out that such a combination is easy, and a real movement for peace must begin somewhere.

THE month of January, 1927, in which good resolutions are now oozing away, is to be "national laugh month." Moving picture potentates and others have decided and arranged it. Americans are to laugh, and thus keep up their "morale."

IT WOULD be better to locate laugh month in December. For looking back over 11 months of much promise, much resolving and little performance, laughing would be easy.

There is such a thing as over-doing laughing, for laughing is like smoking. When you do either, you don't think. And what the American people need is more thinking.

A LEARNED professor of Eton, who teaches geology, is worried about the world's food supply in case population should increase and says, "to allow wholesale immigration would be to distinctly lower the Nordic type by amalagamation.'

CRITICAL SITUATION ADMITTED AS WARSHIPS SPEED TO NICARAGUA

Borah Stands Pat Against U. S. Role In Civil Warfare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—A conference today between President Coolidge and Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, failed to shake the Idahoan's opposition to intervention in Nicaragua.

"We have no business in Nicaragua," said Borah, as he left the White House.

He further expressed the opinion that the state department is "backing the wrong horse" in the troubled little republic.

"In my opinion," continued Borah, "Dr. Sacasa is the constitutional president of the country and should have been recognized under the five-power Central American treaty."

AMERICANS MAY QUIT HANKOW, SAYS LONDON

Preparations Made for Evacuation of Women and Children.

BRITONS LEAVE

Two U. S. Gunboats are Anchored Off Chinese City.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Precautions are being made for the evacuation of American women and children from Hankow, according to reports received here in responsible quarters today This may indicate that the animosity of the Chinese in Hankow, which has been directed chiefly against the British, has now turned towards all foreigners.

Reports that the Cantonese had withdrawn from Hankow were denied in reliable quarters, it being stated that the Nationalist military are still in control there.

Two steamers bearing British women and children refugees from Hankow were due to arrive at Shanghai today.

Mobs Take Over Buildings.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7.—The situation at Hankow was reported today to be one of watchful tension.

Women and children have been evacuated from the British concession, and all business has been suspended. A general strike still impends.

The British forces of volunteers are keeping out of sight as far as possible and bear no arms.

The Nationalist leaders are apparently doing their best to hold the

FORD TOURING CAR ABANDONED

Police have been asked to locate the owner of a Ford touring car bearing Ohio license No. 387-638 which, it is claimed, has been parked along the Chester-Pughtown road since last Sunday. Harry Pittenger, who suspected the machine had been stolen and abandoned, made the report to police.

Feeling is More Tense Than Any Time Since Pershing Led Punitive Expedition Across Border.

"HANDS OFF" HINT TO CALLES REGIME

Fifteen First Class Fighting Ships and Nearly 5,000 Bluejackets and Marines in Civil War Zone.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—The relations between the United States and Mexico are in a more critical state than at any time since Gen. John J. Pershing led his famous punitive expedition across the international boundary 10 years ago.

This was generally recognized in Washington as the largest show of naval strength ever assembled in Nicaraguan waters proceeded to stations off Nicaraguan ports.

Quell Revolt is Ostensible Purpose.

The ostensible purpose of this concentration is to quell the revolution in Nicaragua and maintain Adolfo Diaz in the presidential palace, but the real reason for this show of strength is understood to be to impress upon the Mexican government that it had better keep "hands off" in Central America, and tread lightly in the application of its new land and petroleum laws to American holdings.

Ordinarily, a couple of American gunboats and a handful of marines are sufficient to control any Central American revolution and afford the necessary protection to American legations and property in the Caribbean. It is work with which the navy is entirely familiar and through long practice very efficient.

Yet for this Nicaraguan revolution, in which the combination on both sides number scarcely more than 5,000, the American government has concentrated in Nicaraguan waters, and adjacent to Mexico, a total of 15 first class fighting ships, and nearly 5,000 bluejeckts and marines, all under control of an admiral who has been given carte blanche in their disposition. It comprises the largest naval show the American government has ever staged in Caribbean waters.

Serious Situation.

That a very serious situation may result is universally recognized in Washington.

The American state department put Diaz in the presidential palace and plans to keep him there. The state department has accorded him official recognition, and the American navy has bottled up the Sacasa revolutionists who were fast gaining the upper hand over him.

The Mexican government considers that Juan Sacasa is the constitutional president of Nicaragua. It accorded Sacasa official recognition, and conveniently has looked the other way while his forces secured arms and ammunition from Mexican sources.

If Mexico now chooses to stand stiffly on her prerogatives as a sovereign nation and chooses to supply arms to this Sacasa government which she officially recognizes, an open clash with the United States may be one of the first results, for Admiral Latimer has instructions to stop Mexican gun running.

Most international authorities here concede that in such a situation, Mexico would have international law

Mr. Irwin, who was familiarly known as "Zach," came to East Liverpool from Calineville in about 1882 and had been actively engaged in the pottery industry since then. He was connected with the sales staff of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery for many years, but has been associated with the Edwin M. Knowles company since its organization.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7.—"I have made my peace with God and am ready to go!"

These words were uttered today by Robert F. Thompson, 54, Coshocton farmhand, sentenced to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary Saturday. He was convicted of murdering 10-year-old Gertrude D'Ostroph, near Coshocton, July 30, last.

"I hold no malice against any one. I forgive all," Thompson said.

Indicted Man Charges Prejudice Too Great in Canton.

COURT TO RULE

Pat McDermott Will be Quizzed in Cleveland.

CANTON, O., Jan. 7.—Ben Rudner, indicted for first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, filed a motion this morning in common pleas court for a change of venue. The motion was filed by his attorney, E. L. Mills who cited as reasons for a change that prejudice was so great that it would be impossible for the defendant to have a fair and impartial trial. Mills said that feeling was even greater now since the conviction of Pat McDermott than when he made the motion for a venue change in the McDermott case.

It is expected the motion will be ruled on by Judge Charles Krichbaum either today or tomorrow.

McDermott, convicted "keyman" in the slaying, was to be taken to Cleveland today by Cleveland police officials, who are now on their way there at the instance of Prosecutor Stanton of Cleveland. Pat is wanted in Cleveland as a witness before the Cuyahoga county grand jury which has returned an indictment against Norrris Ben Nadel, for harboring a felon. McDermott will also be used as a witness against Nadel in his trial which has been set for next Monday.

Pat May Leave Workhouse.

While in Cleveland McDermott will be subject to a severe grilling by Cuyahoga county authorities which he escaped when he was turned over to Stark county authorities by his brothers, Bernard and Thomas after he had succeeded in hiding out in a Cleveland apartment house for more than a month after the Mellett murder.

One of the deputy sheriffs of Stark county will accompany Pat to Cleveland and remain there with him until he is returned to Stark county. When he comes back here, Pat will be placed in the county jail and remain there until he is taken to the Ohio penitentiary to serve a life sentence.

Pat is now at the workhouse but

SOLONS VOTE FOR LICENSING OF TAXICABS

Fair-fixing Ordinance Calls for Car Tax of $10.

BAGGAGE FREE

Street Obstruction Issue Prompts Lengthy Discussion.

Council last night enacted by unanimous vote, under a suspension of rules, a taxicab licensing and fare-fixing ordinance.

Under provisions of the measure, the annual license fee will be $10, with a reduction of $5 in the event the permit is issued after June 30. Drivers must be 21 years old and American citizens and not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor or drugs. The rate of fare for the first third of a mile was fixed at 35 cents with a charge of 10 cents for each additional mile. No charge shall be made for baggage and when more than two children under the age of 10 years are accompanied by parents or guardians fares shall be collected for the additional passengers. Rate for the first hour was fixed at three dollars.

The mayor is given the right to order an inspection of vehicles, the cost to be charged to the owner, and rules are prescribed in regard to solicitation business at hotels and railroad stations.

Lengthy discussion took place relative to the removal of a shed in Crook alley adjoining the American theatre Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore explained his action, and said the theatre management had been granted a court injunction. Solon Goodballet declared that if the director planned to move the shed he should also take action against obstructions in front of several potteries which he named. The issue was referred to the board of control.

Liquor violation charge filed against Bradley Burns, East End, upon an affidavit signed by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott was ordered continued until Monday, January 17, by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today.

"FIXED" GAME QUIZ DELAYED BY ONE-TIME SOX INFIELDER

Judge Landis Forced to Postpone Hearing Until 4 p. m.

HITS NEWSPAPER

Like Risberg, Witness Fails to Appear at Appointed Hour.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Hearing of additonal testimony in the charges that Detroit and Chicago conspired in September, 1917, to "slough" a series to the White Sox was postponed this morning until 4 p. m., because of the failure of Chick Gandil, one of the complainants, to apear at the appointed hour of 11.

Signs Affidavit

Judge Landis, in making known the postponement, took occasion to score a local morning paper for it's activities on behalf of Gandil and "Swede" Risberg, his brother-witness of the debarred Black Sox.

Risberg failed to appear on time at the first hearing on Wednesday also forcing a postponement.

An affidavit bearing the signature of Gandil by Risberg that the White Sox "bought" a four-game series from Detroit in 1917, was made public today.

Gandil arrived in Chicago last night. He announced he will attend the hearing in the commissioner's office today and repeat the substance of his affidavit which corroborates in almost every detail the story told by Risberg.

"I met Bill James under the grand stand at Comiskey park before the first game," Gandil's statement reads. "Bill said to me 'these are going to be pretty soft games,' and I said, 'Well, Bill, if it goes all right, I will see that you are fixed up for it.'"

Gandil says he is perfectly willing to go before Commissioner Landis and tell his story, but he serves notice that he will take no bullying.

Gandil is Belligerent.

"If they try any of that, I'll just pick up my hat and go home," he said. "That was the trouble with Risberg. The 'Swede' was too easy with those fellows. He was telling the truth, but he let them bluff him out of it. No one better call me a liar within hearing."

Gandil presented a belligerent front as he prepared to go before Landis to tell his sensational story.

"I've been accused of a lot of things," said Gandil, "I'm kept out of organized baseball despite my acquittal of wrongdoing by a jury. I'm not going to talk just to get even with the fellows who once threw me down. I'm going to talk because Landis ask-

VOICE OF OLD WORLD SOUNDS ACROSS ATLANTIC AND NEW WORLD ANSWERS OVER RADIO-TELEPHONE

BY DAVID P. SENTNER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The voice of the old world sounded across the Atlantic today and the voice of the new world echoed back.

At 8:44 o'clock this morning commercial radio-telephone service was inaugurated for the first time in history between New York and London.

The telephone conversation lasted five minutes and parties at both ends heard each other distinctly, although there was some static.

The buzz of a telephone bell marked a new stage in communication between the two worlds, a step that is a far cry from the days when letters sent by clipper ships, spanking across the seas in three or four weeks, were the only means of communication, a step that is even far in advance of the instantaneous cable flashes, the radio wave, sand the six-day ocean greyhounds that have afforded communication up to today.

The price of the new trans-ocean telephone service is $25 a minute.

The New York and London stations were tuned in at 8:42½. At 8:44 o'clock London and New York were ready to talk.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, sitting in the telephone company's office in New York, talked with Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, secretary of the general post office of Great Britain, for two minutes.

Then Sir Evelyn Murray, in London, talked to Gifford for three minutes.

"We could hear each other clearly," said Gifford, "although there was more static than during previous tests."

No Blare of Trumpets.

There was no blare of trumpets to the epoch-making ceremony. It was a simply staged affair—60 members of the official "family" of the American Telegraph and Telephone company with a dozen newspapermen clustered quietly around a green-baize table in the directors' room.

Twenty headpieces before an equal number of chairs around the table permitted the more fortunate occupants to share in this scientific achievement.

After an introductory address by Gifford to those present, giving a history of the research work over a period of 22 years which attained its successful climax today, he picked up the receiver of an ordinary telephone before him at the head of the table.

His guests, including the International News Service correspondent, adjusted their ear-pieces.

"Good Morning" Message.

"Hello," said Gifford quietly. "Will you give me Sir Evelyn Murray, secretary of the British post office in London, please."

There was a pause of a split second.

SPECIAL SALE OF BINNER CORSETS.

This is the most unusual corset opportunity it has been our privilege to present for some time. There are scores of pairs of Binner Corsets at this price.

Binner Corsets, as every woman who has worn them knows, are quality corsets. A woman cannot feel her best unless she knows she looks her best. Without the proper support, the most beautiful gown or suit will appear dowdy and commonplace.

The Binner Corset gives you the supreme confidence of knowing that your figure is perfectly corseted. Be sure to select the Binner that exactly suits your figure. Often the position of the boning, the shape of the gore or an elastic insert will make all the difference between a comfortable corset and one which is a trial to wear.

Binner Corsets are beautifully made from the highest quality plain coutil and fancy brocades—in flesh only.

They have low bust with slightly raised waistline.

We are closing out our stock of highly desirable Binner Corsets at the following reductions.

$5.00 CORSETS $3.50.
$5.50 CORSETS $4.00.
$6.75 CORSETS $4.75.

Minnesota Students Earn Money to Pay Way Through College

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Approximately 40 per cent of the men students at the University of Minnesota earn all of their way through school, E. E. Nicholson, dean of student affairs says in an article in the current issue of "The Minnesota Parent-Teacher," official organ of the Minnesota Congress of Parents and Teachers

About 66 per cent of the men students earn at least part of their way he said, while of the women students approximately 40 per cent earn part of their way and 18 per cent all their way.

Don't Risk Pneumonia By Neglecting a Cold

If you have a cough or cold, don't neglect it during this pneumonia weather. A cough or cold weakens your resistance. If you let it "go down" into your chest it always causes congestion in your bronchial tubes—and these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

If you get pneumonia, call a doctor immediately. But if you have a threatening cold or cough—even bronchitis—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once! End it before inflammation goes down into the "danger zone."

Quickly and unfailingly Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. Real Medicine, reaching deep with its healing power, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the very first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth. The soothing, healing powers of this hospital-tested medicine are absorbed by the linings of throat, chest and bronchial tubes, just as ink is absorbed by a blotter. This is why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral so quickly stops the cough, drives out the cold and brings sure, lasting relief. pd34c

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is used by doctors and hospital clinics—for children and grown people. Even sick children love its flavor. At all druggists. 60c, twice as much $1.00

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1927.

Starving Public Servants

That Uncle Sam is starving most of his employes is the charge of Congressman Richard Welch of San Francisco. His figures show that 75 per cent of the federal employes working under the classified civil service receive $1,320 or less. Could you bring up a family of five on $1,320 a year? Or of two?

The National Bureau of Economic Research says that it takes $1,800 a year to rear a family of five under decent conditions. The Postoffice Laborers' union has figured $1,945 as the minimum. Of the two, the union ought to be the closer to the actual facts.

If this is the situation, congress' duty is plain. Look at that half-billion treasury surplus. This is too rich a country to starve its servants. The machinery of the government could not be carried on without the thousands of clerks and minor officials who are being so stingily treated. Congress should guarantee them a living wage, or confess the rest of us to be either parasites or misers.

The Mexican Game

The Mexican government's bark is usually worse than its bite, since the days of Huerta and Carranza. President Calles is harder to get along with than was his immediate predecessor, Gen. Obregon, whose honesty and fairness won the general confidence of Americans. Nevertheless Calles and the truculent foreign minister who speaks for him may not act so boldly as they talk.

It does not seem likely that the Mexican government is much more eager to confiscate American property than the American government is to have it do so. The Mexican statesmen must realize what a heap of trouble that would get them into. If they have had any serious thoughts of confiscation, the chances are that they will hedge, after a decent interval. There have been no concrete offenses yet.

This isn't the first poker game played between governments. And the Mexican authorities must know that, whatever their theoretical "national rights" may be in the matter—and of that there is serious question—in practice, they hold a rather poor hand.

They know that Americans do not wish any trouble with Mexico, and will not resort to armed intervention to rescue oil properties belonging to American owners who refuse to trade titles for long-term leases. They also know that Americans like to see property rights safeguarded and business obligations kept, and that the American business arm is as powerful in the long run, to reward or punish, as is the governmental arm.

For Mexico's own future prosperity, she must be fair about American investments. So it is likely that the Mexican authorities, not being fools, are now figuring out a way to be fair, while maintaining the principle they contend for, as nearly as possible.

Sea Exploration

Where will explorers next go? The world is now pretty well combed over. Spots around each pole remain, and there are said to be parts of Arabia of which the western world knows nothing. But none of these possesses one tenth the possibilities of new discovery that are presented by the sea.

Such is the opinion of Prof. W. E. Allen of the Scripps Institution for Oceanography, who has just been addressing a convention of scientists in Philadelphia. No man has even seen the miles of depth that lie below the surface of the ocean. Grappling irons have brought up strange plants and stranger creatures, but all oceanic exploration up to date is just the merest beginning.

Much valuable information could be obtained from a deeper study of the ocean. The changes that go on under the salt water are reflected on land by earthquakes. If we knew more about the ocean, we might foresee and avoid disaster on land. We could also get many valuable products that would help all the way from the fish market to the jeweler's shop.

Here, then, is a hint for the public-spirited rich man. If he wants to do good and perhaps get some fame for himself, he can endow an expedition to explore the depths of the sea.

Gold Coins And Nickels

The week immediately following Christmas revealed the interesting fact that five-dollar gold-pieces make a satisfactory substitute for nickels in pay-telephones.

This deserves notice because it has demonstrated human honesty once more. In New York City 69 gold coins were found when telephone company employes went around emptying the pay 'phone boxes. The coins were turned in to headquarters and in a number of cases were promptly restored to patrons who discovered their mistake and applied for a refund.

It deserves note, too, because it shows show costly carelessness may be. Four dollars and ninety-five cents is a big sum to pay for one telephone call, especially when it doesn't have any more effect on speed and accuracy than a nickel would have. Perhaps two coins of such different values should not be so nearly of a size. Persons who receive the gold ones for presents should either keep them entirely away from other small change or turn them into recognizable bills and silver immediately.

All's quiet on the Rio Grande—no sound but the bubbling of oil wells.

THE PLAN OF THE SHUT-IN.

A gentleman who resided in the heart of the Corn Belt paid his first visit to Chicago. With him came two friends. The three of them occupied one large room in a Loop hotel.

On the second day of sight-seeing the Corn Belter's feet gave out on him, as the saying is. After the soothing contact of ploughed ground and dirt road his soles ached terribly from so much pounding on cement and asphalt.

Leaving his companions to finish out the evening at a theatre, he returned to the hotel and went to bed. When the other two arrived shortly before midnight, they found the door of their room locked. They pounded on the panels until the sleeper awakened.

"Let us in, Zach!" said one of them impatiently.

"Let yourself in," he answered. "The key is outside there in the hall."

"How does it come to be outside when you're inside?" demanded one of them.

"Oh, after I got undressed I throwed it over the transom so's you fellers could git in without no trouble. It must be layin' on the floor."

They found the key and admitted themselves. As they entered one of them asked:

"Say, Zach, what would you have done, locked in here this way if they'd been a fire?"

"Why, I wouldn't have went."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 7.—Los Angeles expects to be larger than London and is moving confidently ahead on that basis. It has the expansion situation by the throat and there will be no narrow, crooked streets to widen and straighten out later on.

On the theory there is plenty of room it will never be a skyscraper city. Buildings are restricted to 150 feet in height. An idea of its size may be gained by this: California covers 158,000 square miles. The area of Great Britain is less than 90,000 square miles.

Britain has more than 42,000,000. California's population is 5,000,000. So much for figures. They may mean much, or nothing. The big results depend on California people. San Francisco has not been overshadowed by Los Angeles save in sudden growth. There is room for each.

The Golden Gate city remains secure, unruffled and a little aloof. It is rich in historical romance and is one of the three cities to which fictionists turn for color. The other two are New York and New Orleans. To see San Francisco is to love it. It has dignity and rare charm.

No other city in America for instance offers a haven for arts and letters that spells the rare fellowship of the Bohemian Club. Then there are the dinky cable cars over Nob Hill, the docks and wharves, the squealing sea gulls, the hills of Sausalito and the anciert and modern craft in the harbor.

And the proud, majestic city itself which rose in splendor Phoenix like from the ashes of disaster. I know of no city standing so splendidly as an entablature to American pluck as this. One feels like approaching it hat in hand.

There is good natured bantering between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The same exists between Amon Carter's Ft. Worth and Dallas in Texas but each has the good sense to realize the brotherhood under the skin. They remind me of the Price boys back home. They were always having boyhood fisticuffs among themselves but let an outsider step in and all would fly to the rescue with the agility of a steel trap.

Los Angeles has much of the garrulity of leisure. There are innumerable tourists and the retired here who have time to talk. It was a pleasant experience today in a restaurant to be seated among six strangers. In no time we were chatting amiably like old friends. One peep from a stranger in a cafe in New York and unconsciously one hand goes to the wallet and the other to the watch. And to stifle the cry of "treason!" I might add I love no city so whole heartedly as that gay, reckless Bagdad on the Hudson.

There are—unless my statistical department is mixed—more automobiles here per capita than in any other city. Traffic is handled with neatness and dispatch. The cars of Hollywood are the grandest in interior equipment and flamboyant exterior. I am told of one movie queen's car that is equipped with a palm sized classic library, a radio, a hidden uke, an electric button that makes the seat a chaise longue and some other things I cannot recall.

One misses much here not playing bridge or golf. For instance Bebe Daniels invited me to a bridge party tonight and Adolph Menjou to play golf in the morning.

Venice is the Coney Island of Los Angeles. A short drive brings you to coasters and dips spun high in the clouds. It is unusual to see young girls in summer frocks with their coatless men milling about in December.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Correct Posture—I.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—The importance of correct posture is being stressed by health authorities and it is particularly urged that children be taught how to stand, walk, and sit properly. The United States Children's Bureau has taken an active interest in this matter and has just released two pamphlets on the subject. One of them contains exercises designed for children suffering from the effects of poor posture, and for use in clinics, while the other contains those which are preventive and are intended for the normal child and for use in schools.

There has been a growing recognition of the value of a posture program in the school curriculum. It is said that at present posture is not taught correctly in the family, at school, or by the medical profession as a whole. This is evidenced by the results of physicial examinations at schools and colleges and of the army examinations during the World war. Poor posture is much more prevalent than good posture. Defects of posture noted in small children in the graded schools are duplicated in college students. It is often said by the average observer that defects of posture are particularly emphasized in the college student. Of recent years this has been especially commented upon in regard to the craze for the so-called collegiate shuffling gait with bent knees and general loose body carriage. It would seem from the appearance of the average student seen about the streets that it is decidedly bad form to walk briskly with upright carriage.

What is indicated as perfect or even good posture has also been impossible for the young girl of fashion of recent years. The style of dress has made any sembance of figure a decided embarrassment and any woman thus handicapped has been hard put to it to reduce herself to the proportions of a slab. Dresses are not only made on straight lines but they are so scant that it is particularly impossible to get into them unless a woman is built along equally straight lines. When it is impossibe to do away entirely with the curves it is necessary for the woman to adjust her posture to the dress so that a slab effect may be achieved.

Posture Clinics Necessary.

It is now pointed out that incorrect posture may result in obscure but distressing ailments of later life. It is just as important that chronic ailments due to continued habits of wrong living and maladjustments of the body to its environment should be combated, as it is to fight those which are the result of infections, deficiency, diseases, or toxins. Posture clinics are therefor definitely necessary to relieve children suffering from ailments due to poor posture.

The new pamphlet of the Children's Bureau says that the program of the future is so to train the individual from early life as to prevent many of the present ailments which are due to poor posture. The interest of the individual in his own maximum physical efficiency should be aroused by education. He should be taught that the freer and more economical use of the body will not only prevent the chronic ailments that may be due directly to poor posture but will conserve energy and thus increase the body's power to resist disease.

A number of ailments may be the result of incorrect posture, although it is emphasized that good posture is not a panacea. Only when no organic cause can be found to explain the symptoms should poor posture be considered the important cause. However, there are times when poor posture may be associated with other factors, and the general condition of the patient may be improved by correcting the posture so as to increase the reserve energy with which to combat the other factors.

Backache may be due specifically to poor posture, as a result of the strain of the supporting muscles and ligaments of the spine in maintaining the body in an erect attitude in a position of mechanical disadvantage. Backache between the shoulder blades or at the small of the back, as well as many headaches at the base of the skull may be relieved, it is said, by balancing the entire spine in its position of normal curvature.

Constipation also may be due specifically to poor posture, and similarly abdominal pain, chest pain, and pain in the legs. Insomnia, poor or capricious appetite, and general disability, or neurasthenia, may be due indirectly to poor posture with its waste of available energy and the subsequent bodily fatigue. Malnutrition and cyclic vomiting are conditions often improved by correcting body posture. When the patient has learned to use his body economically he will suffer less from gastro-intestinal stasis and fatigue which are possible causes of these complaints. As said before, however, it is necessary to be sure that the complaints of the patient are not caused by organic disorders before any hope is held out that his condition will be relieved by improving his body carriage.

Where To Establish Clinics.

Dr. Armin Klein, director of the posture clinic of the Massachusetts General Hospital, says that the logical

30-YEAR MINE FIRE QUENCHED

Millions of Dollars Saved When Ohio Blaze is Checked.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—Fire, which burned during the past 30 years in mine No. 3, belonging to the Sunday Creek Coal company, has been extinguished, H Hickman, superintendent, announced today.

Mining officials estimated that millions of dollars have been saved to the coal industry near Corning and Congo as a result of putting out the flames in the mine.

The fire, which started during a coal strike, destroyed millions of tons of coal. It was similar to that which originated in a mine at New Straitsville and spread to adjoining territory.

Miners who had refused to work near the burning No. 3 mine, will now be employed on a 200-acre tract of 12-foot coal, worth $500,000, which will be mined immediately, it was announced.

STATE REVENUE FALLING OFF

Decrease in Income During Past Three Years Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7. — Figures showing that the state's revenues fell off during the past three years are contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy.

Revenues for 1923, according to the report, aggregated $51 138,284; for 1924, $50.225,248; for 1925, $44,241,912, and for 1926, $47,610,637.

"This decline," the report reads, "has been due to the abatement of the four special tax levies for highway construction, educational building purposes, institutional building purposes and for educational equalization.

"The revenues of the general revenue fund remained practically constant, but, with the repeal of the highway construction and the educational equalization levies, the demands upon the general revenue fund have been greatly increased during the last two fiscal years.

"The weakness of a system of special funds becomes apparent from an examination of the receipts of these state funds during the last few years," declared the report. "When larger amounts of revenue are designated for special purposes, the inevitable result is over-financing in some funds and under-financing in others."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1927.

Starving Public Servants

That Uncle Sam is starving most of his employes is the charge of Congressman Richard Welch of San Francisco. His figures show that 75 per cent of the federal employes working under the classified civil service receive $1,320 or less. Could you bring up a family of five on $1,320 a year? Or of two?

The National Bureau of Economic Research says that it takes $1,800 a year to rear a family of five under decent conditions. The Postoffice Laborers' union has figured $1,945 as the minimum. Of the two, the union ought to be the closer to the actual facts.

If this is the situation, congress' duty is plain. Look at that half-billion treasury surplus. This is too rich a country to starve its servants. The machinery of the government could not be carried on without the thousands of clerks and minor officials who are being so stingily treated. Congress should guarantee them a living wage, or confess the rest of us to be either parasites or misers.

The Mexican Game

The Mexican government's bark is usually worse than its bite, since the days of Huerta and Carranza. President Calles is harder to get along with than was his immediate predecessor, Gen. Obregon, whose honesty and fairness won the general confidence of Americans. Nevertheless Calles and the truculent foreign minister who speaks for him may not act so boldly as they talk.

It does not seem likely that the Mexican government is much more eager to confiscate American property than the American government is to have it do so. The Mexican statesmen must realize what a heap of trouble that would get them into. If they have had any serious thoughts of confiscation, the chances are that they will hedge, after a decent interval. There have been no concrete offenses yet.

This isn't the first poker game played between governments. And the Mexican authorities must know that, whatever their theoretical "national rights" may be in the matter—and of that there is serious question—in practice, they hold a rather poor hand.

They know that Americans do not wish any trouble with Mexico, and will not resort to armed intervention to rescue oil properties belonging to American owners who refuse to trade titles for long-term leases. They also know that Americans like to see property rights safeguarded and business obligations kept, and that the American business arm is as powerful in the long run, to reward or punish, as is the governmental arm.

For Mexico's own future prosperity, she must be fair about American investments. So it is likely that the Mexican authorities, not being fools, are now figuring out a way to be fair, while maintaining the principle they contend for, as nearly as possible.

Sea Exploration

Where will explorers next go? The world is now pretty well tombed over. Spots around each pole remain, and there are said to be parts of Arabia of which the western world knows nothing. But none of these possesses one tenth the possibilities of new discovery that are presented by the sea.

Such is the opinion of Prof. W. E. Allen of the Scripps Institution for Oceanography, who has just been addressing a convention of scientists in Philadelphia. No man has even seen the miles of depth that lie below the surface of the ocean. Grappling irons have brought up strange plants and stranger creatures, but all oceanic exploration up to date is just the merest beginning.

Much valuable information could be obtained from a deeper study of the ocean. The changes that go on under the salt water are reflected on land by earthquakes. If we knew more about the ocean, we might foresee and avoid disaster on land. We could also get many valuable products that would help all the way from the fish market to the jeweler's shop.

Here, then, is a hint for the public-spirited rich man. If he wants to do good and perhaps get some fame for himself, he can endow an expedition to explore the depths of the sea.

Gold Coins And Nickels

The week immediately following Christmas revealed the interesting fact that five-dollar gold-pieces make a satisfactory substitute for nickels in pay-telephones.

This deserves notice because it has demonstrated human honesty once more. In New York City 69 gold coins were found when telephone company employes went around emptying the pay 'phone boxes. The coins were turned in to headquarters and in a number of cases were promptly restored to patrons who discovered their mistake and applied for a refund.

It deserves note, too, because it shows show costly carelessness may be. Four dollars and ninety-five cents is a big sum to pay for one telephone call, especially when it doesn't have any more effect on speed and accuracy than a nickel would have. Perhaps two coins of such different values should not be so nearly of a size. Persons who receive the gold ones for presents should either keep them entirely away from other small change or turn them into recognizable bills and silver immediately.

All's quiet on the Rio Grande—no sound but the bubbling of oil wells.

Britain has more than 42,000,000. California's population is 5,000,000. So much for figures. They may mean much, or nothing. The big results depend on California people. San Francisco has not been overshadowed by Los Angeles save in sudden growth. There is room for each.

The Golden Gate city remains secure, unruffled and a little aloof. It is rich in historical romance and is one of the three cities to which fictionists turn for color. The other two are New York and New Orleans. To see San Francisco is to love it. It has dignity and rare charm.

No other city in America for instance offers a haven for arts and letters that spells the rare fellowship of the Bohemian Club. Then there are the dinky cable cars over Nob Hill, the docks and wharves, the squealing sea gulls, the hills of Sausalito and the anciert and modern craft in the harbor.

And the proud, majestic city itself which rose in splendor Phoenix like from the ashes of disaster. I know of no city standing so splendidly as an entablature to American pluck as this. One feels like approaching it hat in hand.

There is good natured bantering between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The same exists between Amon Carter's Ft. Worth and Dallas in Texas but each has the good sense to realize the brotherhood under the skin. They remind me of the Price boys back home. They were always having boyhood fisticuffs among themselves but let an outsider step in and all would fly to the rescue with the agility of a steel trap.

Los Angeles has much of the garrulity of leisure. There are innumerable tourists and the retired here who have time to talk. It was a pleasant experience today in a restaurant to be seated among six strangers. In no time we were chatting amiably like old friends. One peep from a stranger in a cafe in New York and unconsciously one hand goes to the wallet and the other to the watch. And to stifle the cry of "treason!" I might add I love no city so whole heartedly as that gay, reckless Bagdad on the Hudson.

There are—unless my statistical department is mixed—more automobiles here per capita than in any other city. Traffic is handled with neatness and dispatch. The cars of Hollywood are the grandest in interior equipment and flamboyant exterior. I am told of one movie queen's car that is equipped with a palm sized classic library, a radio, a hidden uke, an electric button that makes the seat a chaise longue and some other things I cannot recall.

One misses much here not playing bridge or golf. For instance Bebe Daniels invited me to a bridge party tonight and Adolph Menjou to play golf in the morning.

Venice is the Coney Island of Los Angeles. A short drive brings you to coasters and dips spun high in the clouds. It is unusual to see young girls in summer frocks with their coatless men milling about in December.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Correct Posture—I.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—The importance of correct posture is being stressed by health authorities and it is particularly urged that children be taught how to stand, walk, and sit properly. The United States Children's Bureau has taken an active interest in this matter and has just released two pamphlets on the subject. One of them contains exercises designed for children suffering from the effects of poor posture, and for use in clinics, while the other contains those which are preventive and are intended for the normal child and for use in schools.

There has been a growing recognition of the value of a posture program in the school curriculum. It is said that at present posture is not taught correctly in the family, at school, or by the medical profession as a whole. This is evidenced by the results of physicial examinations at schools and colleges and of the army examinations during the World war. Poor posture is much more prevalent than good posture. Defects of posture noted in small children in the graded schools are duplicated in college students. It is often said by the average observer that defects of posture are particularly emphasized in the college student. Of recent years this has been especially commented upon in regard to the craze for the so-called collegiate shuffling gait with bent knees and general loose body carriage. It would seem from the appearance of the average student seen about the streets that it is decidedly bad form to walk briskly with upright carriage.

What is indicated as perfect or even good posture has also been impossible for the young girl of fashion of recent years. The style of dress has made any sembance of figure a decided embarrassment and any woman thus handicapped has been hard put to it to reduce herself to the proportions of a slab. Dresses are not only made on straight lines but they are so scant that it is particularly impossible to get into them unless a woman is built along equally straight lines. When it is impossibe to do away entirely with the curves it is necessary for the woman to adjust her posture to the dress so that a slab effect may be achieved.

Posture Clinics Necessary.

It is now pointed out that incorrect posture may result in obscure but distressing ailments of later life. It is just as important that chronic ailments due to continued habits of wrong living and maladjustments of the body to its environment should be combated, as it is to fight those which are the result of infections, deficiency, diseases, or toxins. Posture clinics are therefor definitely necessary to relieve children suffering from ailments due to poor posture.

The new pamphlet of the Children's Bureau says that the program of the future is so to train the individual from early life as to prevent many of the present ailments which are due to poor posture. The interest of the individual in his own maximum physical efficiency should be aroused by education. He should be taught that the freer and more economical use of the body will not only prevent the chronic ailments that may be due directly to poor posture but will conserve energy and thus increase the body's power to resist disease.

A number of ailments may be the result of incorrect posture, although it is emphasized that good posture is not a panacea. Only when no organic cause can be found to explain the symptoms should poor posture be considered the important cause. However, there are times when poor posture may be associated with other factors, and the general condition of the patient may be improved by correcting the posture so as to increase the reserve energy with which to combat the other factors.

Backache may be due specifically to poor posture, as a result of the strain of the supporting muscles and ligaments of the spine in maintaining the body in an erect attitude in a position of mechanical disadvantage. Backache between the shoulder blades or at the small of the back, as well as many headaches at the base of the skull may be relieved, it is said, by balancing the entire spine in its position of normal curvature.

Constipation also may be due specifically to poor postrre, and similarly abdominal pain, chest pain, and pain in the legs. Insomnia, poor or capricious appetite, and general disability, or neurasthenia, may be due indirectly to poor posture with its waste of available energy and the subsequent bodily fatigue. Malnutrition and cyclic vomiting are conditions often improved by correcting body posture. When the patient has learned to use his body economically he will suffer less from gastro-intestinal stasis and fatigue which are possible causes of these complaints. As said before, however, it is necessary to be sure that the complaints of the patient are not caused by organic disorders before any hope is held out that his condition will be relieved by improving his body carriage.

Where To Establish Clinics.

Dr. Armin Klein, director of the posture clinic of the Massachusetts General Hospital, says that the logical

30-YEAR MINE FIRE QUENCHED

Millions of Dollars Saved When Ohio Blaze is Checked.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—Fire, which burned during the past 30 years in mine No. 3, belonging to the Sunday Creek Coal company, has been extinguished, H Hickman, superintendent, announced today.

Mining officials estimated that millions of dollars have been saved to the coal industry near Corning and Congo as a result of putting out the flames in the mine.

The fire, which started during a coal strike, destroyed millions of tons of coal. It was similar to that which originated in a mine at New Straitsville and spread to adjoining territory.

Miners who had refused to work near the burning No. 3 mine, will now be employed on a 200-acre tract of 12-foot coal, worth $500,000, which will be mined immediately, it was announced.

STATE REVENUE FALLING OFF

Decrease in Income During Past Three Years Reported.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7. — Figures showing that the state's revenues fell off during the past three years are contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and economy.

Revenues for 1923, according to the report, aggregated $51,138,284; for 1924, $50,225,248; for 1925, $44,241,912, and for 1926, $47,610,637.

"This decline," the report reads, "has been due to the abatement of the four special tax levies for highway construction, educational building purposes, institutional building purposes and for educational equalization.

"The revenues of the general revenue fund remained practically constant, but, with the repeal of the highway construction and the educational equalization levies, the demands upon the general revenue fund have been greatly increased during the last two fiscal years.

"The weakness of a system of special funds becomes apparent from an examination of the receipts of these state funds during the last few years," declared the report. "When larger amounts of revenue are designated for special purposes, the inevitable result is over-financing in some funds and under-financing in others."

The Little White Hag

By Francis Beeding

©BY LITTLE, BROWN and CO. RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS.

Quexter, the narrator of the tale, is an American employed by the American and Overseas bank in Paris. He starts for Geneva to see the workings of the League of Nations, stopping at Dijon between trains. He is accosted by a small, undistinguished looking American who asks to share his room, stating that he is a schoolmaster. As the two lunch at the inn their attention is attracted by two people a stout, flashily dressed man and a young and attractive woman.

The "schoolmaster" seems nervous, fussing about the locks on the door and windows of their room and insisting on leaving the lights burning all night. Quexter discovers that the story he had told about being imperfectly acquainted with French is false. Quexter sleeps heavily and next morning the schoolmaster is gone—through the window evidently, as the door is still locked on the inside.

Arrived in Geneva, Quexter visits the League of Nations headquarters, learning of the League's investigations into the opium traffic. He goes to the municipal casino or kursaal and at the next table sits the fat man he had seen at Dijon with another man, a Jew, and a woman of the underworld. He overhears their conversation in which the fat man complains about a woman called "Stella," whom he does not trust, and a mysterious "Center" under whose orders the two men and "Stella" seem to be. A dancing girl carrying a basket of flowers steps to the center of the floor and Baldassare, the fat man, exclaims, "Stella at last!" She throws two bouquets, Quexter picking up one and the fat man the other. In his bunch Quexter finds a handkerchief which he uses to wrap of his finger when his taxi meets with an accident and it is cut. He sends the handkerchief to the laundry next morning. The fat man, Baldassare Marce, makes him a call.

Marce asks for the handkerchief, alleging that he is the girl's lover. Quexter refuses.

What further persuasions he uses and with what result are told in the next chapter.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

He looked at me helplessly for a moment, with a queer air of desperation I saw that he had no intention of leaving me. On the contrary, he apparently came to the conclusion that, having exhausted one line of attack he must necessarily try another. He suddenly became quiet and businesslike. He dived a fat hand into a breast pocket and pulled out a pocketbook.

"I quite agree with you," he said. "We have done enough talking. But I want the handkerchief, and I am prepared to pay for it. I'll offer you a fancy price. What would you say to a thousand francs? That's as near as possible to two hundred dollars.

This was a new development and it went beyond anything I had anticipated. There was clearly more in this than the gratification of a mere whim, and it began to dawn on me that the waters were deeper than I had as yet imagined.

I made no sign of accepting his offer, but looked at him warily, and, I hope, almostly wholly inscrutably.

He leaned forward and continued in a low confidential tone.

"See here," he said. "What do you want? I have no time to argue. I'm late as it is. If a thousand francs is not enough, take two thousand."

And rapidly detaching two thousand-franc notes from his pocketbook, he thrust them across the table at the same time winking his damaged eye.

"You are a man of the world," he continued; "you know what ladies are, so terribly exacting."

He leaned across the table and grimaced at me, with a clumsy attempt at good fellowship which completed my disgust.

"I am not accustomed to being bribed," I said coldly. "And I'm afraid that the handkerchief is not for sale.

He looked at me stupidly for a moment, as though he were trying to master the fact that I had actually refused him. Then he brought his fat fist crashing down upon the table so that the cups and plates jumped into the air.

"Not for sale," he blustered. "I give you fair warning, Sir, I came here to get that handkerchief, and I mean to have it."

"I'm sorry, Sir I am not, as I said, to be bribed. Still less am I to be bullied."

He looked at me for a moment, and seeing that I was not now to be moved, he got heavily to his feet. Turning my back on him., I pressed a bell which stood by the wall.

It was answered by one of the hotel servants.

"Show this gentleman out," I said. "And I am not in the hotel if he calls again."

Signor Marce glared at me, and for a moment I thought he would assault me. But, controlling himself with an obvious effort, he turned to go. At the door he paused.

"You will be sorry for this," he said. "You haven't by any means heard the last of it." And he lumbered off in the wake of the gray page.

It took me some time to recover my composure. I had been grossly insulted by a stranger in a public hotel, and the pretext was so extraordinary that the incident left me strangely uneasy.

I looked at my watch and found it lacked but a quarter to eleven, the hour at which the League Committee on dangerous drugs was due to assemble, and I was still anxious to attend it.

I went upstairs and fetched my hat. Arrived in my room, I felt sufficiently curious about the handkerchief to look into the linen basket, but it had already been dispatched to the laundry. On my way out of the hotel, I stopped to ask the concierge whether he knew the man who had just called on me, but he replied that he had never seen him before.

I walked along the quai towards the headquarters of the League, turning the incident of the interview over in my mind. Signor Marce had clearly been lying throughout our conversation. Everything that he had said about being the lover of the dancer was nonsense. His anxiety to get the handkerchief was, however, entirely genuine. What was the motive? What possible reason could there be for attaching such manifest importance to a token which in itself appeared to be wholly insignificant?

Walking along the quai to the offices of the League of Nations, I did my best to subdue the curiosity which these apparently trivial occurrences had aroused. I had come to Geneva to see the League, and I had been lucky enough to strike a moment when a question of some importance to my own country was under discussion. I knew something of the difficulties involved—the immemorial habits of the Far East, which complicated the problem of the production of opium; the important financial interests of the great European drug factories; the inexhaustible ingenuity of the smugglers and middlemen. The influence of the American delegation would, I understood, be wholly on the side of suppression. Our government was doing its utmost to deal with the evils of morphine and cocaine, and, realizing that the vital centers of the traffic were on the European continent, had accepted an invitation to attend the League Committee.

I arrived in the committee room just as the members were taking their seats and settled myself in a window among the journalists and diplomats who constituted the audience.

It was a sufficiently novel experience to drive from my mind the incidents of the morning. It was a pleasant room, and through the open windows the song of a blackbird and the spraying of water on the lawns of the garden broke the monotony of the voices inside. The chestnuts and tulip trees were in bloom, and beyond the quai, white under the morning sun, the lake was fantastically blue under a clear sky, fretted at the rim with the serried pines of the Voirons, the distant shoulders of Alps, and that shapeliest of mountains, the Mole so often mistaken by enthusiastic travelers for Mont Blanc himself.

Around the table of the Committee were men of all accent and complexions China, Japan and Siam stood for the native East, brought into uneasy contact with the white world. Lean officials who had done the work of Europe in the distant countries of the Orient—French, Dutch, and British—presented the Eastern imperial view, while European commerce was represented by delegates of an aspect less ascetic but of an authority by no means less pronounced.

The chief paradox of the moment was the fact that the country within whose limits we were assembled and from which the good fight was being so energetically directed, had been cited that morning as a principal backslider. It appeared that huge quantities of smuggled cocaine and heroin were dispatched from Basle in Switzerland, and that official action in this country for the suppression of the traffic on the lines that were being internationally organized by the League had, for some unaccountable reason, been delayed. One of the delegates referred to a single shipment of 30,000 ounces of heroin which had gone from Switzerland to the Far East, enough to meet the needs of a country like Britain for ten years

One rather dramatic event was pleaded in extenuation. It seemed that quite recently the Swiss authorities had confiscated and destroyed with much pomp and pride a large consignment of cocaine and heroin mostly left over from war stocks. The consignment had been taken as contraband in consequence of information supplied by one of the great Powers It was a striking gesture, but seemed to be somewhat profitless, as no steps were being taken to tighten up the existing system of control.

BAN DAN CUPID FROM CAMPUS

Muskingum College Hits Against Student Marriages.

NEW CONCORD, O., Jan. 7.—Cupid must keep off the campus of Muskingum college. A resolution of the board of trustees, adopted six months ago and just made public reads: "In order to maintain the high moral and social standards of Muskingum college, welfare of the students directs that the clandestine marriage of students during their college course will necessitate expulsion from this institution."

In line with this ruling, the faculty has made the following explanatory statement: "Any student of Muskingum college marrying during the regular college year or during the summer term shall be required to immediately withdraw from the institution without receiving credit for the courses in which he has enrolled at the time of his withdrawal and may not return to college until at least one year has passed. Furthermore, students who marry during the summer vacation may return to college only by special permission of the faculty."

I have often smoked Lucky Strike cigarettes and, frankly, I like them. Their flavor is good and they don't irritate the throat or vocal cords.

J. Wadsworth Jr.

Wadsworth's Powerful, Inspiring Voice

—clear, expressive, it has the quality which creates confidence

NEW YORK'S Senior Senator, noted for a speaking voice of rare impressiveness, safeguards his throat constantly, so as to be ever ready for a debate or a speech. His favorite cigarettes are Lucky Strikes, both for greater pleasure and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

Toledoan Charged With Possessing Burglar Outfit

DAYTON, O., Jan. 7.—The charge of possessing explosives and burglar tools against James Wilson, of Toledo, will probably go to the jury late today. It has been strongly intimated that Wilson will not go on the stand in his own defense. Detectives Quinn, O'Reilly and Hass, of Toledo, appearing as witnesses for the defense, testified that Wilson was a man of good character except for having been arrested on some liquor charges. The prosecution, on the other hand, attempted to prove that Wilson had been in several penitentiaries.

James Roselle, also of Toledo, testified that he accompanied Wilson to Dayton, but he failed to state the object of the visit.

AIR PROGRAM OVERSHADOWS SHIP DEMANDS

Fourth Day of House Debate on Naval Bill.

VINSON UPSET

Setback for Proposal to Raise Air Corps Budget.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—An aggressive campaign to make the navy's sky fighters supreme temporarily overshadowed today the ship-expansion program of the "big navy" clan as the house entered upon its fourth day of debate on the naval bill.

President Coolidge's national defense policy faced another broadside, with attacks and counter-attacks flying thick and fast.

After suffering a setback in his first proposal to raise the navy's air corps budget, Representative Vinson (D) of Georgia, announced that he would renew the battle.

Charging that the administration is not carrying out the five-year air program of congress Vinson demanded funds to add 75 airplanes to the complement of the new aircraft carriers soon to be commissioned.

Funds for Dirigible.

The Georgia congressman's charge is heatedly denied by Representative French (R) of Idaho, in charge of the bill French declared that navy experts are satisfied that the air budget recommended to congress will put the five-year program into operation

After suffering defeat when the house adopted the Begg amendment providing $200,000 with which to start building a $4,500,000 dirigible, administration forces were hopeful they would defeat the new demands for air corps funds.

"Big navy" forces were looking forward to an easy victory on the Tilson amendment making an initial appropriation for three cruisers, which will cost $48,000,000 when completed

There was no indication that President Coolidge had relented from his blunt statement that he opposed the three-cruiser appropriation.

While Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader characterized the proposal as a compromise, Representative French declared that it was directly contrary to the expressed desire of Mr. Coolidge.

Critical Situation

clearly on her side. They say Mexico is as much a sovereign power as is the United States and as such is entitled to sell and deliver arms to whomsoever she pleases.

The state department, however, takes the position that in this instance American rights to the projected Nicaraguan canal and the naval base concession at Fonseca bay are of more importance than technicalities over international law. Hence the 15 warships and the 5,000 men to put a stop to the revolution and the gun running.

Mexican Can Start Conflagration.

Thus the situation stood today, with only a spark perhaps needed to cause a general conflagration in the Carribbean. Mexico can set it off if she chooses.

Meanwhile, the senate revolt against the administration's policy gathered force, but marked time, pending the appearance of Secretary of State Kellogg before the foreign relations committee to "explain" his Nicaraguan and Mexican policies.

Letter to the city auditor from officials of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company was read, requesting a reduction in the assessment for improvements on West Fourth and West Eighth street from $588.43 to $266.66.

The ordinance committee was instructed to prepare a resolution prohibiting the pouring of salt water from ice cream cabinets and other sources on streets and pavements.

Claims committee and the city solicitor were directed to settle the $500 damage claim of Mrs. Thomas Carraher of St. Clair avenue against the city for injuries sustained in a fall in front of the Central fire station. The woman, it is alleged, slipped on grease and oil which had been used in oiling one of the fire trucks.

Ask Ban on Parking in Alley.

Residents of Gardendale submitted a petition for arc lights.

Clerk Shone was instructed to notify Peter Milliron that steps would be taken at an early date to pay the balance of the money due him for sewer work in East End.

Solon George Hughes suggested that the service-safety director take steps to prohibit the parking of automobiles in Crook alley.

Edmond Purton, Bank street, urged the necessity of grading near his property in Carson alley. The question was referred to the service safety director for immediate action.

IN ADDITION to "splitting the infinitive," which should never be done by a Nordic, the professor exaggerates the Nordic's importance.

We could use, very nicely, a few men like Caesar, Archimedes, Plato, Aristotle, Michael Angelo, Leonardo Da Vinci.

They were not Nordics, but Greeks and Italians, representing mixed races. Very likely they got some Nordic blood from the blue-eyed men running up and down the Balkan mountains.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Industrial stocks settled down to a slightly lower range of prices in early trading today. The stock exchange's December exhibit of brokers' loans, showing an increase of about $163 000 000 in that month, was nothing more than the presentation of figures issued weekly by the federal reserve board, but that did not prevent new speculative selling by the bearish traders, with the object of forcing a decline in representative stocks.

Dullness rather than weakness characterized the market as a whole, while the bond market against enjoyed the spot light. Investment buying was again directed chiefly to the bond list, with prime home and foreign government issues, low-coupon industrials and railroad issues "close to the rails" continued their forward movement. The call loan rate advanced fractionally to 4 1-2 per cent for loans extending over the week-end.

"Is that Mr. Gifford?" came a voice with an unmistakable British accent over the wire. It was 8:44 a. m.

They said it came from London but it sounded no further away than telephoning one's grocer.

"Good morning, Sir Evelyn," said Gifford.

"I beg pardon, sir."

"I said good morning. Can you hear all right, sir."

"Yes, yes," answered Sir Evelyn.

Over a period of five minutes, the two talked across the 3,000 odd miles of ocean, Gifford using two minutes, Sir Evelyn three minutes.

The newspapermen scribbled with one hand and pressed their earpieces with the other The others, with the quiet faces of scientists, listened critically. It was part of the day's work to them. To the newspapermen this invisible linking of two continents was a vivid spectacle of the imagination.

Gandil Defers Story

ed for what I know and I've decided to tell it whether it hourts the hypocrites or not.

"What 'Swede' has told is true. He couldn't tell all the story because he don't know it. I can tell it and no man can scare me."

Charges Doubleheaders Were Thrown.

Gandil's affidavit flatly charges the doubleheaders with Detroit on Sept. 2 and 3 were thrown.

"The four games were thrown," read Gandil's affidavit, "by Detroit to Chicago and subsequently a fund of money was raised to which all save one or two of the White Sox contributed $45 apiece. Subsequently the money was delivered by me to Bill James in the presence of Risberg.

"At the time the series began Chicago was two and a half games in the lead with Boston pressing them. The winning of the four games would make Chicago White Sox pennant chances almost sure, whereas the loss of even half of those games would cut the margin that the White Sox had over Boston to almost nothing.

"The first intimation I had that it was generally known among the Chicago players that these games were being thrown was the night after the first ball game in the clubhouse when Rowland, Schalk, Eddie Collins and Gleason were discussing how easily we had won them.

"They mentioned different things that happened during the day and Eddie Collins made the remark how terrible the games looked.

Names Men Who Talked.

"The next day the same talk took place about how bad the Detroit players had looked. After these games I remember that the Chicago players repeated the remarks of the previous day about how easily we had won.

"I can't remember exactly what the players said but I have a recollection that Scha'k, Collins, Felsch, Risberg, John Collins and others took part in the conversation. At that time I do not remember that any mention was made of repaying the Detroit club for throwing of four games. Our club left Chicago after the games and did not return for another game for several days.

"It was upon the return of the club to Chicago that I first heard mention of what we ought to do for the Detroit players. I remember someone suggested giving them—the pitchers, I mean—a suit of clothes.

"I said we ought to make it money and we finally decided that before the season ended we would give the Detroit pitchers about $200 apiece. That meant every one of us would kick in with $45."

All Star Cast.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—An all star cast is billed for the second act of "Swede" Risberg's new play, "What Price Ball Games," scheduled to go on before an exclusive audience in the chambers of Commissioner Landis today.

The skit is arranged in the order of a minstrel, with K. M. Landis, the grey-thatched commissioner of baseball, acting as interlocutor and stage director.

The cast of characters, scheduled to appear in today's act, include:

Bill James—Fresh from California and once a pitcher with Detroit, who was named by the author of the play as the man who handled the $1,100 alleged to have been paid the Detroit team by the White Sox for "throwing" four games in the latters' direction toward the close of the season of 1917. What James replies to Interlocutor Landis is expected to furnish the climax of this tense drama.

Arnold "Chick' Gandil—Fresh from Texas, and once a famous first baseman with the White Sox, who left the pastime for other pursuits following an unfortunate episode back in 1919. Gandil was quoted as being ready to substantiate the charges brought by Playwright Risberg. Speculation as to whether he will or not, only adds to the tenseness of the drama.

Curtain for Risberg.

In case these two famous end men fail to furnish thrills enough, Director Landis may rush Risberg back for a curtain call or two. Risberg appeared in the first act Wednesday, but was something of a flop. His audience over-awed him, it was said.

There is a wealth of available talent, to put the show over, in the event today's headliners, James and Gandil fall down. The supporting cast includes such men as Oscar Vitt, Byrd Lynn, Happy Flesch, Buck Weaver, Roy Wilkerson and others, not to mention any number of stage hands and hangers-on, such as telegraph operators, sport writers and public-spirited fans.

Expect Disclosures.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—Investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was expected to disclose additional important developments here this afternoon, when Pat McDermott, convicted as one of Mellett's slayers, faces five persons who knew him while he was hiding in Cleveland.

Prosecutor Edward Stanton will endeavor in the face of this evidence, to draw from McDermott the secret of who plotted the assassination.

Police here today were holding two young women, one said to be McDermott's "red-haired girl," with whom he had planned to go to Boston. The other, according to the detectives, is the sweetheart of Ben Nadel, Cleveland bootlegger who is charged with maintaining McDermott in the latter's Cleveland hide-out more than two months.

These two girls, together with Dan Pfaff, Nadel's partner, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Slagle, who rented an apartment for the fugitive's concealment, will face McDermott in the prosecutor's office.

Nadel is scheduled to be tried Monday on a charge of harboring a felon. McDermott has been subpoenaed as a state witness, and was reported en route here from Canton this morning. Nadel furnished $25,000 bond last night, and was liberated, pending his trial.

Hillsboro Contractor Claims Bandits Shot Companion.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—A coroner's inquest into the murder of Mrs. Cherly Glardon, 42, while she was automobile riding with Peter Brown, 48, Hillsboro, Ohio, contractor and father of six children, was to be conducted today, county officials announced.

Held in the county jail, pending the outcome of the inquest, Brown, in explanation of the murder, which occurred in a Cincinnati suburb Wednesday night, today adhered to his original story.

He declared that the woman was murdered by bandits who fired through the rear of Brown's automobile as he attempted to escape from them.

Coroner F. C. Swing late yesterday announced, following a postmortem examination of the victim's body, that the wound in the woman's head indicated that the fatal shot had been fired from close range, and possibly not through the rear of the car.

RESERVE JOHN H. FULTZ CASE DECISION UNTIL JAN. 12

Wellsville's Suspended Chief Denies All Allegations.

Mayor Testifies to Purported Conduct of Police Head.

Before a crowd of 75 or more "trial fans" who were packed into the Wellsville city council room, former chief of Police John Fultz denied charges of insubordination last night before the civil service commission in the second hearing of its kind during the year. The commission reserved its decision until Wednesday, January 12.

Four witnesses were called by the prosecution to substantiate Mayor W. L. Fogo's charges of disrespect, disobedience and conduct unbecoming an officer. They were City Hall Policeman John Duncan, George Davis, William Taylor and the mayor, while Fultz and James Pugia testified as defense witnesses.

The case went to the commission without argument.

Solicitor S. C. Luccock was assisted by Attorney S. W. Crawford, of East Liverpool. Defense counsel included Attorneys W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans of East Liverpool.

Marked by frequent verbal clashes between opposing counsel, the hearing did not lack in the elements that kept council chamber filled on the occasion of the first Fultz trial.

Defense attorneys sprang something of a surprise at the opening of the trial when they filed a motion to the effect that the commission was without jurisdiction to hear the case.

The case, Attorney Grosshans announced, falls within the provisions of section 486-19 of the general code which maintains that the hearing shall be held within five days of the certification of facts to the commission.

"The hearing, therefore," asserted Grosshans, "did not occur in the time prescribed by statute and we move that this hearing be dismissed and the chief be reinstated."

The motion sent lawyers scurrying for general code copies and sections were scanned closely.

Solicitor Luccock and Attorney Crawford retaliated with section 486-17. "Section 486-18" said the solicitor provides for a hearing within five days, but the section under which this case is filed provides for a hearing within 30 days. This motion of the defense is improper for the reason that it doesn't come under this statute."

"This section we quote is a special section for police and fire chiefs," contended Attorney Bennett, "whereas your's applies only to patrolmen."

Attorne. Crawford then read the prosecution section and Attorney Bennett followed by reading the defense section.

The commission took the motion under advisement and the case went on.

John Duncan on Stand.

John Duncan, the city hall policeman, was the first witness called to the stand by the prosecution.

After answering the preliminary introductory questions, he announced, in reply to Attorney Crawford, that he was in the city hall on December 9 (the day Fultz was fired).

"Were you, between 10 and 11 o'clock that morning, asked to bring a prisoner from the jail?" asked Attorney Crawford.

The defense objected.

"Show us the records," was the defense counsel's demand, "if there were prisoners in the jail at that time."

Continuing, Crawford asked, "What was your relationship with the prisoners in the jail?"

Duncan asserted that he fed them and generally looked after them.

"On the ninth day of December did you bring any into the police room?"

Defense objected again, demanding to be shown the records that there was some one in jail.

Mayor Fogo produced a police slip. "That's the record that put them in jail," he declared.

"Did you have under your care one James Pugia in jail on December 9?" asked Attorney Crawford.

Defense objections became insistent, attorneys for Fultz demanding again that the municipal criminal docket be exhibited as proof that there was a prisoner in the jail that day. The mayor went to the office of the city auditor and produced the docket.

"Did you have James Pugia in your care?" asked Crawford.

"Yes," answered Duncan.

"Was he brought into court?"

"Yes, the mayor told me to."

"And who was present at the time?"

"Well, the chief, Mr. Davis, William Taylor, the mayor and myself."

"What did the mayor say?"

"He looked at the slip and said, 'I see you have Pugia.'"

"Who to?"

"Fultz. And then he asked 'where is the evidence?' Fultz opened a drawer in the desk and pulled out a bottle."

"Did any conversation take place between the mayor and the chief?"

"Well in regard to the bottle, the mayor said, 'Is that your's, Pugia?'"

"What did the chief do?"

"Well, Mr. Fultz sat there a minute. The mayor asked if the chief knew of Pugia selling and he said no and if he had known of Pugia selling anything last year, and he said no. The mayor asked the chief if Pugia was drunk and he said no and the mayor asked if Pugia was intoxicated and the chief said he wasn't."

"Then what was said or done?"

"Fultz handed it to the mayor. The mayor asked Pugia if it was his and Pugia said 'yes, more in it than last night.' The mayor says, 'you're dismissed.' The mayor put the bottle down and the chief picked it up and put it in his pocket."

"Did the chief attempt to take hold of Pugia?"

"When Pugia said 'that's my bottle and there was more in it than when the chief got it,' the chief started across the floor."

"And what did the chief say?"

"He said, 'Jim, you've told too many G—— D—— lies on me now."

"And what did the mayor do then?"

"The mayor put up his arm and said 'you go back where you belong.'"

"What talk took place between the chief and the mayor?"

"Well, it was just about the bottle business."

"Tell us what it was."

"Well, the chief started like he was going to neck him (Pugia) and then he went back and quieted down."

At this point in the testimony it occurred to defense counsel that the witness had not been sworn in, but the defense attorneys announced their willingness to admit his veracity and continue the case. However, Duncan was sworn in by the mayor and previous questions were repeated.

"What further conversation was there?"

"Well, as I say, Fultz reached over and put the bottle in his coat. The mayor told him to put it back and Fultz said 'No, I won't.' The mayor asked him again and Fultz said 'that's my bottle' and then the mayor said, 'You're suspended for disobeying my orders.' Fultz asked for it in writing and the mayor said he'd give it to him when he had time."

Attorney Grosshans examined the witness for the defense.

"Have you reported all the conversation between the mayor and the chief?"

"All that I have been asked."

"When the mayor came in he asked you to bring in Pugia and you went down and brought him up. Then did he reach over on the desk and pick up an arrest slip?"

"Yes."

"Did he read that slip out loud?"

"Yes."

The police slip was produced, and Duncan identified it.

"What did the mayor say?"

"Bring the prisoner up."

"After that what did he say?"

"What evidence have you against Pugia?"

"That's the first thing he said?"

"Yes."

"Did he read all of the slip?"

"Well, I believe there was some more added to it after that."

Duncan then told of the details again in connection with the exhibition of the bottle and Pugia's dismissal.

"Did the mayor read the charge to Pugia?"

"I didn't hear him."

"Did he say to Pugia, 'Are you guilty or not guilty?'"

"I didn't hear him say that."

"Was Fultz sworn in; was any witness sworn in?"

"Well, I don't know."

"Did you have a trial?"

"I would have called it a trial."

"What other conversation took place?"

"Well, there was some other talk about the mayor being elected and the chief appointed, and I don't just know exactly what all there was."

"Tell us, didn't one point out that one was as well liked as the other, that one was appointed and one elected."

Solicitor Luccock interposed an objection, terming the testimony irrelevant and the witness was excused.

William Taylor Called.

William Taylor, garage owner, followed Duncan on the witness stand. He admitted being present on the day in question.

Taylor testified that Pugia was brought in, Fultz produced the bottle; Pugia admitted it was his but said there was more in it and Fultz warned Pugia not to tell any more lies about him; and then the chief picking up the bottle and putting it in his pocket.

"Would you have any idea," questioned Solicitor Luccock, "as to the amount of liquor in it?"

"I'd say a pretty good drink—about two inches."

"Was anything said about the quality or what kind of liquid it was?"

"Not as I know of."

"Did Fultz say why he put it in his pocket?"

"It was his evidence."

"Did he return it to the mayor while you were there?"

"Not while I was there."

Questioned by Attorney Bennett, Taylor asserted that he did not remember of the mayor reading an affidavit charging Pugia with possession when Pugia was brought into court.

"Did he ask if Pugia was guilty or not guilty?"

"Don't remember of it."

"Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"No, neither did the mayor, they both treated each other all right."

Mayor on Witness Stand.

Mayor Fogo was called to the stand. Questioned by Attorney Crawford he identified the criminal docket containing a description of the Pugia case.

"What did you say when Pugia came in?"

The mayor testified that he got the police clip, in which Pugia was charged with possession, signed by Cole, on October 9. He then said he asked for the evidence and the chief reached into a drawer and took out the bottle, handing it to the mayor. The mayor said he asked Fultz if there had been complaint against Pugia on the ground of selling, or intoxication and the chief, he said, explained there had been none. The mayor related that he asked Pugia if that was his bottle and the latter replied that it was only there was more in it.

Details of the ensuing events were related substantially as prior witnesses had testified.

He was examined by Attorney O'Grady, of the dfense.

"Was there an affidavit in the Pugia case?"

"It wasn't complete at the time. We tried that case practically the same as all cases. It was filled in later."

"Did you swear Pugia?"

"No."

"Fultz?"

"No. We never do in ordinary cases of the kind."

"Did you analyze the liquor?"

"Not enough of it."

"Don't you know it's good evidence of taste or smell?"

"There wasn't enough of it."

"Where was the bottle found?"

"In the back of the store."

"Is any particular volume required in evidence?"

"No."

"How did you expect to determine the truth as between the two men?"

"There wasn't any dispute. Pugia admitted there was liquor in it, but some of it wasn't his. Fultz took the bottle home with him over night."

"Was there a notation on the bottle?"

"Yes."

"What was the wording?"

"I don't remember, exactly. They generally 'tab' them."

"Do you remember the Checklec case?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you fine him on the smell?"

"No, sir, he was selling at the time."

"No."

"A 50 gallon still?"

"You probably mean a still taken from a garage."

"How did you arrive at the judgment that Pugia was not guilty when there were no witnesses sworn?"

"That's a prerogative of the court, and the court can act as it sees fit, to fine or release."

"When were the entries made in docket?"

"I don't just remember, but not that day, anyway."

"Did Pugia make any plea?"

"No."

"Why did you make an entry in the docket that Pugia was guilty and then dismiss him?"

"In order to keep the docket right."

"You said to Fultz, 'you're through'?"

"Yes. He said he knew I was boss, but he was going to keep the bottle."

"And you dismissed Pugia without a trial?"

"No, sir."

"Why didn't you call Cole?"

"Never do. The chief of police generally holds court. We never call the patrolmen out of bed."

"Did you ask Fultz if he had put any liquor in the bottle?"

"No."

"Why didn't you ask him that?"

"It wasn't necessary. I didn't think it was necessary to fine Pugia on that amount of liquor.

"You style yourself, 'superior officer,' don't you?"

Attorney Crawford objected and Attorney O'Grady explained his question by asserting that "He's not the superior officer of the chief of police."

"You have a safety director, don't you?"

"Yes."

"He has charge of the police, doesn't he?"

"Yes."

"And the chief of police?"

"I don't know about that."

"But the superior officer of the police and the chief of police is the safety director?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what's your understanding?"

"The mayor and the safety director both."

"When was Fultz's conduct unbecoming an officer?"

"When he swore at the prisoner."

The mayor repeated what Fultz is purported to have said in charging Pugia had lied about him.

George Davis on Witness Stand.

George Davis, Wellsville newspaper publisher, was called to the chair.

After preliminary questions, Attorney Grosshans asked:

"Was there any affidavit read in which Pugia was charged with possession?"

"There was not."

"Did the mayor ask Pugia if he was guilty or not guilty?"

"No."

"Then there were no witnesses sworn, examined nor pleas entered?"

"No."

Additional testimony by Davis was substantially the same as that of the previous witnesses.

When the defense attorney attempted to interrogate Davis in respect to conversation between the mayor and the chief, relative to claims that one had said he was elected by a large majority of the people and the other had asserted he had been appointed by a good man, Solicitor Luccock objected.

The solicitor contended that testimony of conversations or transactions after the chief had been dismissed should not be admitted while the defense pointed out that such testimony was part and parcel of the entire proceedings.

"The evidence in connection with the charges should end with the dismissal," asserted the solicitor.

Grosshans continued. "Did Fultz show any disrespect?"

"There was none at any time," said Davis.

Fultz Explains Court Scene.

The former chief took the witness stand.

He related that he had been removed twice and reinstated on the first occasion, testifying that he had reported regularly for duty from September 11 to December 9.

"What happened then?"

"I was fired."

He then told of the Pugia arrest in connection with which police found the bottle at Pugia's place and, in addition, empty cans, yeast, kegs and "other equipment."

He testified that no one had been sworn, and that Pugia had not been asked to make a plea to the charge.

"Is it customary to swear police in court cases of this kind?"

"Sometimes, sometimes not."

"What did you do with this bottle?"

"Put it in my pocket."

"Did you take the charge against Pugia anywhere else?"

"To Lisbon."

"What happened?"

"He pleaded guilty to possession."

"Did you say G—— D——you to Pugia?"

"I never swore at Pugia at all."

Attorney Crawford questioned Fultz.

"You took it for granted that you were dismissed by the mayor at the time?"

"I heard what he said."

"But a lot of conversation you testified to took place after you realized you were not serving as chief?"

"No, I didn't recognize it until he gave it to me in writing."

"What did you do with the cans and kegs?"

"Isn't it the duty of the chief of police to bring them in?"

"Not until the next day, usually."

After discussing methods used in various other police courts, the chief was excused and James Pugia was summoned.

He testified to the bottle episode.

"Whose bottle was it, Jimmy?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"Mine."

"Had it been full at one time?"

"Yes, I drank it."

"Have you got any other liquor, Jim?"

Pugia grinned and made no reply.

"Were you taken to Lisbon, Jim?"

"Yes."

"What did you do over there?"

"Pleaded guilty."

"Pay your fine?"

"Yes, all but $45."

"How much do you still owe?"

"$45—pay it Monday."

"Have you sold any since he's been mayor?"

"Little bit."

He was examined by Attorney Crawford.

"Did you tell the mayor there was more stuff in the bottle than when you had it?"

"Yes."

"Was there?"

"Yes."

"What did the chief say to you?" asked Attorney Bennett.

"You lie too much to me."

"You had told lies about Fultz, hadn't you."

Pugia nodded his head affirmatively as Solicitor Luccock objected to the question.

"How often did Fultz search your place."

"Nearly every week."

"Where was this bottle?"

"In a bushel basket back in the store."

"Whose still was that the police got?"

"Mine."

"Were you fined?"

"No."

The Salineville Kiwanis club held its first business meeting for the new year Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the United Presbyterian church.

The meeting was opened by the singing of "America" by the members, followed by prayer by R. W. Daley.

At his request members tendered the retiring president a vote of thanks.

An outline of the program for 1927 was given by Mr. Hutson, who called on the chairmen of the various committees to express their ideas. It was suggested that each church entertain the club for a three months' period. The meeting was brought to a close by singing "Till We Meet Again."

COOK'S WIDOW STILL IN JAIL

Hold Irondale Woman Pending Investigation.

Mrs. Lorraine Cook, of Irondale, wife of William Cook, 28, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home with a bullet wound in his temple, is still a prisoner in the Jefferson county jail at Steubenville today pending the completion of an investigation by Sheriff Allison.

Officials advance the theory, at present, that the man probably was a suicide.

Arrangements for the gun victim's funeral have not been completed.

After the "Flu" is over —you need a Tonic

Help Is Needed to Restore Your Wasted Strength and Energy.

"Flu" leaves the body weakened and rundown. In such cases, a tonic is clearly indicated. Restore the appetite and rid yourself of that let-down feeling.

"Flu' is a very enervating disease. It leaves its victims so weak and debilitated that there is as much danger from the after-effects as from the disease itself. In other words, after an attack of the "flu," you need a selective tonic to rebuild the system so that you may have your old-time strength and energy restored.

S. S. S. is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality.

You owe it to yourself and family to give S. S. S. a trial. It helps Nature build up red blood corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable. S. S. S. is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

SUSPECTS HELD AT WELLSBURG

Brooke County Officials Silent on Round-up at Follansbee.

Prosecuting Attorney James R. Wilkin and Sheriff Robert M. Love of Brooke county, are maintaining silence on the arrest of nine men who were rounded up Wednesday in a raid at Follansbee and who are said to have been members of a gang engaged in criminal operations in the county. Further arrests will probably be made, it was said.

Five of the men arrested early yesterday morning were found in what is believed "headquarters" in the Grossman building where, it is said, they had taken five rooms. None of the men are members of Follansbee families, it was said, and all appeared to have drifted into the district recently.

They are registered at the jail as Frank Berine, Vito Galloti, Dominic Dieto, Antonio Vizzora and Pretc Dringtio. The last named was released today when officials failed to connect him with any of the cases under investigation, it was said.

Of the men arrested previously, only one has been released and he is at liberty under $5,000 bond He is Joseph Presty. Others held in connection with the criminal investigation are Frances Tripeti, arrested recently at Wheeling for robbery and Tony Marino. Jimmy DeMarco believed to be another member of the band, is serving a sentence of six months in the Ohio county jail at Wheeling on a pistol toting charge.

Last member of the band and the youngest, Tony Paratto, 19, was brought to Wheeling from the Ohio county jail at Wheeling where he had been taken for "sake-keeping." Although official confirmation is lacking, it is believed generally that Paratto is the man who revealed to Brooke county officials the location of the "headquarters" at Follansbee. Paratto was closeted with Prosecutor Wilkin at the Ohio county jail for a number of hours last Tuesday night, although the subject of their discourse was not made public.

There is no direct evidence connecting any of the prisoners with any specified crime, it is understood. Efforts are being made, however, to connect some of the men with the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, which occurred recently and with "blackhand" letters and robberies in the district, all of more or less recent occurance.

DECIDES ALIEN CAN OWN DOG

Marshall County Jurist Holds Section of Game Law is Invalid.

Judge P. D. Morris, of the Marshall county circuit court, yesterday handed down a far reaching decision when he ruled that the provision of the state fish and game code which makes it unlawful for a resident alien to own a dog is unconstitutional.

The ruling came in a case carried up from a justice court on appeal. Mike Retqzog was fined $20 and costs by Justice W. E. Clayton, for possessing a dog. Through his counsel, Attorney Martin Brown, he gave notice of an appeal.

In this ruling Judge Morris said that no distinction shall be made between resident aliens and citizens as to acquisition, tenure or disposition of property. This has been established, the court said, by a decision of the supreme court, which makes it possible for a resident alien to own and hold real estate. The same should apply in the case of dog ownership, according to Judge Morris.

Result Of Baseball Trial May Rest With James' Testimony

Expect Him To Tell Whether Sox Money Was Bribe Or Gift

By Davis J. Walsh.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Bill James, the one credible witness in America who can be expected to know with definite finality whether the $1,100 fund raised by the Chicago White Sox in 1917 for sole distribution in the Detroit locker room constituted a gift or a bribe, was scheduled to take the stand this morning in baseball's latest self-inquisition. His testimony probably will furnish the finale of Judge Landis' hearing of the charge that the Detroit-Chicago series of September, 1917, was a "'slough," a term of great culture meaning to cast off, as of a used razor blade.

Other witnesses may include Chick Gandil, brother conspirator in the Black Sox scandal with "Swede" Risberg, instigator of the present investigation; Oscar Vitt, Roy Wilkinson, Byrd Lynn and a gent named Hasbrouck, ex-major leaguers who took part in the disputed series, who were scheduled to be heard today but the tip was that the judge would concentrate every effort in trying to break down the stories told on Wednesday by Detroit players or in seeking corroboration of Risberg's testimony from James.

The latter was due to arrive in Chicago at 10:30 this morning, only an hour before the scheduled start of the hearing. It was James who has been named by everyone concerned as the middleman from the Detroit end, and agent who officiated at the pay off.

He, therefore, might be suspected of knowing whether the money he received for distribution was for Detroit's alleged "slough" of the series in question, as charged by Risberg, or was a semi-legitimate reward paid to Detroit pitchers for beating Boston earlier in the same month, as maintained by Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, Donie Bush and the remainder of the accused.

Landis' pre-hearing attitude today was said to be that he would not convict any of the twenty-nine witnesses heard to date on the allegations of self-incriminated conspirators such as Risberg and Gandil. But he did hope to get somewhere by a thorough grilling of those mentioned from the Detroit end, particularly James.

An especially hot tip was that George Dauss and Bernie Boland, Detroit pitchers, would be recalled to the stand to elaborate upon the testimony they furnished on Wednesday. It was said that Landis, in the meantime, had thought of "additional questions to ask them." Dauss testified that he did not pitch in the disputed Detroit-Chicago series but the judge neglected to ask him why he wasn't one of the participants.

Furthermore, Detroit will get another rally on the question of scandal just as soon as the present inquest is finished. The judge, I understand, means to probe the charge that the St. Louis Browns gratituously engaged in a "slough" to the Tigers in 1923. These charges originally were credited to Ty Cobb, and the judge, it is said, will look into them thoroughly in spite of Cobb's reluctant disclaimer of authorship at Wednesday's hearing.

However, the judge apparently didn't even dare to hope that he would get any further with this investigation than it seems probable he will progress with the present probe. The latter, barring corroborative testimony by Bill James of Risberg's allegations or failure on the part of some of the previous witnesses to stay with their story, seems destined to degenerate into a question of veracity between Risberg and Gandil on one side—and—on the other, all the remaining witnesses involved.

FRED HEIMACH must virtually start all over again to prove to the baseball world that he is a big league pitcher. This after laboring five years to win a place in the sun. Heimach was sent to the St. Paul club this winter in the deal that sent Hofmann to the Red Sox.

FRED HEIMACH

Heimach went to the Athletics from Moline in the fall of 1921 with hopes high. He had won 24 and lost but 8 games for the Three Eye team. His southpaw slants completely mystified the boys there. But he failed to become a consistent winner for Connie over a period of four years. His best season was in 1924 when he won 14 games and lost 12.

The Orange and Black passers have been working regularly over the holiday season, and, as a result, are in top condition for the engagment.

The Wellsville M. E. church five and the East Liverpool Scholastics will mix in the preliminary, beginning at 6:45 o'clock.

Tomorrow night, the Wellsville teams, boys' and girls,' will play at East Palestine.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The natural easiness of the golf swing must always be carefully watched, too, when you are making short pitch or run-up shots. An easy rhythm of movement is perhaps more to be desired here than in longer shots because now you are playing for an exact result whereas in the long shot a general result will do. Haste of action with the club for these short shots will invariably make them go bad. If you have a mashie pitch and you take the mashie back quickly you will invariably start forward with it before you have attained the top of the back swing. Your hands then will come even with the ball before the blade gets there and a topped ball will result. Even in the shortest of approach shots, as well as for the longer ones, be sure to take the clubhead back easily and smoothly. Give it time to turn, then drop it into and through the ball.

BULGERS LEAD IN 'Y' LEAGUE

Defeat Seniors for Second Straight Victory.

Bulger Drugs took the lead in the "Y" basketball league race last night with a victory over the Seniors, 41 to 23. The game was fast, and rough in spots, the Drugs outplaying their opponents through most of the contest.

The Seniors went into the lead at the start, Hancock sinking the first basket. Cannon tied it up but Kidd's foul put the Seniors ahead and they stayed in front until the end of the period when the count stood 10 to 6.

The Drugs overhauled the Seniors in the second quarter, leading 18 to 16, at the half way mark. In the two final periods, the Drugs assaulted the baskets with reckless abandon and walked away with the match. Green, Wain and Cannon did most of the scoring for the winners. Kidd, Canne and McGraw played well for the Seniors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Tod Morgan, of Seattle, world's junior lightweight champion, clashes with Phil McGraw, of Detroit, in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. The match was signed at catchweights but if McGraw can make the 130 pound limit this afternoon the title will be at stake.

CHESTER SET FOR IRONDALE

Boys' and Girls' Teams in Double Bill at Park.

With a victory in their inaugural engagement to speed them on their way toward further accomplishments during the 1927 season, Coach Ray Wilde's Chester high school team is confident of adding another conquest to its list tonight with Irondale high as the prospective victim.

The high school lads played a flashy brand of basketball in triumphing over the Alumni last Friday, 18 to 13, and are confident the Jefferson countians will be unable to provide opposition of a more dangerous nature than the graduates did.

The bill for tonight calls for a double header, with the girls' and boys' teams both in action. The girls will clash in the preliminary beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Fight Results

AT PHILADELPHIA—Babe Ruth, of Philadelphia, won on foul from George Balduc, of Canada, in eighth round.

AT FORT THOMAS, Ky.—Jimmy Clump, Cincinnati, got decision over Terry McMullen, Sidney, 10., ten rounds.

Lilly Sieman, Cincinnati, drew decision over Chick Rose, Fort Thomas, in a six round affair.

Sets New Swim Record.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Johnny Weissmuller was today owner of a brand new world's swimming record. Johnny negotiated the 100 yards free style in 49 4-5 seconds, clipping 2-3 seconds from the old mark, during an exhibition swim at the Illinois Athletic club last night. Weissmuller's new mark is considered as the equivalent of running 100 yards in nine seconds.

Denison Defeats Florida U.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 7.—The Denison University basketball team won a slow and uninteresting game from University of Florida's quintet here last night, 30 to 17. Denison lead, 15 to 9 at the end of the half. Both teams showed poor form, missing baskets frequently.

Locals Confident Of First Victory

Tom Pusey, Guard, Only Absentee on Blue and White Five for Initial All-School Clash of Season; at Lisbon Tomorrow.

ANOTHER sample of Akron scholastic basketball will be dished up for Ceramic City cage followers tonight when Akron East tangles with Coach N. F. Lorah's high school squad at the high school gym, the engagement marking the initial all-scholastic clash of the campaign here.

Akron Central a year ago gave a capable demonstration of the court game as played in the Rubber City and tonight the East quint will try to repeat.

Guard Tom Pusey will be the only absentee when the Blue and White forces trot out onto the floor tonight. Captain Hamilton, Wilblood, McKeever and Bloor will furnish a quartet for the selection of forwards with Hamilton certain of one. English and Todd are on deck for center duties. Bromby, McConville and Deidrick will furnish a running mate for Dick Larkins in guard territory.

The team is set to keep an eye on Keeney, East's start forward, who has proven thus far the most consistent scorer on the Akron squad. As a whole, the local squad is confident of turning in their first win of the season tonight.

The preliminary also is certain to develop a great game, with the high school reserves clashing with the Salem reserves. The probable selections for the East Liverpool lineup in the prelim tilt include Small and Bill Pusey at forwards, Dykes at center and Craword and Menge at the guards. This game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Both the boys' and the girls' teams are scheduled to play tomorrow night at Lisbon, in the first contests of the season.

HOPPE RALLIES TO PASS CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Having won the second block of his titular match with Eric Hagenlacher, the champion, Willie Hoppe today was leading by a score of 1,000 to 840 and was in a fair way of regaining the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship. The third and final block will be played tonight.

The score of the second block was 564 to 340. Hoppe averaged 29 13-19 and Hagenlacher 17 17-19.

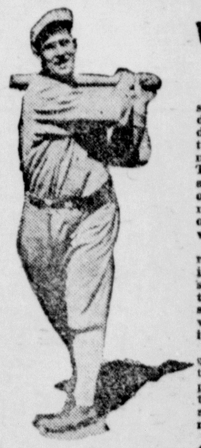
McDOWELL BOWS TO N. JOHNSON

N. Johnson defeated McDowell, 75 to 54, in last night's match in the American pocket billiard tournament.

Sainor and Osborne are scheduled to match cues tonight.

MOSTIL'S MOTHER HAD RHEUMATISM HE TELLS HOW SHE GOT RID OF IT

Big League Star Gave Her Liniment They Use at the Ball Park



JOHNNY MOSTIL

WORKED LIKE MAGIC RHEUMATISM ALL GONE

"My mother had rheumatism in her knees and ankles something terrible and naturally tried different remedies and treatments but with no lasting results, so one day I took her home a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment, the kind we ball players use for aches, pains and stiffness. Mike Martin, you know, is the famous Big League Trainer, now with the Washington Ball Club. Mother applied Mike Martin's Liniment according to directions on the bottle, and you should hear her praise that stuff now. It knocked out those rheumatic troubles almost overnight," declares Johnny Mostel, Chicago's whirlwind Center Fielder.

Thousands of men and women have used this remarkable liniment with the same results. One thing is sure, Big League Stars like Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Sisler, Mostel, Aldrich and others wouldn't waste time using any liniment but the best for aches, pains, stiffness, lameness and swollen joints, and Mostel wouldn't take it home to his mother unless he knew it would do the work.

Mike Martin's Liniment is made of the finest ingredients money can buy. It works quicker, surer, better, than old-time, nasty, blistering liniment. It is pleasant to use; you can rub it for hours without blistering even the tender skin of a baby, and it works almost like magic on rheumatic, sciatic, neuralgic and neuritis, pains and aches.

If your dad, grandmother or anybody you know suffers, get them a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment—they'll be mighty glad you thought of it. 65c and $1 per bottle at or parcels post by writing Mike Martin, Trainer, Washington Ball Club, Brentwood, Md.

DAYTON WOMAN IS AUTO VICTIM

DAYTON, O., Jan. 7.—Thelma Jenkins is in a hospital today and is expected to die from injuries received when run down last night by an automobile driven by Ellis Holsapple. The young woman was carried a distance of 75 feet, it was said, before the car was stopped.

Holsapple is to appear in court today.

VETS INSTALL POST OFFICERS

Decorations Presented to Leaders of Auxiliary.

Officers were installed at a joint meeting of Private Eddy Post No. 66, Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliary, held in the Brookes building, Fifth and Market streets, last evening.

Decorations were presented to Mrs. Rosengerg, past president; Miss Mitchell, quartermaster for three years; Miss Jennie Rodell, who secured the most new members during the year, and Miss Alice Kinsey, for faithful service in the department.

Short talks were made by Miss Alice Kinsey, Mrs. William Kinsey, Mrs. Nettie McDonald and Mrs. Rosenberg, of the auxiliary, and William Kinsey L. McPherson, Harry Green, Vaughn Weaver and H. E. Campbell, members of the post.

During the year the auxiliary lost four members by death. They were: Mrs. Ida Emmerling, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Sowers and Miss Mary Logan.

While flying between London and Paris at a height of 6,000 feet, Captain A. S. Wilcockson was startled by a bang on the glass of his windshield, and later found that it had been caused by a wasp which was still clinging to the glass.

It is almost as difficult for a medium to predict what is going to happen as it is for a historian to record what has happened—Cincinnati Times-Star.

COL. TIM M'COY AT AMERICAN

"War Paint," Western Picture, Opens Three-day Run.

The person, or persons, who picked Col. Tim McCoy for a western film star should have a medal.

At last the screen has a new face and figure which radiates personal magnetism and doubtless will attract thousands of film fans who are tired of looking at some of the old types of western heroes who depend largely on six-shooters and horses to put them across.

McCoy, young and good looking, has the appearance of one from "the great open spaces." He looks western and acts western. He has a natural grace which ought to take the place of any lack of screen technique.

McCoy goes through his scenes as though no camera were present to record them. It is not acting with him in any sense of the word. Rather, with him, it is business of dealing with Indians and soldiers just as he has dealt with both on the plains and on the field of battle.

This new western hero is the son of a former army and is now a brigadier general of Wyoming State Militia.

The next job was to persuade him to give up ranching and take up acting. His first screen appearance, in "War Paint," which opened yesterday at the American theatre, proves that the American made no mistake. He is ably supported by Pauline Starke, Karl Dane and a number of other well-known players.

STRAND OFFERS CLEVER REVUE

Last Season's Favorites Appear With Clark Sisters.

Several of last season's favorites are in the cast of the Clark Sisters' revue, playing at the Strand theatre this week. Among them are Mary, Agnes and Rose Clark, who will be remembered for their distinctive individual hits last year.

The show this season has been improved very materially by new scenery. The novelties are above the average, and the chorus is referred to as "youthful," energetic, talented and comely.

VOL. XLVII. NO. 52. EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1927. PAGE FIFTEEN

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Senator David Aiken Reed of Pennsylvania is reliably reported to be scheduled to succeed Judge E. H. Gary as head of the United States Steel Corporation.

DAVID REED

"Reliably reported" is a much abused expression, but this really is an inside tip.

It's political rather than industrial. The first hint was to the effect that Reed will resign the senate before the end of his term, March 3, 1929.

Resign? Why? To step into Judge Gary's shoes. That's the dope, from a source mighty near the fountain head.

Judge Gary and the United States Steel Corporation have come to be almost synonymous terms, but the judge is very old. Unless he means to die in harness, he must retire soon.

It isn't good business to have the director of a billion dollar concern die on the job. It's financially disorganizing.

Such changes need to be made in good order—not hurriedly, to meet an emergency. It may be taken for granted that Judge Gary himself, looking back from the "other side" would not want to see a market shake-up, due to the fact that he had hung on too long.

Senator "Dave" Reed is just over 46 years old—old enough to be ripe, if he's ever going to be, for about the most important industrial post in the world, and yet young enough to give promise of filling it for a long time to come if he wears as well as Judge Gary has worn.

He's a Pittsburgher, born and bred—a native of the capital of the realm of steel.

He never was a puddler, like Charlie Schwab. He cut his teeth in a silver spoon. But he's one of the country's foremost authorities on corporation law, and corporation law, in Pittsburgh, means steel.

For that matter, Judge Gary never worked, physically, in a steel mill. He's a lawyer, too, and an executive, and a financier.

Reed can qualify in all these respects, and he has a steel back-ground, besides. The glare of furnaces was in his eyes against the sky as he lay in his cradle a baby. He knows the business, through a lifelong process of absorption, if he doesn't know it, literally, as a trade.

"Dave" Reed has been a good senator.

He's highly intelligent. His ideals also are high. And he has nerve.

He's a conservative. With the sohouse of congress he has little in common. In some respects he'd like, called progressive group in the upper quite frankly, to see governmental methods back up.

But he's honest. If he's for what others consider reaction, he says so straight out. When, now and then, his own party stands for what he thinks a wrong policy, "regularity" doesn't prevent him from fighting it.

Reed belongs to what is generally known as the "silk stocking" element in the senate.

It isn't altogether popular. Whether rightly or not, the hard boiled solons fancy that the "silk stockings" look down on them. They resent it, and this resentment frequently crops out in debate.

All the same, Reed's respected by his fellow lawmakers as a man who, if he does deem himself an aristocrat, aims to live up to his notion of all that an A No. 1 aristocrat ought to be.

Wide-awake Children Brought up on Father John's Medicine

BECAUSE her mother used it when she was a little girl, Mrs. J. J. Whitney, Melrose, Mass., knows the value of Father John's Medicine and has always used it for her own children. Mrs. Whitney, like thousands of mothers has learned to depend on Father John's Medicine when any of the family has a cold or a cough, or has become weak or run down. Its pure food elements build new strength to throw off disease. Its healing properties soothe the throat irritation and it helps to drive out impurities. And it is free from alcohol and drugs.

$1,400 IS PAID ON OLD FINES

Paroled Men Act When Sheriff Hints Arrests.

Between $1,300 and $1,400 has been received by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker, to be applied on fines standing against paroled liquor violators since the commissioners instructed Sheriff George Wright to arrest delinquents.

Approximately $1,000 has been received from Salem. Only $15 has been paid in the East Liverpool district, many of those still owing fines having "beat it" since the order was issued, according to reports reaching the sheriff's office.

Municipalities are entitled to one half of the amounts collected from liquor fines. The sheriff's office has asked the cooperation of local police departments in forcing the payments.

OHIOAN HELD AS WIFE DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Suspicion Charge is Filed Against Man at Troy.

JURY INQUIRY

Badly Fractured Skull Killed Mrs. Ruth Kadel.

TROY, O., Jan. 7.—Ralph H. Kadel, 28, arrested Thursday night and held on a suspicion charge, had been unable to obtain his freedom up to this morning. He was placed in custody by county officers accompanied by Joe Wilcox, Dayton detective, at the home of his parents, 12 miles from Troy.

A half hour before the arrest, the grand jury had been inquiring into the circumstances surrounding the death of his wife, Ruth Kadel, who died shortly after an automobile accident some weeks ago.

Mrs. Kadel died from what was described as a badly fractured skull. Following her death, a coroner's inquest was held but no verdict rendered and the case was referred to the grand jury.

The inquest was predicated upon statements alleged to have been made by the husband which were in conflict with the first stories told.

Various members of the dead woman's family were witnesses before the grand jury.

The record of the coroner's inquest is said to show a discrepancy in Kadel's story implying that there had been a quarrel during the fatal ride was also presented before the grand jury which is scheduled to file its report in court at 1 o'clock today.

ANGRY, SPREADING RASH ON BABY'S BODY

Checked and healed by soothing ointment

Los Angeles, Cal., July 28:—"When my baby was four months old, little red pimples which resembled heat or teething rash appeared on her body. I used various baby powders, but the trouble kept spreading until nearly all the lower part of her body was covered. Then it began to look white and scaly and I knew it was more than an ordinary rash. I decided to try Resinol Ointment, and after the first two or three applications I noticed an improvement. I kept on using this ointment, however, and bought some Resinol Soap to bathe her with. The result was that the trouble completely disappeared. I have always used Resinol Soap for her bath since. She is two years old now, and her skin is absolutely free from any blemish. When my boy began to have ringworms, I was so persistent in the use of Resinol Ointment that they were soon cleared away. I wouldn't be without Resinol in the house, and at the least sign of any eruption on the children, I use it." (Signed) Mrs. L. E. Crenshaw, 7806 Lou Dillon Ave.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

site for such a clinic is in the out patient department or dispensary of a general hospital. Patients should not be accepted in the posture clinic until they have been thoroughly examined and found free from organic troubles which may be causing their symptoms. The clinic should act as a correlating agency, and consultations should be held with the other departments regarding the patient to be enrolled.

Posture clinics may also be established by visiting nurse associations in conjunction with child health centers. There the patients may be sent from neighboring schools by the nurses employed there, and from the district by local physicians. The visiting nurses themselves may refer a number of patients. Naturally there will follow cases direct from the home because the parent of a child who has been cured will instruct the parent of a child who is suffering from some unexplained cause.

But there, as well as in the hospital, the child must be examined by a pediatrician and an orthopedist. Before corrective posture training is begun the etiology of the trouble must be diagnosed as poor body mechanics. Consultations should therefore be held with the medical men on the staff of the nursing association or of some nearby hospital. After a child has been enrolled in a posture clinic and is started on its routine procedure he is best teared for if an orthopedist and a pediatrist assume joint responsibility for his medical care.

While a child will spend only about 35 minutes two or three times a week in the posture clinic he should practice at home and repeat at least three times a day all that he has done in the clinic. To be sure that this practice is continued follow-up visits should be made to the home. Mothers are also urged to attend the clinics with their children in order that they may see for themselves just what their children should do at home. They may at the same time received advice as to diet and other controlling causes of their children's complaints.

Posture exercises, however, may be not only curative but also preventive and for this reason it is urged that they be introduced into the school curriculum.
